Quite a number of young people were present.

BARNES—FENDLASON.

In the presence of immediate relatives and a few friends, on Sunday, January 30, 1921, at 1 p. m., Miss Vera Edna Fendlason and Robert R. Barnes were united in marriage, at the home of the bride's parents at Amite City, La., Rev. H. B. Williams, of the Laurel Street Baptist Church officiating.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. Geo. M. Fendlason, who recently moved to Amite from Covington. The groom is a promising young business man of Columbia, Miss.

After the ceremony was performed and congratulations extended the guests were served with dainty refreshments.

The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly presents. They will make their home in Columbia, Miss.

MADISONVILLE MOVIES FROM REAL LIFE.

(By Prof. Roland Morgan)

If the revolutions keep up in Ireland it seems the United States will face a shortage of policemen.

Madisonville must be some ancient town judging from a letter I found in an old deserted mansion yesterday. It was written in Genoa, Italy, by Christopher Columbus, and addressed to his brother at Madisonville, La., stating that he (Christopher) expected to leave Genoa at an early date for Madisonville. Very sorry I lost the letter, but I can't help it.

Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight; let the barrooms open en again just for one night.

According to the ingredients in the stuff the revenue off-sets found in that Chinese laundry sounds like chop-suey.

Paul Pollicar presuming that planting paid plentiful profits and pleasant pastime proceeded to produce by plowing the pleasure park and planting potatoes, peaches, pears, peanuts, popcorn, pomgranites, persimmons and pop-eyed peas.

Last week while suffering from prohibitionitis (the new disease), Leander Liquorhead went to the medicine chest and in the dark took the wrong bottle and drank about five fingers of Herpicide and whiskers sprouted in his throat and tickled him so that he laughed himself to death, but his wife is consoled, saying poor Leander died with a smile.
