

LITTLE BITS.

Experience.

Two men got pretty hot in talking about a book. One of them, an author himself, said: "No, John, you simply can't appreciate it; you never wrote a book, you know."

"Huh," retorted John, "and I never laid an egg, but I am a better judge of an omelet than any hen in the state!"

Some fellows don't care what they say, and neither does anybody else.

Not Needed.

While a traveling man was waiting for an opportunity to show his samples to a merchant in a little backwoods town in Missouri, a customer came in and bought a couple of night shirts. Afterwards a long, lank lumberman, with his trousers slung in his boots, said to the merchant:

"What was them 'ere that feller bot?"

"Night shirts. Can I sell you one or two?"

"Naup, I reckon not," said the Missourian. "I don't set around much o' nights."—Lippincott's.

A Little of the Same.

Mrs. Dry Bone—My husband goes out every evening for a little constitutional.

Mrs. Guzzle—Mine don't; he keeps some in the house.

Work is kind to its friends but awfully mean to its enemies.

Falling.

"Yes," said the old man, "I feel my strength falling fast. Used to walk around the block every morning. Now I have to stop half way around and go home. I'm so tired."

Salesmanship—Make the other fellow feel as you do about the goods you have to sell.

Surprise!

A Boston girl visiting in California for the first time, was very much surprised and shocked when some one pointed out a fig tree. "Why, I always thought fig leaves were much larger than that," she said.

Experience is the most costly thing in the world. You pay for it in advance and the purchase price is never refunded. It is necessary, then, to make good use of it.

Something Just as Good.

The merchant had died and his spirit appeared before the Golden Gate.

"What do you want here?" asked St. Peter.

"I'd like to come in," answered the spirit.

"I'm sorry that we can't let you 'nto heaven, but we have something just as good as I can cheerfully recommend."
