N. O. & G. N. OFFICES TO GO TO JACKSON, MISS.

New Orleans, Dec. 29.—Bogalusa is to lose the headquarters of the New Orleans Great Northern railway, according to reports at the place. These reports state that the offices will be removed to Jackson, Miss., on the first of the year. They could not be confirmed here Thursday, as General Freight and Passenger Agent McMahon, the highest local authority, was out of the city. General Freight and Passenger Agent McMahon was established in this city only a comparatively short while ago, and the general belief was that the remainder of the offices of the company would eventually come to New Orleans. Bogalusa was not then, nor is now, considered an advantageous point for the company's general offices. It is stated that all of the general offices of the company are to be removed from Bogalusa. On the 1st of January, according to this report, the offices of the general manager will be removed, leaving only the offices of the auditor and the car accountant. These, it is stated, will be removed later. The object of the company in widely separating its general force, it reports are true, is causing speculation as to the removal of the offices named to Jackson would, in the opinion of local railway men, not be in line with the usual policy of railway companies to centralize as far as possible, the general office force.
