JUDGE CLAY ELLIOTT.

Judge Clay Elliott, who announces his candidacy for Judge of the Court of Appeals for the Third District, First Circuit of Louisiana, is a native of the parish of St. Tammany, but at a very early age moved to Tangipahoa parish, where he lived until he became of age. In his youth he attended the Gullett Institute at Amite City for about three years, and when it went out of existence he attended the Mississippi College for a short time. Afterwards he graduated from the law department of Tulane University, class of 1888. He then located in Covington, where he lived and practiced law for ten years, during which time he was elected and served as mayor of the town. He was also elected to the senate from the seventeenth senatorial district, serving one term. After moving to Amite City sixteen years ago he was elected Judge of the 25th judicial district and served one term. He has been actively engaged in the practice of law in the five parishes east of the Amite river about twenty-six years, devoting himself industriously and painstakingly to the work of his profession. Mr. Elliott is practically a self-made man, and whatever he has accomplished has been due to his own efforts.
