AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS. In Serbia.

As far back as the first winter of the war, the Red Cross sent to Serbia a sanitary commission that effectively checked the scourge of typhus, but after the United States entered the conflict, the Red Cross was able, in August, 1917, to send a full commission that carried on extensive relief operations among the suffering refugees of the tortured nation. Hospitals were established, the refugees fed, clothed and given medical attention, the army supplied with much needed dental treatment, farm machinery, and seeds provided to help the Serbs redeem their land to productivity, and, not least, measures undertaken for the succor of the children. The terrible condition into which these helpless victims of the war had fallen is well portrayed by this photograph of a little Serbian girl wearing the rags and expression of hopeless dismay that were all she possessed when the Red Cross came.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS. At Saloniki.

The veritable mountains of relief supplies turned out by the millions of chapter workers during the war made the American Red Cross one of the biggest "manufacturing concerns" in the world, with great warehouse space at scores of strategic points all around the globe.
 One of the biggest distribution centers was at Saloniki, Greece, and in this picture Bulgarian prisoners of war are seen there unloading a Red Cross cargo of 2,300 boxes from a French transport. At the right is seen one of the American Red Cross camions, fleets of which were used in rushing relief to points where the suffering was greatest.

MRS. GRAHAM SPEAKS OF THE HOME SERVICE.

 community betterment along health and social service lines, or, shall the chapters of this great organization, because of the lack of vision of its members, be allowed to dwindle into nothingness when all war work is completed and the chapter funds and charter revert to the National organization? This latter has already happened once in my territory of twenty chapters, and I feel that the parish where this happened has taken a great step backward and thwarted its own progress, because better living conditions, better health, wholesome recreation, means a happy, prosperous people, and a parish moving forward in industrial development.
 May community health, social welfare and recreation be fostered by the Red Cross? Most assuredly so.
 The National Organization has decreed that chapters may now direct their interest, their plans and their funds toward community problems, provided work with the families of the men in the service, or the men themselves, are not neglected.
 This is the biggest opportunity that has come to any parish here before, because the Red Cross has the largest membership of any organization in the parish; because it has funds, or will have, for financing the work; because of the work done in the past it has gained the confidence of the people; because of its popular appeal and broadly non-sectarian work free from the guise of charity; because it is in most instances the only organization in the territory equipped to do welfare work with one or more trained workers, and, lastly, because the need for community work is ever present.
 No parish or county is so developed that there is not opportunity and need for social welfare work. There are always destitute and abandoned children, stranded and cheerless parents to be assisted and encouraged, wayward juveniles to be provided for and again started toward self-supporting, self-respecting manhood and womanhood. Proper living conditions to be encouraged, and ill-health reduced to a negligible quantity. The trend of this work being ultimately a normal family in every home.
 Another phase of the peace-time program is the health work. This activity in a chapter is in charge of a Public Health Nurse, who is a graduate of a reputable hospital and registered in the state in which she is employed. She gives instruction in the care and feeding of infants, nursing of the sick, precautions to be taken to prevent the spread of contagious and infectious disease, assists with the examination of school children, and in general puts on a campaign for better health conditions in the chapter territory.
 Recreational work is being considered by many chapters. In all of them there is need of it. In many small towns there is need of it. In many small towns there is no community center, no wholesome recreation offered. In remote rural districts young people are leaving home and seeking the city because of the monotony of country life. Where provision is not made by some other agency for the handling of this much needed work it is a perfectly proper chapter activity.
 The peace-time program is full, or in part has been put on in more chapters in the Gulf Division than in any other of the fourteen divisions. This is something for the South to be proud of, and to strive to maintain at its highest type of efficiency.
