DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Charter of A. V. SMITH, INC. United States of America, State of Louisiana, Parish of St. Tammany.

Be it known that on this the 14th day of October, A. D., 1914, before me, Robert L. Aubert, a Notary Public, duly qualified, in and for the parish of St. Tammany, State of Louisiana, therein residing, personally came and appeared the persons whose names are hereunto subscribed, and declared that they and any other persons who may hereafter join or become associated with them, had formed themselves into a corporation, in accordance with the laws of the State of Louisiana, for a period of ninety-nine years from this date, under the name of A. V. Smith Company, Inc., the domicile whereof shall be in the town of Covington, parish of St. Tammany, State of Louisiana, and the purposes whereof shall be to handle incidental to said business a line of general merchandise, as may be deemed necessary.

No stockholder shall be liable for any of the debts or obligations of said company, except to the amount that may be due by each stockholder for the unpaid balance of his subscription to the stock of said company. Citation and other process shall be served upon the president, or in his absence the vice president, or the secretary-treasurer.

The capital stock shall be six thousand ($6,000.00) dollars, divided into sixty (60) shares of one hundred ($100.00) dollars each. The corporation shall begin business as soon as three thousand ($3,000.00) dollars shall have been subscribed for and paid in. The affairs of the corporation shall be managed by the Board of Directors, composed of three stockholders, to be elected annually by ballot at a stockholders meeting to be held on the first Monday in October of each year, excepting that for the present year the following stockholders shall constitute the Board of Directors: James M. Walker, New Orleans, La.; Joseph Delery, Covington, La., and A. V. Smith, Covington, La., of whom James M. Walker shall be president, Joseph Delery vice president, and A. V. Smith secretary and treasurer. Succeeding Boards of Directors shall elect officers from among their number.

Stockholders meetings may be held when ordered by the Board of Directors or the holders of twenty-five per cent of the outstanding stock. Notice of all stockholders meetings, other than adjourned meetings, shall be given by written notice to each stockholder and deposited in post office, properly addressed, at least fifteen days before such meeting. This charter may be amended or this corporation dissolved by a two-thirds vote of the outstanding stock at a meeting called by the Board of Directors, after having given notice to each stockholder, in writing, stating the purpose for which said meeting is called, and deposited in post-office, properly addressed, at least fifteen days before such meeting. In case of dissolution the Board of Directors shall act as liquidators. The Board of Directors shall have power to adopt by-laws for the general management of the affairs of the corporation and can amend same at their pleasure. The corporation shall enjoy all rights and privileges granted by law to corporations and shall use a corporate seal. Thus done and passed at my office on the day, month and year first above written, in the presence of W. H. Kentzel and M. Nielson, competent witnesses, who have signed with said applicants, and me, said Notary, after due reading of the whole.

Jas. M. Walker, 3301 Canal street, New Orleans, La., 10 shares. Jos. Delery, Covington, La., 10 shares. A. V. Smith, Covington, La., 10 shares.

WITNESSES: W. H. Kentzel, M. Nielson, ROBERT L. AUBERT, Notary Public.

A true copy. ROBERT L. AUBERT, Notary Public. I certify that this instrument was filed for record October 23, 1914, recorded October 23, 1914, in Charter Book No. 1, page 44, of the official records.

The Adventures of Kathlyn

By Harold MacGrath

"You talk like that to me?" furiously. "Even so. Shall I go out on the balcony and declare that I know what a certain dungeon holds?" Umballa's fury vanished, and sweat oozed from his palms. "You?" "Yes, I know. A truce! The people are muttering and murmuring against you because they were forbidden to attend your especial Juggernaut. Best for both of us that they be quieted and amused."

Kathlyn Disguised as a Bear Tamer. What with Ahmed's disclosures and Kathlyn's advice she knew that she was nothing more than a helpless pawn in this oriental game of chess. At any moment she might be removed from the board.

She became tense again. She heard the slipper of sandals in the corridor, a key turned in the lock. The door opened, and in the dim light she saw Umballa.

He stood by the door, silently contemplating her. "What a certain dungeon holds!" still eddied through the current of his thoughts. Money, money! He needed it; it was the only barrier between him and the end, which at last he began to see. Money, baskets and bags of it, and he dared not go near. May the fires of hell burn eternally in the bones of these greedy soldiers, his only hope!

His body ached; liquid fire seemed to have taken the place of blood in his veins. His back and shoulders were a mass of bruises. Beaten with a gun butt, driven, harried, cursed—be, Durga Ram! A gun butt in the hands of a low caste! He had not only been beaten; he had been dishonored and defiled. His eyes flashed and his fingers closed convulsively, but he was sober. To take yonder white throat in his hands! It was true; he dared not harm a hair of her head!

"Your sister Kathlyn perished under the wheels of the car of Juggernaut." Winnie did not stir. The aspect of the man fascinated her as the nearness of a cobra would have done. Vipers not only crawled in this terrible land; they walked. One stung with fangs and the other with words.

"She is dead, and tomorrow your father dies."

The disheveled appearance of the man did not in her eyes confirm this. Indeed, the longer she gazed at him the more strongly convinced she became that he was lying. But wisely she maintained her silence.

"Dead," he repeated. "Within a week you shall be my wife. You know. They have told you. I want money, and by all the gods of Hind, yours shall be the hand to give it to me. Marry me, and one week after I will give you the means of leaving Allah. Will you marry me?"

"Yes." The word slipped over Winnie's lips faintly. She recalled Ahmed's advice; to humor the man, to play for time; but she knew that if he touched her she must scream.

"Keep that word. Your father and sister are fools."

Winnie trembled. They were alive, Kit and her father; this man had lied. Alive! O, she would not be afraid of any ordeal now. They were alive, and more than that, they were free.

"I will keep my word when the time comes," she replied clearly.

"They are calling me Durga Ram the Mad. Beware, then, for madmen do mad things."

The door opened and shut behind him, and she heard the key turn and the outside bolt click into its socket. They were alive and free, her loved ones! She knelt upon the cushions, her eyes uplifted.

Alone with a torch in his shaking hand, Umballa went down into the prison, to the row of dungeons. In the door of one was a sliding panel. He pulled this back and peered within. Something lay hidden in a corner. He drew the panel back into its place, climbed the worn steps, extinguished the torch, and proceeded to his own home, a gift of his former master, standing just outside the royal confines. Once there, he had slaves anoint his bruised back and shoulders with unguents, ordered his peg, drank it, and lay down to sleep.

On the morrow he was somewhat daunted upon meeting Ramabal in the corridor leading to the throne room, where Winnie and the Council were gathered. He started to summon the guards, but the impressive face of his enemy and the menacing hand stayed the call.

"You are a brave man, Ramabal, to enter the lion's den in this fashion. You shall never leave here alive."

"Yes, Durga Ram. I shall depart as I came, a free man."

Ramabal turned and began to walk toward the window opening out upon the balcony; but Umballa bounded after him, realizing that Ramabal would go as he threatened, declare from the balcony what he knew.

"Wait! A truce for 48 hours." "Agreed. I have a proposition to make before you and the Council. Let us go in."

Before the Council (started as had Umballa been at Ramabal's appearance) he explained his plan for the pacification and amusement of the people. Umballa tried to find flaws in it; but his brain, befuddled by numerous pegs and disappointments, saw nothing. And when Ramabal produced his traps of wild animal trainers not even Winnie recognized them. But during the argument between Umballa and the Council as to the date of the festivities Kathlyn raised the corner of her veil. It was enough for Winnie. In the last few days she had learned self-control; and there was scarcely a sign that she saw Kit and her father, and they had the courage to come here in their efforts to rescue her!

It was finally arranged to give the exhibition the next day, and messengers were dispatched forthwith to notify the city and the bazaars. A dozen times Umballa eyed Ramabal's back, murder in his mind and fear in his heart. Blind fool that he had been not to have seen this man in his true light and killed him. Now, if he hired assassins, he could not trust them; his purse was again empty.

Ramabal must have felt the gaze, for once he turned and caught the eye of Umballa, approached and whispered:

"Winnie insists on joining her sister in the Arena."

pered: "Durga Ram, wherever I go I am followed by watchers who would die for me. Do not waste your money on hired assassins."

As the so-called trainers were departing Kathlyn managed to drop at Winnie's feet a little ball of paper which the young sister maneuvered to secure without being observed. She was advised to have no fear of the lions in the arena, to be ready to join Kathlyn in the arena when she signified the moment. Winnie would have entered a den of tigers had Kathlyn so advised her.

Matters came to pass as Ramabal had planned: the night work in the arena, the clearing of the tunnel, the making of the trap, the perfecting of all the details of escape. Ahmed would be given charge of the exit, Lal Singh of the road, and All (Bruce's man) would arrange that outside the city there should be no barriers. All because Ramabal thought more of his conscience than of his ambitions for Pundita.

And when, late in the afternoon, the exhibition was over, Kathlyn stepped upon the trap, threw aside her veil, and revealed herself to the spectators. For all her darkened skin they recognized her, and a deep murmur ran round the arena. Kathlyn, knowing how volatile the people were, extended her hands toward the royal box. When the murmurs died away she spoke in Hindustani:

"I will face the arena lions!" The murmurs rose again, gaining such volume that they became roars, which the disturbed beasts took up and augmented.

Again Kathlyn made a sign for silence, and added: "Provided my sister stands at my side!"

To this Umballa said no. The multitudes shouted defiance. In the arena they were masters, even as the populace in the old days of Rome were masters of their emperors.

Winnie, comprehending that this was her cue, stepped forward in the box and signified by gestures that she would join her sister.

The roaring began again, but this time it had the quality of cheers. A real spectacle! To face the savage African lions unarmed! A fine spectacle!

Winnie was lowered from the box, and as her feet touched the ground she ran quickly to Kathlyn's side.

"Winnie, I am standing on a trap. When it sinks be not alarmed."

"My Kit!" cried Winnie, squeezing her adored sister's hand.

The arena was cleared, and the doors to the lions' dens were opened. The great maned African lion stood for a moment blinking in the sunshine. One of them roared out his displeasure, and saw the two women. Then all of them leaped toward what they supposed were to be their victims.

That night in the bazaars they said that Umballa was wearing in the face of the gods. The erstwhile white queen of the yellow hair was truly a great magician. For did she not cause the earth to open up and swallow her sister and herself?

THE PATRIOTIC DOLLAR

CONGRESS DECREES DOLLARS INCLUDING IN LUXURIES MUST FIRST SALUTE THE FLAG.

War Revenue Tax of $100,000,000 Levied—Bear Brunt of Burden.

Congress has levied a war tax of $100,000,000 to offset a similar amount of loss on import revenue due to the European disturbances and of this amount beer is the heaviest contributor, having been assessed approximately $50,000,000; a stamp tax on negotiable instruments, it is estimated, will yield $21,000,000; a tax on the capital stock of banks of $4,200,000 and a tax on tobacco, perfumes, theater tickets, etc., makes the remainder.

Congress has decreed that the brewer, the banker and the investor must shoulder the musket and march to the front; that nobody who would add to her beauty must first tip Uncle Sam, and a dollar that seeks pleasure must first salute the flag; that Pleasure and Profit—the twin heroes of many wars—shall fight the nation's battles and by an ingeniously arranged schedule of taxation congress has shifted the war budget from the shoulders of Necessity to those of Choice and Gain, touching in its various ramifications almost every line of business.

All hail the dollar that bleeds for its country; that bares its breast to the fortunes of war and risks its life to preserve the stability and integrity of the nation's credit.

The market place has always been a favorite stand for war revenue collectors. The trader is a great financial patriot. His dollar is the first to rally around the star-spangled banner and the last to hear the ood of the dove of peace. He is called upon to buy cannon; to feed and clothe the boys in blue and each month cheer their hearts with the coin of the realm. Men can neither be free nor brave without food and ammunition, and money is as important a factor in war as blood. Many monuments have been erected in honor of heroes slain in battles, poems have been written eulogizing their noble deeds and the nation honors its soldiers while they live and places a monument upon their graves when they die, but very little has been said of the dollar that bears the burdens of war.

Honor to the Dollar that bears the Burdens of War.

All honor to the dollar that answers the call to arms and, when the battle is over, bandages the wounds of stricken soldiers, lays a wreath upon the graves of fallen heroes and cares for the widows and orphans.

All honor to those who contribute to the necessities and administer to the comforts of the boys who are marching; cool the fever of afflicted soldiers and kneel with the cross beside dying heroes.

A dollar may fight its competitor in business, industries may struggle for supremacy in trade and occupations may vie each other with envy or suspicion, but when the bugle calls they bury strife and rally around the flag, companions and friends, mess mates and chums, all fighting for one flag, one cause and one country.

The luxuries in life have always been the great burden-bearers in government. We will mention a few of them giving the annual contributions to the nation's treasury: Liquor, $250,000,000; tobacco, $102,000,000; sugar, $54,000,000; silks, $15,500,000; diamonds, $3,837,000; millinery, $2,475,000; furs, $2,024,000 and automobiles, $870,000. We collect $465,000,000 of internal and custom revenue annually and $450,000,000 of this amount classifies as luxuries, and to this amount, we should add the $100,000,000 war tax now levied.

The war tax is immediately effective. Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! The industries are marching $100,000,000 strong and beneath the starry flag they will fill the treasury again while they about, "Hurrah for Uncle Sam!"

In every field of human activity the demand for more competent men and women is growing every day. Education is the key to success.

Colds should be "kipped in the bud", for if allowed to run unchecked, serious results may follow. Numerous cases of consumption, pneumonia, and other fatal diseases, can be traced back to a cold. At the first sign of a cold, protect yourself by thoroughly cleansing your system with a few doses of THEOFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT the old reliable, vegetable liver powder. Mr. Chas. A. Ragland, of Madison Heights, Va., says: "I have been using Theoford's Black-Draught for stomach troubles, indigestion, and colds, and find it to be the very best medicine I ever used. It makes an old man feel like a young one." Insist on Theoford's, the original and genuine. E-67
