AN ECHO FROM THE DIM PAST

THE EDITOR,
"GARDEN ISLAND"
Dear Sir,
Time was when the stirring shout "Wikiwiki! Japanese!", cutting the morning stillness, had a magic potency peculiarly its own. That was during the years of contract labor, those halcyon days for plantation managers, when the growing of cane was, compared with these times of anxieties and worries, as easy and as pleasant a task as the scooping in of "McBryde" fat dividends (?) when contrasted with the ever-increasing assessments on "Oahu" stock (?)

But, and altho' those good old days are forever gone, it may not be unreasonable to indulge the hope that a welcome echo of those care-free times may linger with us for yet a little longer thro' the medium of the following doggerel.

Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Scarce has the shrill-tongued chanticleer
Aroused the slumb'ring morn,
When, on the gently stirring breeze,
You see my coat-tails borne;
I rush along, up hill and down,
Like captive deer set free,
And lo! the welkin rings my cry,
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Nor tropic heat can stay my course,
Nor tropic rains abate
The energy that burns within,
Supreme o'er ev'ry fate;
I'm here, I'm there, I'm ev'rywhere,
A busy bustling bee,
And cheer the weary with my cry,
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

The days for me are all too short,
The nights are all too long;
Cossation clogs my ardent soul
As tho' to rest were wrong;
I toss and turn and twist about,
Such sloth is dead to me,
I must be up and shouting around
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Ambition claims me for her own,
Heart, body, soul and mind;
The keenest joys this life can yield
Those joys in her I find;
On one great cast my life is set!
One only goal for me!
My reputation lives in this,
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Come! rouse ye then, my little men,
And heed nor ache nor pain;
Come! buckle tight your belly-belts,
And at it might main:
Such toil is noble! And your fame
Shall ring from sea to sea,
Borne on the winds that bare my cry
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Let Germans growl "Die wachst am Rhein!"
The French scream "Marsellaise,"
John Bull with "Rule Britannia" join,
His country's boast to raise,
Columbia "Yankee Doodle" shout
From seaboard unto sea,
Mine is the ringing rousing cry
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Oh, blest the fate that brought me here
To these fair sun-kissed isles!
Whose Guardian Goddess beams o'er all
Thy garland-wreath of smiles!
Her favors rare all freely share,
But, best, she gave to me
To carve the watch-word of Her Isles,
Wikiwiki! Japanese!

Then let death come when'er it may,
I have not lived in vain;
The labor we delight in most
That labor physics pain:
The race is o'er; the goal is won;
Fame, smiling, waits for me,
To write this motto on my brow—
"Wikiwiki! Japanese!"

A TRIP TO HAENA CAVES AND KALALAU SETTLEMENT

KALALAU LANDING—MOST NORTHERNLY ISLAND PORT

Swinging 'round the bend and emerging from the Wainiha Valley, we come upon a broad expanse of beach property which is dotted over with comfortable summer homes, property of various members of the Rice family and the Wilcox's of Lihue. Upon a knoll not far distant from the beach is situated a quaint old church, and near by this imposing structure is the Haena public school building where for ten months out of the twelve the youthful population of the district can be seen faithfully pursuing the elusive "three R's."

Some distance beyond the school, we come to an immense cave, which we learn from a guide is the Haena "dry" cave. But a short time was devoted to exploring this cave, as it consisted chiefly of a large opening in the side of the mountain, some 100 feet in width and extending perhaps a hundred yards or so, into the mountain.

Continuing on, we soon brought up to another cave, which proved very similar in appearance to the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky. This cave we explored very cautiously as our footing at times seemed somewhat doubtful, owing to the presence of slippery boulders and frequent rivulets. Having spent some time here, we emerged once more to the "liquid" sunshine, and satisfying the inner man as best we could with a cold lunch, we headed for Kalalan.

The trail proved a long and difficult one, but much compensation was gotten from the broad vista of ocean and mountain which stretched as far as eye could see, the ocean to the right, the mountain to the left.

Wearily and tired, we dropped down into a valley where nestled a jutting of native houses whose occupants greeted us with the courtesy so well known to be one of the Hawaiian's natural characteristics.

After disposing of a toothsome dinner, we repaired to a large, comfortable room which proved to be the living room of our genial host—where until late bed time, we were entertained with fascinating reminiscences of Hawaiian Folk-lore. Two days were most enjoyably spent on the beautiful sandy beach, and among these hospitable, but isolated people, after which we bade them adieu, and once more took up the hazardous but very interesting trail back to Haena, arriving home nearly two months after the beginning of our tour. We have enjoyed every minute of our journey and will look forward with much pleasure to another opportunity to make the rounds of the island.

GREETING TO "BILL" TAFT BY GARDEN ISLAND RHYMER

His Excellency—Wm. H. Taft, President of the United States of America.

Greetings:
Mr. President, Sir, O, you made a great stir

When "stumping" each favoring State;
You are wise as the fox, you are brave as the ox,
Yet charmingly simple and blate,
Your eloquence strong, like a river of song,
Flowed smooth (round the "craft" that you steered)
As the oil that ran down to the skirts of the town,
When Old Aaron anointed his beard,
And the tricks that you played, and the traps that you laid,
Those Canada lads to beguile! —
But the hole that you dug, for the Ottawa "song,"
Just fits your own beautiful smile.

RECIPROCIITY? yes, it's easy to guess
You strove to beat "baa" like a sheep,
But the leg you can't pull of your cousin, John Bull,
You don't catch that waddled asleep,
So he stood to the shock, did that lusty young cock,
That crows on his mountains of snow,
And he's there high and dry, near that "clime" in the sky,
But you're in the "shadows" below,

ACF WIDERSERIES! O. U. J.

SEN. and MRS. C. A. RICE GIVE ELABORATE DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice entertained at a very elaborate dinner on Thursday evening in honor of their house guest, Mr. Gerrit P. Wilder of Honolulu.

The long table, where covers were laid for twelve, was a bower of the handsome Ixora blossom and green tulle arranged most artistically. The place cards bore the hostesses' monogram.

The guests were Mr. Gerrit P. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. George Fairchild, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rice Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Putman, and Mr. Arthur Rice.

She was loved by all who knew her and few there are, if any, who have paid this village a call, but left here with a pleasant memory of the kindness of this venerable woman. She leaves a husband and a large family to mourn her loss.

"THE GARDEN ISLAND" will not furnish school books, as to do so without profit (as we were compelled to do) and pay freight in addition, is something we are unprepared to do.
