A LONG VISIT TO TEXAS.

Editor St. Tammany Farmer:
As I have been absent for some time on a visit to Texas and my old friends there, I returned Dec. 15th. Texas is entirely different to what it was when I left there in 1900. I lived there 37 years and never saw a drouth only every four years, but there has been a continued drouth there for the last three years. Texas did not make a good crop of corn last season, and where I was—on Red River, 13 mile below Denison—there was not an ear of corn made—not even enough to fatten a shoat. They all have to buy every grain of corn they feed at 90 cents per bushel in the ear and it is hot and rotten. There was a rain the last of July and a light rain the last of August which saved the cotton crop. The uplands made from a half to three fourths of a bale and the bottoms made from three-fourths to a bale per acre. There is plenty of cotton to pick there yet at a dollar per hundred and none at 25 per hundred—and pickers had to get at that price. If all the wheat in Texas was one grain the only place to plant it would be in the Grand Canon of Arizona, the only hole on earth big enough to hold it. If all the corn raised in Texas were one ear the only way to shell it would be by steam stump puller extracting each grain from the cob. If all the cattle in Texas were one cow she would browse the tender herbage of the tropics, which icicles of the north pole with her tail, and supply milk enough to fill a big canal. If all the chickens of Texas were one rooster he could straddle the Rocky Mountains and crow until he shook the rings off the planet Saturn. If all the hogs raised in Texas were one hog he could plant his hind feet in Cuba and fore feet in Panama and with one root of his huge snout dig the Panama Canal from ocean to ocean. If all the mules in Texas were one mule he could plant one fore foot in Texas and the other in the forests of Maine and with his hind feet kick the face off the man in the moon. This is all I can think about of Texas. Best wishes to the Farmer.

KILLED WHILE ATTEMPTING TO MEET HIS MOTHER.

New Orleans, Jan. 11.—Little five-year-old Thomas Coste, 3903 Camp, died at 10:30 a. m. Thursday in a ward in the Touro Infirmary as the result of injuries received Wednesday afternoon by being struck and mangled by a street car at Camp and General Taylor streets. Because of the terrible condition of his legs the surgeons deemed it necessary to amputate both the lower limbs. The youngster was standing on the gallery of his home, which is at General Taylor and Camp, and seeing his mother walking towards the house from Magazine, the lad hurried down the steps and rushed in her direction. It happened that a heavy clay avenue car, 354, in charge of Motorman P. J. Schultzman, came dashing along at this moment and was only a few yards away from the crossing when the motorman discovered the child in the act of passing in front of the car. The brakes were applied, but before the conveyance could be brought to a stop the damage was done. Both of the child's legs were mangled by the wheels of the car. Mrs. Coste did not realize that the little fellow had been picked up by Inspector Henry McGurigan of the railway company and carried off to the Touro Infirmary, several blocks distant. After a careful examination the surgeons performed the task of amputating the lad's limbs. The child recovered consciousness for a time Thursday morning, but on his white bed smiling as though free from pain. When the members of his family entered the room in which he was confined the lad looked up into their faces and smiled. The doctors stated that the little fellow was one of the most remarkable youngsters they had ever come in contact with. About 10 o'clock the child lost consciousness and his condition, which was much improved earlier in the morning, became alarming, and death occurred shortly. This is the second remarkable case of this nature that has occurred in this neighborhood during the past year. Last February the little daughter of

INFORMATION WANTED.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 8, 1912.
Editor St. Tammany Farmer:
My grandfather, George Klaus, came to New Orleans about 50 years ago, and was in the upholstery business here, having had at one time 40 people in his employ. He had come from Bisehoffinger, near Freiburg, Germany, and was at that time about 40 years old. He was well acquainted with Mr. Glover Baker, who is now dead. Mrs. Glover never saw or heard anything of my grandfather since about 11 years ago, when he told Mr. and Mrs. Glover he was going to Covington, La., with a Mr. Mohr. Mr. Mohr says an old man worked for him in Covington for a short time once, but he does not know what became of him. The records at the Health Department do not show his death in New Orleans, nor is his name in any city directory for many years back. His son, Julius Klaus, my father, and family came to America 8 years ago, and we are anxious to find my old grandfather, if he is still alive, and should he be in needy circumstances we want to look after his comforts in his old age. Thinking you in advance for your courtesy in publishing this, I am,
Yours very truly,
KARL KLAUS,
of Karl Klaus Co., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

VETERAN MARRIES VETERAN'S WIDOW.

Carrollton, Miss., Jan. 10.—An interesting wedding occurred this morning at the court house here, when "Squire" Frank Lee, a Confederate veteran of seventy-five years, was united in marriage to Mrs. Matie McGarry, the widow of a Confederate veteran. Sheriff John C. McKenzie, himself a Confederate veteran, acted as best man, and the ceremony was said by the Rev. S. M. Thames, Confederate veteran and now chaplain of the United Confederate Veterans of the Northern Division of Mississippi. After receiving the congratulations of a large crowd of friends Mr. and Mrs. Lee departed on a short bridal tour. When buying a cough medicine for children bear in mind that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is most effective for colds, croup and whooping cough and that it contains no harmful drug. For sale by all dealers.
former Councilman W. D. Seymour met death by being crushed to death beneath the wheels of a Henry Clay avenue car at Peniston and Camp streets, just one block away from the unfortunate accident Wednesday afternoon.

PUJO A WINNER FOR SENATOR

For U. S. Senator, 1915, Term, Stamp the Name In the Center.

Reasons why he should receive your vote!
Eminence in his chosen profession proves his ability and mental equipment. Representing the Seventh Congressional District, the largest in Louisiana, for ten years, he is thoroughly familiar with every agricultural, mineral and manufacturing interest Louisiana will expect her Senator to safeguard. Has obtained nearly a million dollars for federal improvement work in his district. Has won his way through sheer ability to a commanding position in the House of Representatives. Has always fought for clean, economical government, local, state and national.

Although always a contender for Louisiana interests, he is in LINE WITH DEMOCRATIC POLICIES AND LEADERS IN CONGRESS. "Pujo has always been a favorite of mine and has done exceptionally efficient work in Congress. He has been a bulwark to his state and to his party in all matters of importance before the House.—Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, in an interview at Lake Charles, October 18, 1911.

FAVORS A REVENUE TARIFF.
"I am in favor of a tariff for revenue upon all importations coming in competition with the products of a like kind in the United States equal to the difference in the cost of product in the foreign country plus transportation and the cost of production here."—A. P. Pujo on the tariff at Ruston, July 4, 1911. "The dividing line between a protective tariff and a tariff for revenue only seems to me to be very clearly marked. A revenue tariff can never go above the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, because when it goes above the difference in cost of production at home and abroad it protects the profits of special interests and dams back competition."—Oscar Underwood, Chairman Ways and Means Committee, in an interview in New York World, December 5, 1911.
