SETTING GALVANIZED STEEL CORNER AND END POSTS

After the ground has been thoroughly leveled so that the bottom of the fence shall rest snugly against the ground at the lowest points, the next step is to dig holes for end posts and corner posts. Under ordinary conditions, with soil fairly firm and not too wet, the hole for the galvanized steel end post may be in size 18 by 20 inches, the longer dimension being parallel with the fence line. Set the post not less than three feet deep, or even deeper, if the post will admit being more than three feet in the ground, while leaving enough above ground to carry the fence.

Corner posts under normal conditions, require a hole whose dimensions are 20 by 20 inches, and not less than three feet deep.

Posts should not extend above the top wire of the fence more than two inches. After digging the hole for the end post, make a mark on the post to show how far the posts should be set in the ground. That is, leave enough of the post out of the ground to take the entire width of the fence and two inches more at the top.

Put the post in the middle of the hole and fill the hole with concrete. Level with the surface of the ground, making sure the mark on the post is level with the surface.

Be certain that the bottom of the post hole is larger than the top of the hole, which will keep the concrete block from pulling out.

Steel end posts should be provided with a brace rod. Without disturbing the concrete about the end post, slip the brace over the brace connection, rest the end of the brace on the ground and make a mark two or three inches nearer the post than the end of the brace. This mark will be the end of the brace block hole next to the post. Dig another hole 18 by 20 inches deep or a little bigger and a little deeper, if the ground is soft and yielding. This is important because this brace block must be made solid to withstand the heavy pressure, as it carries practically all the strain.

After digging this hole, fill it with concrete, level with the surface of the ground, attach the brace to the post connection, attach the brace foot, and press down in the concrete until it is buried two or three inches below the surface; then let it alone until thoroughly set.

The brace collar should be placed about 14 inches from the top of the post and the nut turned up very tight. The collar must not slip. Do not begin stretching your fence wire until the concrete is perfectly set and hard.

beyond the unpaid balance, if any, of his stock.

In case of dissolution or termination of its charter or from any other cause, the liquidation of its affairs shall be conducted by three (3) liquidators selected from the stockholders of the company by a majority of the votes cast at a meeting called for that purpose after notice shall have been given, as provided in Article IV hereof for the election of directors. Said liquidators shall remain in office until the affairs of the said corporation have been fully liquidated. In case of the death of one or more of said liquidators, the survivor or survivors shall continue to act.

POULTRY BREEDING.
Conditions in St. Tammany Fine for This Industry.

(By C. M. Brown)
I have settled in Covington, at my home, 1620 15th avenue, for keeps. I honestly believe that for man, beast and fowl there is no healthier spot on God's green earth—the government of this country says so, hence it must be absolutely true. Lots of people in this world have this truth to learn, and well placed and judicious advertising is going to turn the trick. Covington, instead of having a population of 4,000, should have 25,000. Thousands of New Orleans people go north in summer to escape the heat and find themselves in the most disagreeable, sultry weather imaginable—a furnace, in fact. This place should be full of tourists summer and winter, and the time is coming when northern people will find this town the greatest summer and winter resort in the world, but buildings to accommodate them will have to be erected and conducted on the Rest Cure Home plan. But more in this regard later.

I began this paper with the idea of writing about and elucidating poultry conditions in this parish. I have started a poultry ranch as a secondary consideration to my residence here, for pleasure as well as profit, for there is a good margin of profit in breeding poultry if conducted on business lines, which means that thoroughbred stock, no matter what breed, should be raised. Select your breed (there are many varieties) and select the best from the best breeders and make your start, and don't delay.

Conditions in this parish for raising poultry are the best in the world. The ozone in the atmosphere and the mineral water keep the poultry in a natural and healthy condition, combined with cleanliness on your part. Despite the very wet season I have not had a sick chicken in my flock of Single Comb Reds. In most parts of the country all flocks are subject to colic, roup and sore head, the prevalent chicken diseases nearly everywhere.

Every farmer in this parish should quit raising the dung-hill, or mixed breeds, as they only bring so much per pound on the market. The demand for thoroughbred chickens is unlimited and the wants of breeders never filled, and at twice the prices offered on the consumers market. It costs no more to raise the thoroughbred than it does the dung-hill, and it does not cost but little, compared with the returns, to let the poultry world know that you have some fine stock for sale at living prices.

The government advises you to get into the swim of raising standard bred poultry. Why not? There's money in it, and there's pleasure in exhibiting your chickens at your local fairs, even if you do not carry off all the prizes, and you won't do that as your neighbors have an eye on some of them and will top their share of the ribbons.

October 16th this parish opens a fair and poultry show. Although just starting this year I shall have a few birds on exhibition just to let the good people of the parish know I am in the swim, not that I expect to win any ribbons—my stock is too young and immature—or will be on that date as they (the birds I will show) were late hatched, but the idea is to show them anyway and help the fair along. I trust to find many breeders of the "fancy" at the show in October.

Try the Farmer's want ad column. It will bring you the best of results when in need of anything.
