Nervous Prostration.

A Noted Boston Woman Describes its Symptoms and Terrors.—Two Severe Cases Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ADELE WILLIAMSON.

"I am so nervous! no one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my body. I honestly believe my lungs are diseased, my chest pains me so, but I have no cough. I am so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion terribly, and palpitation of the heart; am losing flesh; and this headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I had hysterics. There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time, with pains in my groins and thighs—I can't sleep, walk, or sit, and blue—oh goodness! I am simply the most miserable of women."

This is a most vivid description of a woman suffering with nervous prostration, caused by inflammation or some other diseased condition of the womb.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is no need of it. Read about Miss Williamson's case and how she was cured.

Two Bad Cases of Nervous Prostration Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM;—I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all, and was too weak to walk across the floor. My heart was affected so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of incalculable benefit to me."

"I had nervous prostration terribly, caused by female weakness. I suffered everything; was unable to eat, sleep, or work. After a while I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I really began to improve on taking the first bottle. I continued to take the medicine, and am now better in every way, and feel like a different person. I am simply a well woman."

AN IMPROVED GRANARY.

Up-to-Date Storehouses for Corn Which is Absolutely Secure from Encroachments of Vermin.

The dimensions of my granary—You see I have put the corn crib three feet entirely—see as follows: Length, 18 feet; plates, 20 feet; width, 14 feet; total length of posts, 12 feet; height of floor from the ground, 3 1/2 feet. These dimensions may vary, according to the amount of grain to be stored. Wide strips of sheet lead the tops of the posts from the invasion of rats and mice.

Inside the plan is as follows: Corn in the back part, the crib running across the end, and on each side a row of grain bins. These are arranged so that the ends nearest the alley between, which is four feet wide, may be removed in case they are not needed. These empty bins afford store room for a corn sheller, or for bran or other feed. A loose floor overhead also furnishes space for putting away many articles which might otherwise be cast around anywhere. The inside is lined with matched pine boards three-eighths thick. The outside is battened, and the boards being surfaced the whole is painted. The entire expense of this granary was not far from $75, and I have received the compliment that it is the best job I have done in the way of building, and have spent a small fortune in that line. In fact, it pleases me exactly. I never have seen but two mice in this granary, and those I carried in with empty bags; and, as may be supposed, I am told that it is the best job I have done in the way of building, and have spent a small fortune in that line.

HANDY BROODER HOUSE.

It Has Covered Inside Runs and Other Conveniences of a Useful and Practical Nature.

The brooder house I have used for the past five years accommodates nicely 150 chicks until eight weeks old. It is nine by twelve feet with shed roof, three feet high on lower side and seven feet on higher side. It allows two feet for alley, two feet for brooder and five feet for run. The part used for the runs is double walled one foot high. The remainder of the house is built of one-inch boards battened, which makes it sufficiently warm for this climate.

In the lower side, which faces east, is a partition between runs. There are three windows one by three feet, also one window in each end, just above the double wall. The six runs are separated by movable partitions and are also covered. In these respects it differs from other brooder houses I have seen. After using for two years I would not go back to open runs again.

The partition is made of 1 1/2-inch lath split lengthways. Two strips at a and b project one inch and fit into mortises in the double wall. The opposite end drops between two cleats on the side of the brooder. The cover

LATH COVER OVER RUNS. It is also made of split lath, except the outside and crosspiece, which are full width. The cover is hinged at a to a top of double wall and the other end rests on top of brooder. The sliding door in cover is for feeding and watering.

At evening, while the chicks are in brooder or in the middle of the day, while they are in outside runs, the covers are raised and hooked to the ceiling, the partitions are lifted out, throwing all the runs into one, and are very easily cleaned. The advantages are when the chicks are put into the runs they are there to stay. There is no flying over partitions, nor flying out of doors opened when watering or feeding, as the slip doors can be opened just enough, to put in anything desired, as trough, drinking fountain, etc.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Striking Fact About Horses.—At the recent meeting of the Texas Live Stock association the statement was made that there are now 2,000,000 fewer horses in the United States than there were ten years ago, that there are 1,000,000 more in active use than in 1900, and that there is a better demand for our horses from abroad than for many years, if ever before. It was brought out in the discussions that we could not by any reasonable measures restore our numbers in less than six years, and that in the meantime we would have great difficulty in supplying our foreign customers, if indeed we were sufficiently equipped to hold their trade. It was agreed that the outlook just now for the industry of horse breeding is especially promising.—National Stockman.

GOOD FORTUNE FOR TWO MEN.

Both Were Named Thomas and Both Found Great Mineral Wealth.

When fate has slammed a man down hard and upset his opinions or turned them inside out, she some times takes compassion on him and sets him up in business as a millionaire. That was the way it was with Tommy Cruise, of Helena, Mont., and that is the way it has just turned out with another man. Tommy Cruise located the famous Drum Lummon mine at a time when he was a near neighbor to starvation. His hard luck had been persistent for year and his credit was worn out. His friends were as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. But Tommy had a good thing in the Drum Lummon mine and he knew it. So sure was he of the fact that he refused to sell when the money was shored at him, although he was so hungry at the time that he could have eaten his bootlegs with relish. Tommy took a great fortune out of the Drum Lummon in a few years and then sold the mine to an English syndicate for $2,000,000.

The other man who has just reached the end of his hard-luck streak, says the Chicago Inter Ocean is Thomas Cooney. For a long time he was a land agent in Helena for the Northern Pacific railroad. Then he branched out for himself, and everything went wrong so fast that when the Spanish war came along Cooney was glad to volunteer and go to the front. He went in a lieutenant and came out a lieutenant, although he had counted on finishing up his career on the battlefield. When he got back to Montana Cooney was "stuck broke." As a last chance he took a turn at mining. He had a prospect known as the Blue Grass up in the same district as the Drum Lummon, and he went there and fell to work with pick and shovel and drill in the hopeless fashion characteristic of men who have been on the down grade financially for a long time.

One day he struck what is known as a contact lead. It widened into a beautiful shute of ore, and when Cooney had it assayed he was astonished to find that the ore clear across the lead "supplied" $100 a ton in gold. Then Cooney began to examine his lead more carefully. Almost in the center of the vein he found a streak six inches wide that was just studded with gold. The gold was all "free ore," but that streak was a fortune in itself. Various assays made of it gave returns of from $2,000 to $2,500 a ton.

Cooney had prospected his lead far enough to make certain that he is entitled to find that the ore clear across the lead "supplied" $100 a ton in gold. THOUSANDS OF FAIR WOMEN HERALD PRAISES FOR PERUNA.

Catarrhal Dyspepsia and Nervous Prostration Make Invalids of More Women Than All Other Diseases Combined.

Miss Anna Prescott.

Peruna is the woman's friend everywhere. It is safe to say that no woman like the following. Women who have tried doctors and failed; women who have tried Peruna and were cured.

Miss Katie Klein, 6125 Barmter avenue, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "Peruna has done me more good for catarrh than the best doctors could. I had catarrh so bad, but after taking Peruna it is entirely gone, and I feel like a different person."

Miss Anna Prescott, in a letter from 218 South Seventh street, Minneapolis, Minn., writes: "I am sincerely grateful for the relief I found from the use of Peruna. I was completely used up last fall, my appetite had failed and I felt weak and tired all the time. My doctor advised me to try Peruna and the relief I experienced after taking one bottle was truly wonderful."

"I continued its use for five weeks, and am glad to say that my complete restoration to health was a happy surprise to myself as well as to my friends."—Anna Prescott.

A constant drain of nervous vitality depleting the whole nervous system causes the mucous membrane surface to suffer accordingly. This is the condition called systemic catarrh. It very nearly resembles, and there is really no practical difference, between this condition and the condition known as neurasthenia, or nervous prostration.

Peruna makes you feel like a new woman. Mrs. F. J. Lynch, writes the following from 324 S. Division street, Grand Rapids, Mich.: "The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen—I earnestly recommend Peruna to any suffering woman, as it cures quickly. Last year I had a most persistent catarrh which nothing seemed to cure. Two bottles of Peruna did more for me than all the doctors seemed to do. In a couple of weeks I found myself in excellent health, and have been enjoying it ever since. Hence I look on Peruna as a true friend to women."—Mrs. F. J. Lynch.

Peruna is equally efficacious in curing catarrh of the throat as in curing systemic catarrh or catarrh of the stomach. Catarrh is essentially the same wherever located. Peruna cures catarrh.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. As soon as Peruna removes catarrh from the stomach the digestion becomes good, appetite regains, nerves strong, and trouble vanishes. Peruna strengthens weak nerves, not by temporarily stimulating them, but by removing the cause of weak nerves—poor digestion. This is the only cure that lasts. Remove the cause; Nature will do the rest. Peruna removes the cause.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address: Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.
