DR. MGLYNN AND THE POPE.

The Restored Priest Reports His Audience With the Holy Father.

The promptness with which the Pope granted me an audience was the more remarkable because the Holy Father was then busily engaged in the creation of new Cardinals and in the holding of two consistories within a few days.

At noon of the day following the secret consistory I was admitted promptly to the presence of the Holy Father, and was alone with him for about twenty-five minutes in the audience room, in which he occupied the gilded chair he generally occupies in public audience.

With filial reverence I knelt and kissed the consecrated ring on his finger, and asked his blessing. I said, in Italian, "Holy Father, I have come to Rome to fulfill a duty; to keep my word, given to your delegate; and being here, I gladly avail of the opportunity to pay my respectful homage to your Holiness, to thank you for the reconciliation which was brought to me by the hand of your delegate, and to ask you to bless me."

With reference to my previous reluctance to come to Rome, the Pope at once very affectionately assured me that I need not have had any fear, "in view of the wide-armed hospitality with which Rome receives all who come to her in a friendly spirit."

He had no doubt already seen the copy of Mgr. Satolli's letter to me, left with Cardinal Rampolla, and was only too ready to confirm what his delegate had done. He therefore contented himself with a reference to those new questions by saying: "But surely you admit the right of property?" to which I answered, "Why, of course I do, and we would make absolutely sacred the right of property in the products of individual industry." The Pope led me immediately into a conversation about Mgr. Satolli and the apostolic delegation. Intrigues, the Pope assured me with great earnestness and solemnity, could not affect him. "Whatever may be said concerning intrigues," he said, "I, the Head of the Church, am above all such intrigues, and am utterly uninfluenced by them." When I referred to the opposition of certain Archbishops from the very beginning to the institution of the apostolic delegation itself, the Holy Father said to me, "Yes, but now they see it in a different light, and have written to that effect!" To which I replied: "Because they cannot help themselves. These Bishops cannot rebel against the Pope. The people, as a rule, are not much concerned for or devoted to the persons of their respective Bishops, who have not been elected by the clergy or the people, but have been placed over them by the Pope; and the same Pope who places them there can take them away and put others in their places who will be equally well received." The Pope rejoined with increasing emphasis, "Have not I, the Head of the Church, the same right to have my representative in America as in Madrid, Paris, or Vienna?" I said to the Pope that now the Bishops are compelled to have a delegate in America they want to make a scapegoat of Satolli because of his uprightness and fearlessness, and to have somebody else in his place whom they can more readily manage or capture. At this the Pope's eyes flashed, and, striking the arm of his chair, he said, with increasing emphasis, "Satolli! Lo conosco Satolli! L'ho educato io; e finche' fu il suo dovere ed ubbidisce alle mie istruzioni, io lo sostengo." ("Satolli! I know Satolli! It was I who brought him up; and so long as he does his duty and obeys my instructions, I will support him.")

After this the Pope turned his attention with great kindness of manner to my own future. Mgr. Satolli's letter had said:

"Your visit to Rome will be particularly gratifying to the Holy Father, because he will see before him a priest to whom God has given particular gifts and aptitudes to do great good for the Church in this country."

Apparently with reference to this the Pope inquired as to the exercise of my ministry and said, "Do you not feel like going with Bishop Moore to Florida?" I replied, "It is very remote. There is little to do there, and it is too far from my home and my associations." He then said, "Could you not accommodate matters with Corrigan?" I said, "It would be difficult. He himself has recently said to a priest who said to him that I might now soon be demanding a parish, 'I am sure it would be very embarrassing for me.'"

The Pope asked me whether the Bishop of Brooklyn, in which city I said to him I was living, was friendly to me. I said, "No. He grudgingly gave me permission to say mass in his diocese, and that only in strict seclusion, and would not change his policy even when I wrote to him informing him that the apostolic delegate had advised me to request him to do so." The Pope then inquired, "Are there not priests in Brooklyn who would be glad to invite you to preach?" I answered, "Very many, but the bishop will not let them." I had already said to Cardinal Rampolla that for the present I preferred to remain as I am, and no doubt it was with reference to this wish of mine that the Pope said, "Well, you
