THE GROWTH OF A PROGRESSIVE SENTIMENT.

Accomplishment is largely due to confidence. From the wonderful feats of the acrobat to the incidents or cures by faith, confidence plays its part in securing success, and lack of confidence has caused more panics than actual stress. It is therefore an important sign of future prosperity when the people are found lining up for a progressive policy of civic improvement. There is no doubt that Covington is coming to the front in the matter of personal interest in public affairs. The hearty applause which greeted the remarks of Mayor Wurzlow, of Houma, La., at the meeting of the Commercial League last Monday, shows that the public appreciates the man who casts aside personal interests in the consideration of public benefits and loses his identity in his battle for the greatest blessings for the greatest number. Narrow-mindedness and selfishness is being obliterated in the present-day ostracism of those who achieve but for self and consider not the happiness or welfare of fellow man. It is the spirit that is working for universal peace, and it is the spirit that will ultimately crush the power of the individual to defeat the wish of the many.

Sentiment is awaking to the interests of Covington, and the people are more anxious than they have ever before to advance her interests by a proper participation in those public affairs which should command the attention of every good citizen. The greatest need of Covington is a waterworks system that will give proper fire protection and a school building that will properly provide for the needs of the growing generation, where they may be educated and fitted for the battle of life. This is a duty that we owe to them by all the instincts of parental love and the manly feeling that should protect the weak.

In the matter of waterworks, Mr. Mansfield clearly shows that every property holder in voting for an assessment of five mills for this purpose instead of taking anything from his pocket is adding to his income a profit of two and one-half mills for every five mills that he pays in taxes. In other words, that the reduction in cost of insurance will not only build the waterworks but will leave a surplus. Mr. Bloodworth, secretary of the State Fire Prevention Bureau, endorsed what Mr. Mansfield said, showing that probably the least reduction that would be made would be 75 cents on the $100. Surely, with this statement in view, there should be no hesitancy in voting the tax.

In the matter of waterworks, Mr. Mansfield has clearly shown that every causing this matter and creating a public sentiment in its favor, at the work pavilion next Monday, will be attended by every citizen in Covington.

THE RESTRICTED DISTRICT.

A committee has been appointed by the town council of Covington to look into the matter of changing the location of the restricted district. There is no doubt that this committee will report the necessity for a change. It may be expected that the growth of Covington will be rapid in the next few years, and this district should be so located that there will be no necessity for its further removal at an early date.

THE HIGHEST TYPE OF FARMING—WHY NOT PREPARE YOURSELF FOR IT?

This is a Young People's Special, but since the young people of to-day will be grown-up people of to-morrow, we feel that we can not do a better thing for our Progressive Farmer boys, than to call their attention to one line of farming which has been all too generally neglected in the South. We refer to live stock raising.

Of course, all farms have more or less live stock on them; but what we mean is this: Most farmers in the South do not keep as many farm animals as they should; they do not do any of the best quality, and they do not look after and care for their animals as they should. Too many farmers think that they need no other stock than the mules they must have to tend their crops, a cow or two to furnish milk, two or three hogs to kill and a little flock of poultry. Now, we believe that this is a wrong idea. Let us tell you why.

In the first place, you know you must have good land if you make good crops. Well, it is a matter of common experience that the farmer who often to be successfully questioned—that it is easier to keep land good, or to make it good, when a large part of the crops are fed to live stock than when they are sold off. If you feed your grain and hay to cattle and sell the milk and butter, you take care of your land and you sell the hay and grain.

Again, if you raise cotton to sell to buy meat and lard, your only chance to get a profit is on the cotton. You must pay a profit to the man who raised the hog, to the man who killed it, to all the men who handled it before you bought it. When you raise the hog yourself you get all these profits yourself.

Once again, if you have plenty of work stock, you can do better farm work and do it easier and quicker than if you lack team and stock. It is cheaper to plow with three horses than with one.

Other reasons might be given why more live stock are needed on Southern farms, but these ought to be enough. When the boys who grow up on these farms are asked to remember this one point: The farmer who keeps plenty of good live stock can do his work easier and better, can get a bigger profit out of the crops he grows, and can improve his land at much less expense than can the man who does not.

But it is not only the more farm animals we need. We must have better ones. Go to any section where the farmers keep pure-bred cattle or horses or hogs and see if you do not find better lands, better houses, better farming generally, than in those sections where they keep just any old kind of stock. You know yourself, if you have a colt, a calf, a pig, or a chicken that is a little better than the common run—one that you would be proud to take to your county fair, let us say that you make more pride in making good animals, or to keep them good; and the boy who expects to be a stockman can not be too early to find out about the stock on his farm, to learn how to feed them, the sort of care they need, what they like and dislike, and all such things. One who is not kind to his animals will not make a success with them.

Live stock farming is the highest type of farming, the one calling for the most care on the part of the farmer, and the one yielding the greatest returns. It is very unfortunate that it has been so neglected in the South, for there is certainly no better place for it. Therefore, we are making this appeal to the boys who have ambition and energy and who expect to do the very best work and get the very best rewards, that they begin early in life to learn all they can about raising animals and how to care for them. No line of farm work will pay them better.—The Progressive Farmer.

HOW TO GET RID OF NUT-GRASS.

A friend wants to know if I have conquered the nut-grass in my garden. Yes, I have nearly finished it, and this summer it is the rarest weed in my garden. Last year was the first year the garden was cultivated as it had been lying out as a vacant lot. One end of the lot was full of nut-grass, and I determined that it should go. I did not dig it out except whatever turned up in the plowing of the land and was raked out. Then every day I chopped off that nut-grass. Cut off today it was up to-morrow, but I knew that no plant can long survive if not allowed to make green leaves above the ground. So chopped it off daily, it got thinner by frost, and as none was allowed to seed, I find few plants this summer and have simply been pulling them out as fast as seen, and have not yet even had to use the hoe on them. This is equally applicable to any persistent weed. Keep them chopped off and they must die, the same is true of sasaparilla sprouts. These will simply increase if dug and the roots out, but chopped off or mowed off regularly with the mowing machine they will give up. The mower is the best implement to rid land of sprouts and briars.—The Progressive Farmer.

In traveling through the South one is more and more impressed with the fact that the hog is not yet in cultivation. It has not been drained, in these wet bottom the fertility of the hills has leached down, and yet our people have too often balked and ditching that would make these lowlands outyield the prairies of the West. Very likely on your own farm, Mr. Subscriber, there are branch bottoms or creek bottoms which if cleared and ditched would give you $3 for your labor for every $1 the poorer hillside will pay you? And in that case isn't it folly to keep hiring yourself to the unappreciative field.—The Progressive Farmer.

A Fierce Night Alarm

is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, O., R. R. No. 2, for their children were greatly subject to croup. "Some times in severe attacks," he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved that a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Asthma, hay fever, influenza, whooping cough, hemorrhages fly before it. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Sold by all druggists.

FATHER KILLS HIS DAUGHTER AND SELF.

New York, Sept. 5.—At a moving picture show Monday night Raffello Richetti and his 18-year-old daughter, Rosa, saw the story of a tragedy in which the father killed his daughter and then himself.

"I'll do that to you some day," Rosa says her father told her. Early Tuesday Richetti crept to his daughter's bedside and shot her and then fired a bullet into his head. Both probably will die.
