

A GOODBYE.

She Wanted Half a Minute, Took More and Missed the Train.

He was the proud and haughty guard at the railway gate, and they were two ladies who disliked to be separated very much.

"Goodbye," said the one with the valise and the red pasteboard box tied up with a white string.

"Goodbye," replied the one who had no luggage.

"Be sure and tell mother goodbye for me, won't you?"

"Yes, and you must be sure to give my love to all the folks."

"I will. They will be so sorry you could not come with me."

"I know it, but you will explain just how it was. I certainly wanted to come."

"You won't forget to lock the piano so that baby won't put buttons and scraps into the strings."

"Yes."

"And shut the windows when it rains."

"Of course."

"Well, I must hurry. Goodbye."

"Go, by."

Then they kissed and parted, and the traveler with some difficulty extracted her ticket from the valise. Just as she got to the guard she gave a little scream.

"Oh!" she said, "there is something I want to say to her. Will I have time?"

"How long will you need?" he asked as he looked at her ticket.

"Just half a minute."

"Oh, then, you have plenty of time. It'll be ten hours before your train starts."

"But the time table says it goes at 9 o'clock."

"Yes'm. And it is now just one minute past 9.—Washington Star.

As Good as a Seashore Cottage.

"Are you going to the seashore this summer?" Jones asked of Brown.

"N-not exactly," said Brown, "but we're going to accomplish the same result without going from home at all."

"What do you mean?" "Why, its this way. You see, when a person of my means takes a cottage at the seashore, of course, gets a poor sort of shanty, because we can't afford a large, finely finished and well furnished house. You know the sort of place the usual summer cottage is. Well, we've decided to accomplish the result in another way. We're going to move up into the attic for the summer."

"Move into the attic?" "Why, certainly. It is unfinished just like a seashore cottage. The sun beats down on the shingles and raises the temperature above 100 degrees every sunny day. That's just like a seashore cottage. There isn't any means room enough in it for our large family, and that's like a seashore cottage, too."

"When it rains, the water doesn't beat through our roof, to be sure, as it does through the roofs of seaside cottages, but we can remedy that by poking a few holes through the shingles here and there and getting the roof mended in the fall. It will smell a little stuffy, but that is eminently like a seashore cottage. We shall keep a clothesbasket full of unwashed shells standing in the corner to produce a realistic effect. On the whole, we shall be ever so much more comfortable in our own accustomed garret than we should be at the seaside, and we shall have this inestimable advantage that when we get sick of it we can simply move right down into our own comfortable home, whereas, if we were at the shore and paying a high price for a cottage, we should feel bound to stick it out to the bitter end. Oh, I tell you, it's a great scheme."

Expects to Have Arms Grafted to Him.

Theodore Lee, the armless news-dealer who went East recently with a vague idea that he could get arms grafted on to his stumps, has been heard from. He has been inquiring among specialists regarding his case, and he finds that he may yet secure arms. First, the arms that are to be grafted on to his stumps must be taken from a healthy man or woman, and the hope is held out to Mr. Lee that he may find some person—condemned to be hanged, for instance—who would, for $1000 say, be given to relatives or charity, allow an arm to be amputated for grafting purposes. Mr. Lee has in substance been informed that the splice would have to be made just above the elbow joint.

When Mr. Lee has found a person who will submit to the operation, they will have to be brought together in such a position as to permit of the arms of both, which are to be operated upon, being placed in plaster of paris casts so that they cannot be moved. Then it is proposed to cut the back part of both arms, also cutting through the bone. The arm that is to be grafted on to Mr. Lee's stump, or that portion of it that is cut away at the first operation, is to be adjusted and fastened to the stump and allowed to remain until it heals and there is evidence of circulation between the stump and the part that is grafted on. The second operation will be the cutting of the remainder of the inside portion of the arm, together with the artery and the nerve. This operation, it is proposed, however, is not to be undertaken until the surgeons are satisfied that the circulation through the part of the arm already grafted on is sufficient to nourish and support the new forearm.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Aim at the Drake

And you are bound to hit some of the ducks. This is precisely the same with

Wampole's

Tasteless Preparation

Cod Liver Oil.

It aims to cure Consumption, Hits the Mark, too, and it most effectually breaks up Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness and all Throat and Lung troubles that cause this disease.

It is natural logic to conclude that if WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION OF COD LIVER OIL has power to prevent Consumption, it surely is able to cure these lesser emergencies.

This vigor-making, fat producing preparation is Absolutely Tasteless, in so far as Cod Liver Oil is concerned. All you notice is a delightful flavor of Wild Cherry and Anise.

But the purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil is there all the same. It is a great blood enricher. Best of all it is a natural food that in its stomachic effects, actually assists its own assimilation.

In Pulmonary or Bronchial troubles it is unequalled. No one doubts the value of Cod Liver Oil, but not every one is able to take it.

WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION removes the nauseous objection and actually makes Cod Liver Oil palatable.
