JONES & PICKETT.

Twelve Ahead of the Game.

This story was told of a recent meeting of a medical society in this city, according to the New York Mail and Express.

A physician practicing in one of the smaller cities up the State was aroused at midnight by an inebriated individual who insisted that the man of medicine accompany him immediately to his home, three miles back in the country.

"Serious case, Doc," said the caller. "Mush come 'mejelly."

The physician protested that his man was absent and there was no man on the premises who was able to hitch up the horse.

"Sall right," said the insistent one. "I'll hitch 'm in shiffy. Show-meem."

"You understand, of course," warned the Doctor. "that while my charge for a call in that district is a dollar in the daytime, I'll have to charge you two dollars for going out there at this time of the night."

For answer the caller placed a two-dollar bill in the Doctor's hand.

They went out to the barn, the stranger hooked the horse up in no time at all and they set out for the back country at a good pace. Arrived there, Sawbones asked to see the patient. The inebriated one tumbled out of the buggy and leered at the other as he said:

"I'm ze only patient. Tell yer how 'tis, Doc. I went zer liv'ry stable, see! Asked ze liv'ryman how mush 'eed charge ter take me home. 'E sez four dollars, 'n I sez's out rache. Sez I kn get home fer two dollars 'n 'e sez 'e'll bet ten I can't. Mush 'ilged 't you, Doc. fer pattin' me twelve dollars ahead o' the game."

What the physician said was not reported for publication.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green of Lancaster, N. H. "I was unable to eat until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept me in a constant health for years. I say Electric Bitters are just what you need for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak and run-down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c Satisfaction guaranteed by L. L. Watkins, of the City Drug Store.

He Recognized It.

"Now, children," said the school teacher, "I should like to see how much you remember about the animal kingdom, and the domestic animals which belong to it. Now what are they?"

There were various replies, specifying the cat, the dog, the cow, and others, but nobody seemed to think of the pig. Then came Tommy Traddles' turn, and the good-natured teacher determined to give him a hint as to the reply she required.

"We've had them nearly all, except one, Tommy," she prompted. "Can't you tell me what that one is? It has bristly hair, is fond of dirt and loves to get in mud. Now just think. Can't you tell me what it is?"

"Yes teacher," said Tommy hesitatingly. "It's me!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

"No," said the lion tamer to Patsy Flannigan, "you can't have a job to look after the animals; but our pet lion died last week, and we've kept the skin, so I'll give you two pounds a week to dress up as the lion."

"Two pounds!" echoed Flannigan. "Good gracious, is there so much gold in the world? Right, sir!"

So Patsy dressed up as the lion and lay down in the cage. The menagerie doors were open and the performance commenced.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the keeper. "to show the wonderful docility of these animals, we will now place the lion in the cage with the tiger."

"Man, are ye mad?" Said Patsy. "Think of me wife and children!"

"Get in," replied the keeper, "or I'll run the pitchfork through you!"

Patsy thought he might as well die one way as another, so he crawled into the tiger's cage, and when he saw the animal's big, ferocious eyes fixed on him he uttered a dole-ful wail and commenced praving in Irish. The tiger walked over to him.

"What's the matter wid ye!" said he. "Shure, man, ye needn't be afraid. I'm Irish meself."

ESCAPED AN AWFUL FATE.

Mr. H. Higgins, of Mc-Burke, Fla., writes: "My doctor told me I had Consumption and nothing could be done for me. I was given up to die. The offer of a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, induced me to try it. Results were startling. I am now on the road to recovery. It surely saved my life." This great cure is guaranteed for all throat and lung diseases by J. C. Watkins, of the City Drug Store. Price 50c and 1.00. Trial bottle free.
