SMUGGLER MAKES USE OF LAUNDRYMAN TO MOVE CIGARS.

New Orleans, March 1.—The laundryman, as an innocent agent, played a leading role in an attempt to smuggle eight boxes of cigars past the customs officers yesterday, but the vigilance of a government inspector spoiled the little game, and now Max Oswald, cook on the German steamship Brigavis, is behind prison bars, while a search is being made for the man who, according to Oswald, is really in fault. It was one of the most original schemes to evade the customs laws yet put into execution at this port, say the Federal officials.

The mysterious unknown for whom the energetic search is being made is the man who, according to inspector H. A. Swazey of the custom service by lounging about the wharf where the Brigavis is moored. The act one began when he strolled aboard the vessel. His captain says he was asked for $200 to take him to Germany, and, being refused, went off to ask the steward for a cup of coffee.

Oswald was in the gallery. He also was the possessor of eight boxes of very fine imported cigars, valued at about $50. He can't speak English, but the stranger was evidently conversant with German, for the two struck up a conversation which lasted for an hour or so. Then the mysterious one, who is to this story what the minus quantity is to algebraic science, was necessary to conduct before Commissioner A. H. Browne. Oswald could not speak English, and the captain was told to interpret. The two spoke together several minutes in German, and then the captain turned to Commissioner Browne in disgust.

"He no tell the truth," he accused, and refused to interpret any further. Through another German, Commissioner Browne learned that Oswald declared he had given the cigars to the stranger, and later had devised the scheme to get them ashore without his knowledge. Nevertheless Oswald was committed to the parish prison in default of a $500 bond to await trial.

A feature of the incident was the novel escape the laundry had from losing its horse and wagon. According to the Federal law, had the contraband been placed in the vehicle, it would have been confiscated, and the animal as well. As it is, the establishment loses its bag.

ALFRED LACROIX.

The passing away of Alfred Lacroix, shortly before noon, Wednesday, February 28, 1912, takes from our midst one of the oldest residents of Covington, and one of the best known men in the parish. On March 17 he would have been 91 years of age.

Mr. Lacroix's wonderful constitution permitted him to engage in active employment up to a year or so ago, and he retained his strength to a remarkable degree, but he failed rapidly after the death of his wife, about three months ago, to whom he was very much attached. He was cared for by the loving hands of the family, and his daughters did all they could to take his mind from his grief, but he never recovered his cheerfulness up to the time of his death.

He is survived by three sons, Jules, who is in Oklahoma, and Lucius and Edward, of Covington; five daughters, Mrs. L. Kimble, Mrs. F. Frayle, Mrs. Ophelia Lousset, Mrs. Laura Abney and Mrs. Ruby Hall. He also leaves sixty grandchildren and thirty-one great-grandchildren.

The funeral services took place Thursday from the residence and Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, the Methodist minister, was assisted in the services by Rev. J. M. Williams, of the Presbyterian church. The funeral was largely attended and loving hands laid floral offerings on the casket and on the grave. Interment was made in the Covington cemetery. The pall bearers were Maurice Lacroix, Coleman Lacroix, Richard Lacroix, Emile Lacroix, P. J. Lacroix and Aug. Planche.

RIOT IN CHINA

Peikín, March 1.—A mutiny of Yuan Shi Kai's soldiers began in Peikín at 8 o'clock last night. Many natives have been killed or wounded, but so far as known all foreigners are safe. The legation quarter is crowded, but the missionaries are holding forth in their own compounds. When the outbreak occurred it was estimated 2,000 soldiers took part, but since then the mutineers have been augmented to the large numbers of the police, coolies and loafers. The legations know no reason for the outbreak. The idea is expressed that Yuan Shi Kai's soldiers began the trouble when they learned that he intended to leave the capital for Nanking.

FOREIGN HOMES NOT SPARED. The soldiers are everywhere looting from house to house. They have not spared even foreign residences within one block of the foreign legation quarters.

Fires were started in various sections and territory of more than a mile in area has been burned. This stretches from the forbidden city to the building of the Chinese Foreign Board, where Yuan Shi Kai resides, the flames reaching within half a mile of the legations. The quarters occupied by the Nanking delegates, who came here to notify Premier Yuan of his election, have been burned.

SHELL IN COMPOUND. Much reckless shooting has occurred, and one shell, which fell into the compound of the American legation, tore through the tent of one of the soldiers of the recently-arrived reinforcements, but did not explode.

Among the refugees at the American legation are Willard D. Straight, ex-American consul general at Mukden, and now the representative of a New York financial syndicate, and his wife, who was Miss Dorothy P. Whitney, daughter of the late Mm. C. Whitney, and Daniel A. De Menocal, representative of the international banking corporation at Peikín, and to all of whom had thrilling experiences as they traversed the streets in which Chinese troops were engaged in looting.

STRAIGHT'S HOME LOOTED. The soldiers did not attempt to interfere with them, but there was great danger from flying bullets and fire from the quarter, the American in all directions. Mr. and Mrs. Straight saved their records and valuables, but deserted a richly-furnished house, which was given over to the looters.

The American is the most exposed legation, lying outside the main guard range of the quarter, the American end of Legation street is the only unenclosed section. The legation recently considered putting up barricades, but merely depended on sand bags and barb wire, which has now been more effectively rearranged for defensive purposes.

MISSIONS HAVE RIFLES. The British legation is sending detachments throughout the city to protect British missions. The American commandant, Major Russell, says the American missions are well supplied with rifles and are able to defend themselves.

The Japanese is the only legation without frontage on the Chinese city. Therefore the Japanese detachment is re-enforcing the others and also doing special post service beyond the sand bags.

The Peikín garrison now numbers about 2,000, and it is not anticipated the Chinese will attack the legations, their principal object being pillage.

GUARD IMPERIAL FAMILY. The sight of the soldiers along the legation walls silhouetted against the burning city was an impressive one to-night. The flames illuminated the golden-tiled roofs of the palaces and threw a glare upon the thousands crowding the streets and struggling among themselves for loot they are unable to carry away.

As yet fires have not broken out within the forbidden city, indicating that the Manchú troops are guarding the empress dowager and the empress faithfully.

Foreign soldiers who returned to quarters after service in the streets and fugitives who have arrived describe their experiences as thrilling. Chinese soldiers broke into hundreds of houses. Sometimes they destroyed when informed that the house was the property of foreigners.

DEAD LIE IN STREETS. Only articles of great value were taken. Property of all kinds which had been gathered up in the first attack was cast aside to make room for loot worth more than a divorce. Dead and wounded were lying in the streets.

An English family living opposite the quarters of the Nanking delegates say the place was attacked and set on fire early.

In the opinion of those English people the delegates did not escape. Refugees say the new Waiwui residence of Yuan Shi Kai was safely guarded by loyal troops at midnight, although nearby buildings were burning.

REMAIN IN COMPOUNDS. The American minister, Mr. Calhoun, and Major Russell, at a late hour consulted with the American missions by telephone. All expressed their preference not to leave their own compounds.

The Methodists are within a block of the quarter and can be rescued easily if endangered.

The Young Men's Christian Association members have taken refuge in the American Board compound, where a detachment of American marines re-enforces the missionary garrison.

Freshbyterian mission is in the northernmost corner of the city three miles from the legation quarter. A telephone message informed the legation that the mission people feared to traverse the streets because they were surrounded by mutinous soldiers, who frequently shot through the iron bars of the compound gates. Major Russell offered to send a detachment of troops to remain there for their protection.

AMERICAN FAMILIES MISSING. Two or three American families have not been heard from, but it is presumed no harm has come to them, because foreigners have not been molested.

Occasionally there is a sound of Maxim firing and the booming of heavy guns.

TAKES GIRL TO HIS HOME.

Another Woman Claims to be His Wife. The item gives the following account of the case in Bogalusa:

"He had such beautiful eyes and told such beautiful lies," plaintively sighed Mrs. Maggie Kuhlman, Thursday morning, as she clasped her baby Walter, a bit closer in her arms as she sat in the home of her parents, 712 Spain street. She spoke of her brief married existence with B. J. Kuhlman, J. who, she asserts, married her and then left her with a baby because his mother would rather have him at home with her."

Kuhlman is now in his mother's home at 1723 Euterpe street with Miss Uia Mae Hutson, of Bogalusa, whose father has charged Kuhlman with abduction. A sheriff from Bogalusa is on his way to get Kuhlman and take him back with him, it is said, Thursday morning.

Mrs. Kuhlman also said that Kuhlman had married her with a 10 cent wedding ring.

"I was so ashamed of it," she said "that I went out and bought a wedding ring for $4 and showed my folks that. Why, he told the most wonderful lies I ever heard."

Borrowed Money to Marry. "Just before we were married we were in the Lyric theatre and all of a sudden he said he had lost $40. He never had a cent, but he wanted one hunting for the money. Then he borrowed some money from our family to get married on and we went to Bogalusa to live."

"He didn't treat me right, and twice he threatened to beat me. One day, just before Easter, I told him I wanted to come to New Orleans to see my parents. He said it was all right and that he would send me some money the next day. Instead I got this."

"April 6, 1909. Mrs. B. J. Kuhlman, New Orleans, Louisiana: Dear Maggie:—Just a line to let you know it is all over between you and me. We will part forever. I am leaving to-morrow for Florida. The house is empty. This is all. You know the rest. From BERNARD."

"P. S.—I sent your clothes by express. You can look for them to-morrow."

"He had sold out all the furniture and moved," Mrs. Kuhlman explained. "I have not received a cent from him since. No, we are not divorced. He has never asked me for a divorce. I certainly pity that poor girl."

"A Most Wonderful Lie!" "Do you know he's the most wonderful liar I ever saw. Why, look here's a note written in his own hand, in which he says he has been shot and killed. Read it."

"Miss Maggie Klem (Mrs. Kuhlman's maiden name): 'I suppose you are aware that Bernard was shot last Sunday evening when he got off the train. He died Monday morning and was buried at New Orleans Tuesday. Hoping you will get along all right from a friend that was with him when he died. He asked me to write to you and tell you that you are a free woman now. From a friend. J. R. JA.'"

"I am sending you your letters back. I opened them to see if they were from you so I could write to you and let you know. Pardon me, but he asked me to do this."

"He wrote that letter himself," charged Mrs. Kuhlman smiling.

"Were Employed Together. "How did I meet him?" she repeated. "Why, we were both working in the same place and he said he fell in love with me and he asked mother. She said she didn't know what to do, and then I threatened to run away if she didn't give her consent. She gave her consent. Then we were married."

"Show him the wedding ring he gave you," suggested Mrs. Klem, who was brought into the parlor. Kuhlman's spouse brought forth then a thing of verdigris and rust.

"This is it," she said. "I felt so ashamed of it I went out and bought a wedding ring for $4 and put that on instead."

A CARD OF THANKS.

To the citizens of St. Tammany parish, and especially to those friends who stood so faithfully by me through all the temptations that come to a voter during political strife, I wish to tender my heartfelt thanks. I have been defeated, but the memory of the loyalty of my friends, under circumstances that have caused them to sacrifice self-interest to that friendship, takes the bitterness from defeat and crowns it with a happiness that even victory could not exceed.
