AN IRISH LOVE SONG.

Air—The Little Red Lark.

Ah! swan of slenderness, dove of tenderness,
Jewel of joys, arise!
The little red lark, like a rosy spark
Of song, to his sunburst flies;
But till you are risen, earth is a prison,
Full of my captive sighs.

The dawn is dark to me; hark, oh, hark to me,
Pulse of my heart, I pray,
And gently gliding out of thy hiding,
Dazzle me with thy day!

And oh! I'll fly to thee, singing, and sigh to thee,
Passion so sweet and gay,
The lark shall listen, and dewdrops glisten,
Laughing on every spray.

A HINT TO GIRLS.

The newest parlor game at Laramie, Wyoming Territory, where woman suffrage has been established, was invented by the ladies of that region. The girls sit in one room in a row, with a chair in front of each one. When he comes in the youth chooses his chair, and the young lady behind him binds his eyes with a handkerchief. Then the black cook comes in and kisses him and disappears. The young man is then released, feeling much refreshed and elated, and promptly retires to the other end of the room. His feelings, when the next young man comes in and is treated to this novel entertainment, can be imagined, but they are mitigated by the pleasure of seeing the other fellows undergoing the experiment. As a winter evening amusement, it is one of the most popular in Wyoming.—Laramie Boomerang.

BAD FOR HIS WIFE.

He moved one seat to get alongside of an old farmer, and then asked:

"How was wheat in this section this year?"

"Only medium, sir. I did intend to get the old lady a silk dress this fall, but the wheat turned out so poorly that I can't do it."

"Hay pretty good?"

"Nothing extra. I was going to get the old woman a new cloak this fall, but she'll have to wear the old one another year, I guess."

"Oats look fair?"

"Well, they won't begin to hold out. My crop will fall short over a hundred bushels. I was going to send the old woman on a visit to York State this fall, but I guess she'll have to stay to home."

"But the potatoes are certainly a big crop?"

"Yes, potatoes are a big yield, and that will cut the price down to two shillings a bushel. I was going to let the old woman get a set of false teeth this fall, but the way things look now rather goes to show that she'll have to gum along until next year."—Wall Street News.

A medical student, while in the dissecting room, filled up his pockets with a lot of ears, fingers and toes, and then loafed around to the butcher's shop, and slyly scattered them about in odd corners near the sausage machine. The customers coming in saw them and were horrified, and demanded explanations, which the wretched butcher could not give, and the story of the scandal spread, and the whole neighborhood became aroused, and the butcher had to escape across roofs to avoid being lynched, and will never return to the city, as he is brought back by officers to answer a charge of murder.

OFF FOR THE EVERGLADES.

A number of amateur sportsmen crowded the decks of the Savannah steamship Tallahassee, at New York, last Wednesday. They were bidding Commodore Thomas Jefferson Falls good speed on his fourteenth annual trip to the Florida everglades. His preparations for the coming campaign are of public interest. They include a small Gatling gun, hung on a swivel, for use on his yacht Louise. This gun is to be devoted to the destruction of sea cows and alligators in the St. Lucie and Alpatiokee estuaries of the Indian river. A small stationary engine and a dynamometer, to be used in producing a brilliant electric light in the swamps of the everglades, were stored in the hold near the Gatling gun. By the aid of this electric light the Commodore intends to create great havoc in the large roosts of snowy herons and roseate spoonbills in the secret and gloomy recesses of the everglades. Small balloons filled with explosives are to be sent aloft among great flocks of frigate pelicans, ibis and gannets, dealing death and destruction, at proper intervals, and showering the savannahs with the bodies of these brilliantly plumaged birds.—Mobile Register.

A HUSBAND AND A MULE.

Not long since Wakefield Starkey, of Austin, while crossing the track of the International and Great Northern Railroad on a valuable mule, was struck by a locomotive and killed. The mule was also hurled into eternity. Wakefield Starkey, although a perfect gentleman on the street, was a perfect tyrant of the deepest dye. Without any provocation whatever, he used to beat his wife and lock her up in the wardrobe; hence, when she heard of his death, it was not so much a case of heavy bereavement as it was of mitigated affliction. As the engineer of the locomotive was clearly to blame for the accident, it was suggested to the widow that she bring suit for damages. She resolved to do so, and called at the office of the railway company. The proper official happened to be in. The widow had such a clear case against the company that it was deemed advisable to compromise the matter.

"Now, madam," said the official, after the widow had thrown back her veil and stated her business, "we are willing to do what is fair in this matter. There is really no occasion to go to law. It is a delicate subject to discuss, so I think, without going into the merits of it, I will tender you a check for three thousand dollars, and you will sign a paper releasing the company from all further demands."

The widow started, and asked:

"How much?"

"I am authorized to pay you $3000."

"I accept it," she said, very much agitated. The check was handed over, the paper signed, and the widow walked out into the street in a bewildered frame of mind. As she cashed the check, she said to herself, confidentially, "I don't expect to get more than $1000, reckon that railroad company don't know how old that mule was."
