

SOAKS CLOTHING WITH OIL, SET FIRE TO THEM.

Wife of Wealthy Lumberman Sacrifices Life in Vain Effort to Save Her Spouse.

Nashville, June 21.—J. L. Carter, a wealthy farmer and lumberman living two miles north of McMinn, Tenn., saturated his clothes with coal oil at 2 o'clock this afternoon and set the fire, dying three hours later. His wife's clothes were set afire when she tried to put out the flames, and she died of her injuries at 6 o'clock this evening.

Mr. Carter and his wife were at home alone this afternoon when the former set himself afire. The flames enveloped him when his wife entered the room and she made desperate efforts to extinguish the fire. She had almost put out the flames when Mr. Carter seized the can of oil and emptied the balance of the contents upon his clothing. The flames sprang up again, and some of the oil which splashed on Mrs. Carter's dress caught afire.

Mrs. Carter's screams attracted George Nesbit, a neighbor, and when he reached the residence he found Mr. Carter lying on the floor, his clothes burned off and his body charred. Mrs. Carter's clothing was burned from her body and she was lying near her husband. The house was burning, but Mr. Nesbit put out the flames before much damage could be done to the structure.

Mr. Carter did not regain consciousness. His wife was conscious for some time after the tragedy and told physicians how she and her husband were burned.

Mr. Carter was one of the wealthiest residents of that section of Humphreys county, being the owner of a large amount of timbered land, a saw mill, and a large farm. One of his sons, Clifford Carter, is a member of the United States army at Vera Cruz.

Pleasure and Protection

"One of the best reasons why I would not be without telephone service," writes a Georgia farmer, "is the pleasure it gives my wife and the knowledge that while I am away, she has the protection that the telephone gives."

On the farm the telephone dispels loneliness and is the means of bringing help in any emergency that may arise.

If you haven't a telephone on your farm see the nearest Bell Telephone Manager or write for our free booklet and learn how little this service costs.
