EDUCATIONAL FACTS AND FIGURES.

A Statement of Comparative Educational Conditions in Ten Southern States.

In 1900 the ten states south of the Potomac and the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, including Louisiana, had 22 per cent. of the total population of the United States, and 25 per cent. of the school population; yet only 6 1/2 per cent. of the total expenditures for public schools was made in these states, and only 4.1 per cent. of the $538,623,736 of public school property was in these states.

The per capita expenditure for public schools varied from 50 cents in Alabama to 51 cents in North Carolina to $4.93 in Massachusetts and $5.30 in Nevada. The average for the whole country was $2.83; for these ten states only 86 cents. The average per capita for these states was less than one-third the average for the whole country and only a little more than one-fifth the average for the North Atlantic and Western states.

The average salary paid teachers for the entire school year varied from $87 for males and $78 for females in North Carolina to $1290 for males and $496 for females in Massachusetts. The average for the whole country, exclusive of these ten states, was $455.02 for males and $312.22 for females; for these ten states $175 for males and $150 for females. The average number of days of school age varied from 22 in North Carolina to 107 in Massachusetts. For the North Atlantic states it was 87, for the North Central states 82, for the Western states 80, for these ten Southern states 43. It should be remembered also that only 154,000 of the 5,645,164 children of school age in these ten states were reported as enrolled in private schools, primary and secondary.

The total fund of the ten states was only one million dollars more than the school fund of Ohio, and the total value of their public school property was only one-half the value of the public school property of Ohio.

A generation has passed since the close of the war between the states, and business men in the prime of life whose children are now in the schools never heard the noise of battle or saw a wounded soldier sent to rear. These states are rich beyond comparison in natural resources. They are peopled by a brave and noble race. Is it creditable to us that such comparisons as the above show such relative conditions as to education?

Good For Rheumatism

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman. After two applications of this Remedy I was much better, and after using one bottle, was completely cured—Sallie Harris, Salem, N. J. For sale by V. H. Frederick, druggist.

If Thomas Jefferson, the great democratic statesman, were alive to-day, he might well say, as he did in the early days of the republic, "Above all things I hope the education of the common people will be attended to." There is no other way to power, prosperity and progress.

A noted French physician says "I have prescribed Tono Tonic for several years, and have had better results from it than from any other tonic as a tissue builder and appetizer." It will make you fat, give you a healthy color and a new appetite. Try one bottle and see the results. At all drug stores.
