St. Tammany and West

(By Whitaker Riggs)
 Editor St. Tammany Farmer:
 Always having had a full-grown desire to see the Golden West which I had heard and read so much of; the wonderful West that boasts of its wonderful mountain scenery with its rapid mountain streams, waterfalls and quiet, clear lakes, so deep that oftentimes one cannot sound the bottom; the Golden West that takes its name from the rich gold and silver mines and beautiful sunsets; the Golden West that boasts of the giant trees, and of its fruit, vegetables and grain that is claimed to be the finest in the land; and thousands upon thousands of other wonderful things too numerous to mention. This was the land that I had longed to see, and was fortunate enough to have had an opportunity to pay a flying visit to during this past summer.

I got a fairly good bird's eye view of the most of the country lying west of the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast, and from Old Mexico to Canada, and into Canada some two thousand miles. After returning home and reflecting over what I had seen and heard, I could not help but thank God that I had the privilege of living in St. Tammany parish—St. Tammany parish with its so-called poor lands and pine stamps, and I will venture to say that if the natives of this parish had been with me on this journey, for upwards of eleven thousand miles, and had seen and heard what I had, that 90 per cent of them would offer up the same prayer of thanks. The people would then create among themselves a new spirit regarding their home parish, a spirit of love and pride for every inch of it.

Not for one moment do I attempt to compare our parish with that wonderful West, and some parts of the North, insofar as grandeur and scenery is concerned, nor do I attempt to claim any advantages from a human point of view, but I do so honestly believing, that from an agricultural view our country will compare favorably with the best agricultural lands that I saw in my travels, and it is so far ahead of thousands upon thousands of other farmlands that are held at prices ranging from $50 to $200 per acre that in my mind there is no comparison.

In some of the valleys of the West where water right privileges are to be had, the crops, to say the least, are beautiful, especially the fruit. But when taking into consideration the thousands of dollars that it must have cost to convey this water for irrigation purposes from the mountains, and the cost to maintain and keep up this system, if the same amount of labor and cost were expended upon our lands, I feel safe in saying that beyond all question ours would prove a more profitable investment.

The people in the West are a unit in constantly boosting their country and they will gladly tell you of the advantages that the country holds out as an inducement. They also appreciate the benefit to be had by advertising. One can hardly pick up a magazine that does not have a picture or two of some of the beautiful scenery or an article of the wonderful west. The railroads and government have spent millions upon millions of dollars in cultivating these regions, and in taking into consideration and comparing it with the misery, petty sum that has been expended in our parish in advancing the agricultural industry, one can readily see and understand why we have not advanced any further than we are, and what a difference it would make had our lands had the same attention that those of the San Joaquin Valley and other noted agricultural valleys of the West.

In speaking of cut-over lands among ourselves, there is always present to us the scarecrow, namely, the pine stamp. This is such an insignificant drawback to our lands in comparison with some of the magnificent lands of Canada, that sell anywhere from $15 to $25 per acre, that before it can be cultivated must be cleared by the farmer of tons of rock at a cost very much greater than that required to re-ove pine stumps. And after it is in a condition for cultivation then the climatic conditions have to be reckoned with, and these conditions consume practically one-half of the year with no production. While our climatic conditions permit us to utilize the ground practically every minute of the year.

One has to travel and see what others are confronted with to appreciate this land of milk and honey that we live in.
 Mr. Editor, I am writing you these few lines hoping that they will eliminate from the hearts of our St. Tammany parish people any discouragement that they might harbor within them regarding the disadvantages of these lands. The disadvantages here are so minute that they should never be taken into consideration. Let the farmer till the soil as nature intended it should be tilled, and believe me, nature will do the rest. There is no reason why, if this is followed out intelligently, every farmer in our parish within a few years should not have a handsome bank account to fall back upon in the hour of rain.

THE NEXT BEST THING TO THE PINE FOREST FOR COLDS
 Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey which goes to the very root of cold troubles, clears the throat and eases relief from that clogged and stuffed feeling. The pine have ever been the friend of man in driving away colds. Moreover, the pine-honey qualities are peculiarly effective in fighting children's colds. Remember that a cold broken at the start greatly removes the possibility of complications. 25c.

NEGRO KILLED BY NIGHT MARSHAL BROOM, SLIDELL

Thursday night, at 7:30 o'clock, in May's Quarters, Slidell, in one of the rooms occupied by a woman called Lucy Boyd, a negro was shot and killed by Luke Broom, night marshal. Boyd was living with Lucy, who had a daughter 14 years of age. Boyd had had a quarrel with Lucy last Saturday and left her. He returned Thursday evening about 7:30 when the Boyd woman and the child were preparing to go to bed. He knocked on the door and when the child opened the door Boyd walked in. The woman asked him what he wanted; that she thought they had finished with one another. The child, who had been the victim of many beatings from Boyd, ran next door and requested a little negro named Lemons to go with her for office Luke Broom. Broom came back with the children, who pointed out the house to him. When he entered the room he found Boyd and another daughter of Lucy, 20 years of age, and a negro man named Coleman.

Broom told Boyd he was under arrest and to come along with him. Boyd refused to go. Boyd is the same negro who told Marabal Elliot two weeks ago while under arrest that if he had anything to defend himself with he would not go to jail. On Broom making the third request Boyd started for the rear of the room where there was a bed and a small table with a lighted lamp on it. When he reached the rear of the room he blew the lamp out and started toward Officer Broom. In the struggle that followed Broom shot him three times, killing him instantly. Coroner Heintz will adjudge and the jury brought in a verdict of justifiable homicide.
