CAUGHT.

Softly falls the summer moonlight On the Bogue Falles' tides, Where a boat with youth and maiden O'er the water lightly rides.

Hushed by nature's solemn silence, Whispers he in accents low:
"Let us float through life together, Though the tide be ebb or flow."

And she answers, breathing music Like a low breeze through the pines, "Yes, dear, if you'll only let me Hold, as now, the rudder lines."

I THINK I SEE YOU, DARLING.

I think I see you, darling,
As I did in days of yore, Sitting at eve at our trysting place,
Where the pine-tree shades the door.

Another is at your side, my dear, Another your hand doth press,
And gazing into your starry eyes, Prays you his life to bless;

His life, through all the coming years, As I once prayed, you know;
Oh, bless him, darling, with your love; Fear not, I'll hide my woe.

But think of me sometimes, my love, When the toil of the day is o'er, As of one whose heart lies buried
Where the pine-tree shades the door.

The war cry of the Arab—"Up and Bedouin."

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again," and the same thing is true of a barrel hoop, if you happen to step on it just right.

Counsel (to witness): "You're a nice sort of a fellow, you are!" Witness: "I'd say the same of you, sir, only I'm under oath."

Its a poor rule that won't work both ways. A Milwaukee girl married a barber, and he turned out to be a rich baron in disguise.

A gentleman conversing with two ladies to whom nature had denied the gift of speech, called it "a little exercise with the dumb belles."

A smart girl calls a young gentleman of her acquaintance "Honeysuckle," because he's always hanging over the front fence in the evening.

"Woman," says St. Bernard, "is the organ of the devil." And man, he might have added, is the monkey that dances to the music.—Courier Journal.

The published report of an Irish benevolent society says: "Notwithstanding the large amount paid for medicine and medical attendance, very few deaths occurred during the year."

"No," she said, as she sipped the cream it would take his last dime to pay for, "No, I never eat cake myself, but ma says she is getting awfully hungry waiting for a piece of my wedding cake."

The Philadelphia Chronicle sorrowfully says: "Figures, it has been chained, won't lie; but this is a mistake. Some of the finest female figures upon the streets are nothing but padded deceptions."

"Look, love," he exclaimed, "only $15 for a suit of clothes!" "Is it a wedding suit?" she asked, looking naively at her lover. "Oh! no," he replied, "it's only a business suit."
"Well, I meant business," she replied.

A tramp found a woman alone in a Virginia farmhouse, and threatened to kill her if she did not give him five cents. "Well, here it is," she said, showing the coin, "but I guess I'll shoot it to you," and she dropped it into the barrel of a shot gun. The fellow did not wait to get it.

THE GAME LAW.

For the information of our readers, we publish the following extracts from the game laws of the State:

An act for the protection of game animals and birds in the State of Louisiana.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That it shall be unlawful in this State to catch, kill or pursue with such intent, any wild buck, doe or fawn, or to have the same in possession after it has been caught or killed, between the 1st day of February and the 1st day of August of each year, under a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each offense.

Sec. 2. That no person shall catch, kill, or pursue with such intent, or have the same in possession after it has been caught or killed, any wild turkey, between the first day of April and the first day of September of each year, under a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense.

Sec. 3. That no person shall
intent, or have in possession after the same has been caught or killed, any quail, partridge or pheasant, between the first day of April and the fifteenth day of September in each year, under a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense.

Sec. 4. That no person shall catch, kill, or have in possession after the same has been caught or killed, any whippoorwill, sparrow, finch, oriole, blue bird, swallow, night hawk or black bird, except when the same shall be destructive to the fruit or grain crop, under a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense.

RULES FOR THE EDUCATION OF CHILDREN.

[New Orleans Daily States.]

An esteemed lady friend requests us to publish the following rules for the rearing and education of children. The lady who prepared them is a mother and has had much experience with young children, and observed them with the loving intelligence which pervades her lessons here given.

The following are worthy of being printed in letters of gold, and being placed in a conspicuous position in every household.

1. From your children's earliest infancy inculcate the necessity of instant obedience.

2. Unite firmness with gentleness.
Let your child always understand that you mean exactly what you say.

3. Never promise them anything unless you are sure you can give them what you promise.

4. If you tell a child to do anything, show him how to do it, and see that it is done.

5. Always punish your children for wilfully disobeying you, but never punish in anger.

6. Never let them perceive that they can vex you, or make you lose your self command.

7. If they give way to petulance or temper, wait till they are calm and then gently reason with them on the impropriety of their conduct.

8. Remember that a little present punishment, when the occasion arises, is much more effectual than the threatening of a greater punishment should the fault be renewed.

9. Never give your children anything because they cry for it.

10. On no account allow them to do, at one time, what you have for-bidden, under the like circumstances, at another.

11. Teach them that the only sure and easy way to appear good is to be good.

12. Accustom them to make their little recitals the perfect truth.

13. Never allow of tale-bearing.

14. Teach them that self-denial is the only appointed and sure method of securing happiness.

When big trees begin to shoot, it's about time for little bushes to leave.

There are four national tickets in the field, nominated by the Republican, Democratic, Greenback and Prohibition parties. They are as follows:

Republican—Jas. A. Garfield of Ohio for President, Chester A.
Arthur of New York for Vice President.

Democratic—W. S. Hancock of Pennsylvania for President, Wm.
H. English of Indiana for Vice President.

Greenback—James A. Weaver of Iowa for President, E. J. Chambers of Texas for Vice President.

Prohibition—Neal Dow of Maine for President, A. W. Thompson of Ohio for Vice President.

A sculptor's wife had her husband arrested in Cincinnati the other day for assault and battery, because, as she testified, on the occasion of her going to his studio to inform him that the woman across the way had eloped, he struck her in the face with a huge mass of mud. The sculptor explained that the occasion referred to was the first time for years he had seen a pleasant look on his wife's face, and therefore he hastened to take a clay cast of her features, so as to catch the expression for use on a bust he intended to model. The court dismissed the case.—San Francisco Post.

A Cincinnati physician whose specialty was the treatment of idiots, was very mad at his neighbor, the editor, who meant to be complimentary when he spoke of the physician as a celebrated idiotic doctor.

Ten years time and twenty thousand separate pieces are about all that one woman can crowd into one bedquilt in this cold world, and when her work is done the quilt is worth at least five dollars.

Give neither counsel nor salt until you are asked for it.

HOW THE SON OF GEN. HAN- COCK GOT HIS BRIDE.

The nomination of General Hancock has revived the recollection of a romance in his family, the hero of which was the General's only son, Russell Hancock, now a prosperous cotton planter in Mississippi. Seven or eight years ago, when quite a boy, he was living in Louisville and had fallen in love with a young girl whose father, having been a rebel, would not allow her to receive addresses of the son of a Yankee soldier.

Young Hancock was forbidden the house, and the father was preparing to take his daughter to Europe to insure a separation. The youthful pair, however, one evening met at a party in Louisville, and by a sudden agreement they stole across the river to Jeffersonville, roused up a preacher, were married in the silence of midnight, and stole back to their dwellings. The lady remained in her father's house, received young company, was seen in society with young gentlemen escorts, and met her husband as a sister friend in the presence of others.

The news leaked out, however; the young bride did not go to Europe, and the pair lived at a boarding house in Louisville for about a year. The marriage was a surprise to his parents, as well as her's, but Russell's mother became fond of her, as did also his grandmother, Mrs. Russell, who lived in a country home near Louisville. The father of the runaway girl did not become reconciled, but her mother and sisters visited the young bride daily, and her husband was a great favorite with them from his frank and merry moods. The friends of the parties all agree that the marriage has proved a very happy one.
