Hack Line!
 BY ROBERT BADON.

This old and popular carrier, connecting with the Steamer Camelia, at Mandeville, Madisonville and Old Landing, is carrying the U. S. Mail and thereby enabled to dispense with all opposition. Every one is treated courteously, and charges are uniformly low on account of old high speed and safety. Travelers desiring to go to Abita Springs, etc., will look to me for the best and safest route. June 15, 1877.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

 The majority of the ills of the human body arise from a derangement of the Liver, affecting both the stomach and bowels. In order to effect a cure, it is necessary to remove the cause. Irregular and Sluggish action of the Bowels, Headache, Sickness at the Stomach, Pain in the Back and Loins, etc., indicate that the Liver is at fault, and that nature requires assistance to enable this organ to throw off impurities.
Prickly Ash Bitters are especially compounded for this purpose. They are mild in their action and effective as a cure: are pleasant to the taste and taken easily by both children and adults. Taken according to directions, they are a safe and pleasant cure for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Habitual Constipation, Diseased Kidneys, etc., etc. As a Blood Purifier they are superior to any other medicine, cleansing the system thoroughly, and imparting new life and energy to the invalid. It is a medicine and not an intoxicating beverage.
 ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR PRICKLY ASH BITTERS, and take no other. PRICE, $1.00 per Bottle.

 Session of Nine Months.

Constipation is a disease-maker to all human beings. The rich and poor, the old and young, male and female are its regular victims. At the bedside the physician's first question is, "how are your bowels?" This condition has many causes, and leads to many diseases, as follows: Indigestion, acid stomach, heartburn, fevers, biliousness, sick headache, torpidity of the liver, colic, inflammatory diseases, nervousness, loss of appetite, etc., etc. These conditions can all be removed by the use of BAILEY'S SALINE APERIENT, which is a pleasant and sparkling purgative, acting speedily and freely upon the stomach, bowels and liver, relieving indigestion, curing sick headache, heartburn and acid stomach; cools and quiets in fever; never produces pain or nausea.

A PARTICULARLY NICE YOUNG MAN.

Advice to a young man, by R. J. Burdette, in the Burlington Hawkeye: "Oh, yes, I understand all that, my son. I have heard much of that before. You mourn and grieve over the lack of true womanhood among the girls of your acquaintance. Mere butterflies of fashion, you say, who can rattle the keys of a grand piano, dance like fairies, chatter nonsense and society nothings by the hour, and for their lives cannot bake a loaf of bread, roast a turkey, do a day's washing or make a shirt. You say you demand the noblest type of useful womanhood in your wife, and you want to know where you can find the wife you want? Well, I will tell you, my dear boy. If that is the sort of a woman you want, marry Nora Mulligan, your laundress's daughter. She wears cowhide shoes, is guiltless of corsets, never had a sick day in her life, takes in washing, goes out housecleaning, and cooks for a family of seven children, her mother and three section men who board with her. I don't think she would marry you, because Con. Regan, the track-walker, is her style of a man. She is the useful sort of a woman you appear to want, but I don't think she'd look at you twice. Let us just examine into your qualifications as a model husband, after your own matrimonial ideal, my boy. Can you shoulder a barrel of flour and carry it down the cellar? My dear boy, a quarter sack of meal would get away with those chalky fingers and slender arms of yours. Can you saw and split ten cords of hickory wood in the fall, so as to have ready fuel all winter? Telemachus, those 23 inches of coat padded out over 16 inches of shoulders wouldn't help you a cent's worth. Do you know, my son—look me in the eye—do you know how to measure ten cords of wood after the man had piled it in five irregular heaps, and tells you it is all there? Do you know how to buy potatoes and how to put them away for the winter? Do you know how to pick over the apples after Christmas? Do you know how to watch the shoeing of your own horse, if you drive one, and can you tell timothy from prairie hay when you are buying it? Can you spade up half an acre of ground for a kitchen garden? Do you know what will take the limy taste out of the new cistern, and can you patch the little leak in the kitchen roof? What would you do if a hoop fell off the flour barrel? Suppose the chimney gets choked up? Or the front door binds at the top? What if a mortise lock gets out of order? If an extra shelf is wanted in the kitchen? Or two or three little hens with broods of you bring home?"

dear boy, you see why Nora Mulligan will have done of you. She wants a higher type of true manhood. You expect to hire men to do all the man's work about the house, but you want your wife to do everything that any woman can do. Believe me, my son, nine-tenths of the girls who play the piano and sing so charmingly, who you in your limited knowledge set down as "mere butterflies of fashion," are better fitted for wives than you are for a husband. The girls know more about these things than you do. If you want to marry a first-class cook and experienced house-keeper, do your courting in an intelligence office. But if you want a wife, marry the girl you love, with dimpled hands and a face like the sunlight, and her love will teach her all these things, my boy, long before you have learned one-half of your own lesson.

A STRANGER IN A SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Rev. Dr. Wm. B. Schauffler relates the following story in the New York Observer. It happened in that city about twenty-five years ago: One Sunday, when one of our greatest Sabbath Schools was assembled and occupied busily with the lesson of the day, a very tall stranger walked in and sat down. His looks were plain, but entirely calculated to inspire respect. He seemed delighted with the sight of so many beautiful children and devoted teachers, all deeply interested in their work. The superintendent noticed the effect produced by the sight upon the stranger, and before the school closed he stepped up to him and said: "As you have manifested so warm an interest in this our solemn work, I should be obliged to you if you would address a few words to the school before they separate. I am sure the children would long remember it." The stranger consented, and when called on rose to his feet, looking like young King Saul among the assembled Israelites. He addressed the school in simple, bland, affectionate terms, telling them how privileged they were in the enjoyment of such advantages as common schools during the week and Sunday Schools on the Sabbath, with Bible studies and religious instruction so kindly given to them. He told them how children used to grow up in the western part of the country during his childhood, and how his mother taught him the A, B, C, and to spell and to read, and to study the Bible and the Catechism, or he would have grown up like an Indian, as thousands of children then did in those parts, etc. He tried to impress them with the debt of gratitude they owed to God for these inestimable blessings, and what their country had a right to expect from citizens trained up and taught as they were. The entire school listened to the words of the tall speaker with marked attention. When he had finished, and was preparing to leave, the superintendent requested, for himself and the school, the privilege of knowing to whose voice they had been permitted to listen, assuring him that the scholars would never forget his words, but carry them through all their future days. The stranger replied, "My name is Abraham Lincoln"—and passed out, leaving the superintendent almost embarrassed with surprise."
