Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

In some locations a story and a half house looks better than a higher one. Some folks like to build low houses and to make them wider. There are all kinds of houses and all sorts of people, so that everyone should be satisfied. There is a comfortable look about this story and a half house that I like. It has a roomy, comfortable, cool appearance for summer, and it looks as though a good furnace in the cellar would make it warm and cozy in the winter, too. It is 30x45 feet long on the ground, with the addition of two comfortable porches.

This house should face the north. Not every house plan is suitable for a lot with a northern exposure. Generally speaking, a southern frontage is preferred, but sometimes a northern outlook is desirable. It is not possible to face every house to the south, because there are not sites enough of this kind to go around. There are advantages in a northern exposure with a house built like this which offset some of the disadvantages. The parlor, library and downstairs bedroom would get the east sun in the morning. The kitchen would be bright and cheerful while the work is going on in the forenoon and the dining room would be pleasant in winter time from 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning until night. The hallways both upstairs and down could be spared for the northern exposure, because hallways are not occupied except as passageways. There is an opportunity in this house to put in two grates, one in the library and one in the parlor. A great deal of attention is now being paid to grates and mantels. Some new California grates are raised above the floor of the room, set upon a sort of step or pedestal. The idea is that raising the fire slightly gets it up where it may be seen to better advantage, and it is said to be a little cleaner. Architects and builders are giving more attention to grates and mantels and the result is that some extraordinary effects are being introduced into expensive houses. It is all right to make an interesting feature of a grate and mantel, but it is all wrong to make any one thing in a house prominent mantels. From the old-fashioned and to the closed-in chimney stoves there are many variations. There is also a great variety of sizes. Some grates are too small for any practical use, while others are so large that they entail a great waste of fuel. Some of the closed-in stoves, those that have revolving grates, may be a little cleaner and easier to take care of, but they lack the charm of the free open grate. The fire never looks the same in one of these expensive affairs. It lacks interest. It is a sort of cross between the fire place and a stove, it is neither one thing or the other.

Building a fire place in any house is a mistake unless it is intended for use. A sham ornament of this kind is a mere mockery and it is a disappointment. Shams are never satisfactory. A fire place that is never used is a sham. It does not look well and should never find a place in a dwelling house.

Some of the best looking chimneys are the poorest in this respect. Sometimes an outside chimney will not draw well because it is too cold. When air gets heated it naturally goes up, but until the chimney gets warm the current of air is not inclined to follow up through the flue. For this reason, some builders refuse to put a chimney on an outside wall, but the fact remains that some outside chimneys work first-rate. A miter in the foothills will build a chimney for his cabin out of stone and mud and it will work fine, while a high-priced mason will spend considerable money in constructing a fine house chimney that won't accept a consignment of air at any price. It is difficult to account for some things.

There is as much difference in grates as there is in chimneys and

The architect estimates that this house may be built complete, with fire place, flues and registers for from $1,800 to $2,000, and this estimate is probably correct for most localities. Of course, wages and cost of material are very much higher in some places than others, and this must be taken into consideration in studying house plans and estimates.

 And Things Were Decidedly Lively

When Bonnevillie Boyer of Powder Valley, Va. Upper Millford township, arose he decided the weather was too hot for him to wear socks, and hunted around until he found a pair of old "easy" boots on his back porch. "Just the thing for hot weather," he declared, and pulled on the boots.

North Dakota Solves the Adulteration Problem.
 North Dakota seems to have found the key to the question, "How shall we protect the people from frauds in manufactured products?" A new law has recently gone into effect designed to make it impossible to deceive people into buying inferior and adulterated paint under the impression that they are getting real paint, viz: pure white lead and linseed oil.

The North Dakota lawmakers did not attempt to absolutely prohibit the inferior pigments, or mixtures of pigments. They adopted the slogan, "Let the label tell," and then left to the people to buy whichever they wished.

All Chemically Pure.
 The mistaken idea of a few years ago, about Alum in Baking Powders being injurious, no longer prevails, or scarcely exists. It is a well established fact by chemical analysis that Cream of Tartar being less volatile than Alum, when exposed to heat, is not entirely vaporized as is the case with Alum, but leaves a residue in the bread, which is injurious. Alum, on the contrary, is entirely evaporated while performing its function during process of baking, leaving no atom of injurious residuous substance. The words "Chemically Pure," erroneously used to designate Cream of Tartar from Alum baking powder is a misnomer. Baking Powder made of pure Alum is as chemically pure as made from pure cream of tartar. These words mean nothing more nor less than pure chemicals, and in no way can they imply that one baking powder is Alum and another Cream of Tartar. Alum has been declared to be wholesome; an established fact. Every large water system in the cities along the Missouri river use Alum in large quantities to purify the water before pumping it into their water mains for consumption. Cream of Tartar baking powder is perhaps good enough for any one; Alum baking powder is better, and very much cheaper.

The Central American Soldier.
 These barefooted soldiers are antagonists not to be despised. Nearly worthless in attack, they are nevertheless tenacious in holding a position, a trait that comes from their Spanish descent, probably. In the Cuban campaign Gen. Garcia is said to have said in reply to the remark of an American officer: "The Spaniards never attack." This may have been true in the main, but the defense of the trenches at Caney showed that the Spaniards would hold a position with as much courage and tenacity as any other troops. The Central and the South Americans have not generally showed much steadiness in war, but there have been occasions when their conduct has been conspicuous for gallantry, and all the virtues which go to make up the stalwart soldier.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

THE WINNING STROKE
 If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package.
