THE FUTURE OF SUGAR IN THE UNITED STATES.

If the success of the sugar schedule in the tariff bill should result in the crippling or destruction of the sugar industry in Louisiana...

The great seat of the sugar industry, however, would be in the West, if we are to accept the opinion of a practical grower of the sugar beet...

Mr. Oxnard, who is now in Washington, has been talking to a correspondent on the subject of the future of the sugar beet culture in the United States.

He says that while the cane and other crops in Louisiana are withering from the drought, the sugar beet is green and thriving vigorously.

"It is the coming crop of the West," he remarked; "we can supply the world with sugar. I have recently been out to the Pacific Coast, where the crop is also looking fine."
