

one settler—a hardy pioneer, on the very verge of civilization. After leaving this place, they crossed the Chippeway river, the timber gradually growing scarcer as they proceeded, and the prairie larger. Passing Pomme de Tay, around which there are some beautiful rolling prairies, interspersed with numerous lovely little emerald lakes, all abounding in delicious fish, over which the tall grass waves to the breeze like the ocean to the trade winds, they came to Lightening Lake, around which there is very superior farming land, with fringing skirts of timber; then by Sioux Wood River, fourteen miles further on. Here they found a country truly beautiful, with a scenery worthy of the painter's effort and the pilgrim's quest. They crossed this river with ponton boats, and next day camped at Graham's Point, on the western bank of the Red River of the North, and at the supposed head of steamboat navigation of that river. This is destined to be an important point. Three days' travel brought them to Wild Rice River, which runs into Red River from the west. Here, in the unbroken solitude of the wilderness, they buried one of their comrades, who had died with the brain fever—a private in one of their companies. His name was Towns. The next stream they passed on their road northward was the Shyanna Ojib; they crossed by building a temporary bridge. Thence eighteen miles to Maple River, where timber became more plenty and the land excellent. Thence they travelled 54 miles to Goose River, where they killed their first buffalo. Their guide broke down his horse in chasing the same, and had to abandon him; but subsequently had the good fortune to get him. Along here they encountered more or less buffalo every day. On the 27th of August they arrived at Minni Waken, or Devil's Lake, a large salt water lake, surrounded with poor land destitute of timber and scant of vegetation. Along here they travelled four days without wood. Ninety miles brought them to St. Joseph, on the Pembina River, which is the new town built since the great freshets in Red River, and is situated on an eminence on the bank of the Pembina, thirty miles above its confluence with Red River, where, in the low bottom subject to overflow, stands the old, half-breed town of Pembina. St. Joseph contains about two hundred poorly built houses, a Catholic chapel, and fifteen hundred French and Cree half-breeds. They next proceeded to Pembina, which was the furthest point reached by the expedition. This town is situated about a mile and a half south of the British and American boundary line. It is in order to obtain access to a country claimed to be as well adapted to settlement as any other described in the Hudson's Bay Company's monopoly, against the motion, we understand, will be made at the approaching session of the Provincial Parliament, to petition the Home Government for its abolition. The stream of wealth which would flow in upon the Canada, if settlers as enterprising as those of Kansas and Minnesota should people it, would overflow upon us. It seems almost wild to dream of this vast region, now nothing but a hunting-ground, as inhabited by an intelligent and prosperous population; but in the history of American emigration the Biblical figure is reversed, and "one day is as a thousand years." The magnificent scheme of railroads which now thread through the Province, the new Canadian cities which rival their own in the Aladdin like rapidity with which they grow, the perpetual increase of trade, and the general spirit of enterprise which ferments along the shores of the great lakes, are presages of a Northern civilization which shall put to shame the South.—Boston Atlas.

Resolutions of the Native Hawaiian Agricultural Society. [PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.] WHEREAS, It is evident that one very great obstacle to the progress of agriculture on the Islands, is the depredations of beasts, principally cattle and horses; and whereas, the grazing interests are very important, and should be protected; and whereas, our laws hitherto have failed to preserve these two great interests from interfering with one another: Therefore, Resolved, That this Society offer a premium of $50 for the best essay on the best method of protecting our agriculture from the incursions of beasts; so as at the same time not to interfere with the grazing interests; but on the contrary, encourage the raising of the best kinds of stock; the essay to be accompanied with the draft of a bill to be submitted to the next legislature. Resolved, That three judges be appointed to attend to the details of this matter, and decide which essay shall have the premium. The Hon. G. M. Robertson, the Hon. J. H. and Rev. R. Armstrong were appointed as judges. His Majesty's Consul General in Great Britain has forwarded the copy of a dispatch in which the following passage occurs: "FOREIGN OFFICE, November 17th, 1856. "SIR—I am directed by the Earl of Clarendon to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th inst., with its enclosures, announcing the marriage of His Majesty, King Kamehameha IV.; and I am to express to you the great satisfaction with which Her Majesty's Government have learned that event, and their hope that it will contribute to the King's domestic happiness and to the prosperity of his kingdom." [Published by order of the Privy Council.] HONOLULU, Dec. 24th, 1856. To his Highness, the Minister of the Interior: Through your Excellency the undersigned begs to make known the following Resolution of the Fort Street Church and congregation, adopted at its meeting last evening: WHEREAS, The Hawaiian Government has kindly extended to this Church and Society the use of the Court House as a place of public worship for so long a period, and feeling truly grateful for the important service it has thus rendered us, and our cause, therefore: Resolved, That we hereby express and tender to the Government our sincere thanks for its generosity in having afforded us a place of public worship for so good a time gratuitously. From minutes of the meeting. W. GOODALE, Sec'y.

The following passage occurs in the reported speech of Mr. Crook, U. S. Consul at Port Mouton, and was delivered at a Banquet given by the Mayor and Corporation of the place mentioned in honor of Capt. Hartstein and his fellow officers after the generous restoration of the Arctic ship Resolute to the British Government. When I recently heard the possibility of a war between the two countries spoken of, so unnatural did the idea appear to me, that I found myself repeating an old nursery rhyme, as familiar on our side of the Atlantic as on yours, with the transposition of a few words; that made it appear to me peculiarly applicable, and it may not be inappropriate on the present occasion to repeat them: Let dogs delight to bark and bite, For God hath made them so; Let Turks and Russians grow and fight, For God hath made them so; But Anglo-Saxons should never let Their angry passions rise, Their great big hands were never made To tear each other's eyes. GARBOTING IN NEW YORK.—The garboting process of street robbery, which has recently been adopted and brought into active use by the thieves who infest that city, promises to become more and more impeded by the extraordinary vigilance of persons having occasion to travel after nightfall. The stratagems assumed by the perpetrators are various. We have been informed that one night last week a gentleman residing in Irving place, on returning home, was subjected to the new process. When at the junction of the Canal and Broadway at Madison square, and opposite the new building in course of erection on the site of the late Hippodrome at 10 o'clock p. m., five men in single file passed him, the last of whom made the attack. What transpired afterward the victim was unable to say, as he remained in a state of insensibility until 3 o'clock A. M., at which time he found himself at the bottom of a flight of four steps. He was so completely injured, besides being almost paralyzed by exposure to the cold, as to be unable to walk home. In this state he crawled home on his hands and knees, where, upon examination, it was ascertained that he had received a wound on the back of his head, such as might have been made by a slung-shot. Other cases are reported. Another shoal of whales of the species known as humpbacks, went blowing by the harbor last Thursday in a very nocturnal manner, which was not apparently much disturbed by the chase of two or three boats which put out after them, but came back clean.
