WHEN EVERYBODY WORKS UNSELFISHLY.

Ambition is a great thing, when freed from the alloy of selfishness. Without it, the simplest task may prove a failure; with it, nothing is too great for accomplishment. But when the ambition to accomplish is ruled solely by a desire for self-prominence, self-advancement or any selfish motive the result is apt to work an injury to some one. While it is difficult to separate ambition entirely from selfishness, yet there is a distinction between the selfish gratification in accomplishing things for the general good and the selfishness that subserves everything to personal promotion. There is little difference between the active selfishness that uses forceful means and the passive selfishness that permits inactivity to accomplish the same thing. Each individual is either a help or a hindrance to the advancement of a community. Now, therefore, if a community is separated into parts, each of which is so wedded to its ambition to excel the other that it passively permits that other to fail in undertakings that might add something to its credit or advantage, there is a passive resistance to the accomplishment of anything in that community that will out weigh all the energy of any one part to better its condition. The result will be just as surely a failure for that community as if each part actively opposed the effort of every other part to rise. The Slidell American makes reference to this matter as follows:

"The Slidell school this year did not take part in the parish fair held at Covington this week. Last year they took part and were highly successful. Why they were not represented this year remains a mystery. No one seems to know exactly except that there was hard feelings created in some way by some one, and that some one is so extremely sore over the matter that school was not there. This it seems to us is extremely childish and would perhaps be expected from the children themselves but not the grown-ups who have charge of their education. The fair was a parish event and why Slidell should not be there and as well represented as any other school simply because some people were peaved over last year's affair does not seem to us to be showing the proper spirit, to say the least."

We wish to be understood as having the success of the whole parish in view, without detriment to any part, and we are referring to the editorial in the Slidell American as applying not only to Slidell but to any other part of the parish that has shouldered the responsibility of inactivity. The fair is for the benefit of the whole parish. It was such a success that it has advertised the parish extensively and will help to advertise the State by some of its exhibits being placed in the Panama Exposition at San Francisco. It was held in Covington because Covington is the county seat, where it is customary for all fairs to be held, and not because Covington claimed precedence over other towns of the parish. Had every other part of the parish held itself aloof from the undertaking, it must have necessarily been a failure, with the result that the effort to uphold the agricultural pursuits of the parish would have been greatly handicapped. One of the greatest attractions to the fair was the school parade. That is, it drew many people to Covington who afterwards attended the fair and contributed to the support that makes it possible to continue these fairs. Every school that entered the parade helped just that much to make the fair a success, and in this connection, a good illustration of the kind of spirit that helps to make all community undertakings successful was the Covington high school's participation in athletic events without hope of victory, being entirely outclassed by St. Paul's trained athletes. This is the spirit that makes for harmony and success, that will build up communities and attract strangers to come into our midst.

St. Tammany parish is making wonderful strides educationally, and everybody will read with pleasure the letter from State Superintendent Harris in the account of the parish fair on the front page, in which he states, "no parish in Louisiana has made greater substantial progress." The remarks of State Farm Demonstrator Harry Wilson, in his speech at the fair, in which he states that not a single parish fair in the State was equal to ours, are equally encouraging. These are things of which we should be proud, and they are evidences of future advancement that must be noticed by the outside world and that will bring us settlers and investors. There were knockers who predicted the failure of the fair, and there were some who only gave it half-hearted support, but we believe that the great success of those who labored so heartily for it will result in the uniting of every section of the parish for the greatest fair of all next year, and the realization of the prediction of Judge Lancaster in his opening address, that the farmers of the parish were coming into their own and would be recognized as the sinew and backbone of our future success.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The school wagon has arrived to be used as a school transfer to convey the children from the Line Graded school neighborhood to the Sun Graded school. These schools were consolidated this year and a transfer put in to take the pupils of the Line Graded to the Sun school. We are now advertising for bids for a new four-room house to be built for this new consolidated school. Until this house is built the old Sun house is being used. A petition has been put in one of the old rooms to make a new room for the third teacher made necessary by the above mentioned consolidation. E. E. LYON, Supt.

SLIDELL HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Monday morning the Slidell band, the teachers and pupils assembled at the station to await the arrival of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' from New Orleans. The Boosters were met at Salmen by the citizens of Slidell and conveyed in automobiles to the station. Very interesting talks were made by Mayor Martin Behrman of New Orleans, Mr. C. M. Liddle of Slidell, and others. Many favorable comments were heard on the hats and ties made of cotton worn by the Boosters. The music by the Slidell High School Band and the band accompanying the Boosters added to the pleasure of the occasion. Saturday, at Picayune, Miss., the Slidell high school basketball team won the game over Picayune by a score of 17 to 4. The girls of the high school department will sell candy Friday and Saturday afternoons. The proceeds will be used in buying music for the school. A very interesting Thanksgiving program is being prepared. The pupils enrolled this week are: Mary Keyser in the third grade, Mattie Belle Smith and Lillie Keyser in the second grade. The boys' basketball team will play a double-header with Picayune team at the baseball park in Slidell this coming Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The visitors have a "crack" team, so two good contests are eagerly looked for. Miss Ella Scogin is back at her place of duty, as teacher of the third grade, after an absence of three days in Georgia, having been called there on account of illness.

We do use a good deal of caution in placing our loans, which we think is right and proper in order to protect the depositors, but there is never a time when our customers cannot come to us and get aid when their propositions are reasonable. The reasonableness of the proposition is passed on by our loan committee.
