THE CANTALOUPE WORM.

The "cantaloupe worm" is quite general in its distribution over the South, and is a serious pest to the melon industry in many areas on account of the fact that it is a hard form to combat, especially on a commercial scale. Here the melon grower must rely very largely on the fact that if he hurries his melons so that he gets an early-maturing crop, he is not likely to have any great amount of injury. On a small scale, the plan giving best results is to sack the melons when about the size of a hen's egg, and place a small board or clip under them. This, if carefully done, will in no way injure the vine or the melon. The worms are very much more fond of the squash than of the cantaloupe, and if in the same patch as the melons, some rows of summer squashes, a couple in a small patch, are planted, these, maturing ahead of the melons, make a good trap plant. By destroying the squashes which are infested, many of the worms which would affect the cantaloupes are destroyed. The melon patch should be planted as far away as can conveniently be done from the place where it was last year. The earlier the cantaloupes can be secured, the less likely you will be to have injury from the pest. The worms pass the winter in the cocoon stage, about the old melon vines, and deep fall plowing can be used very effectively in turning many of them under.

ANSWER TO QUESTION FROM A READER OF THE SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS.

On the Sunday school lesson for May 19, 1912, by Rev. Dr. Lincoln Lesson, Matt. v. 17-20.—If a man does an outward good deed for the sake of custom, or policy, or to be seen of men, that he would not do from his own choice, how is his deed regarded by God?

Answer: From the teaching of Jesus in this chapter, it would appear that the scribes and Pharisees, while professedly religious men, were actually hypocrites. Their anxiety was not to be good, but to appear to be good by doing outwardly good things, and hiding their real character; this fact suggests the question which I am requested to answer. It is certainly a good thing for children to be trained in good habits, long before they can appreciate motives, and for all men to encourage in themselves habits that are good. Even when a man who does not profess to be a Christian is a man of good habits, and thus follows the custom of really good people, so to speak automatically, this is so far good, but when one does an outward good thing for the sake of deceiving people, or when he would not do the good deed if it were not seen of others, he is of course a hypocrite and is regarded by God in that light. The only goodness which God recognizes is love for our fellows, and the actions which spring from love. The deeds which we do to be seen of men, to be thought well of by them, without any real intention of doing good, but simply to minister to our pride, or profit, are regarded by God as sinful deeds. Deeds which spring from kindness heart, whether seen by others or not, are always approved by the Heavenly Father, and these are the deeds which all men should cultivate.

NINE STITCHES TAKEN IN MAN'S HEART.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 31.—Nine stitches were placed in the heart of John Thompson, a negro, in the Pennsylvania Hospital last night, after that organ had been cut virtually in two. Several similar operations have been successful at that institution, and doctors believe Thompson will recover. The operation was performed by Dr. Mitchell Thompson was hurried to the hospital shortly after he had been stabbed by British Shaw, another negro. Dr. Mitchell had him placed on the operating table, and in less than five minutes had an incision and cawed away portions of three ribs. Laying bare the heart, he quickly sewed up the wound, placing a stitch in the organ when it rose with each pulsation. According to the police, Thompson was stabbed during the fight with Shaw. The wives of the pair quarreled during the day, the police say, and the men took up the fight when they returned last night.
