

A LITTLE GAME OF DRAW.

He Was a Novice, but He Had a Bit of Leadville Experience.

There was a little game of draw on the other night. Four friends sat around the table. One of them was a novice. He had never played a game of poker in his life, but he was not averse to paying for a little instruction, he said, and besides he had to have something to do whereby to while away what would otherwise be a very stupid night.

He asked all sorts of foolish questions and threw his chips in so recklessly that his three friends were sorry for him. It did seem to be a shame for him to lose so much money, but then he wanted to play, and it wasn't their fault if they held the better hands. Finally a jack pot came around, and the novice, who sat next to the opener, raised the ante to the limit. Some one else saw him and went him a chip or two better. Then the novice tilted her to the limit again, and after he had done so looked over his hand and asked, "What did you say a straight flush would be?"

The other players gasped. One of them said that it would beat anything in the pack but a royal flush, and the three promptly threw up their hands. The novice smiled blandly as he raked in the big stack of chips. Then he threw his hand down on the table. It was a simple straight, and that was all.

"What did you say that was a straight flush for?" asked one of the others, who had laid down three sevens and a pair of jacks. "Well," said the novice, "it is, isn't it? They're all red, and they run along in a sequence."

Then the three carefully explained that the cards had to be all of one suit to be a flush, and after questioning the novice seemed to understand.

The game went along for a time. Hands ran low, and not many chips changed owners. About 11 o'clock there was another jack pot. The novice raised the opener to the limit again, and the next man, who had four, came back at him with another big raise. The other players staid, and the novice raised back. This made a pot with considerably over $100 in it. Everybody staid on the last raise, and the dealer said, "Cards, gentlemen," in a subdued sort of voice.

"Hold on!" blurted the novice, "I want to ask another question. I'm a little mixed on this straight flush business. If I've got five cards of the same suit and they form a sequence, I've got a straight flush, have I not?"

The other players remembered the former jack pot and winked at each other. They hastened to assure the novice that his supposition was correct, and the man with four followed the opener's chip bet with a raise to the limit. The bright smile that came over the novice's face when he learned what a straight flush was had not faded. He was actually anxious to get his chips into the center of the table. He raised back to the limit.

"That's a good bluff," said the man with four, and he tilted back. The two others who had been trailing with fairly good hands all the time dropped out, and the novice and the man with four bet until there was nearly $500 on the table. Then the man with four grew compassionate and said to the novice, "Now, I don't want to make the learning of this game too expensive for you. Your little bluff went once, but it won't go this time, so I'll just call you."

Then the novice laid down a straight flush in clubs, running from seven to jack, and the man with four fell back in his seat in a helpless condition. When he recovered, he said slowly, "I'll quit this game. Such a doblanned fool I couldn't learn to play poker in 10,000 years."

"I don't doubt that," replied the novice as he cashed in his chips. "They used to tell me the same thing when I was in Leadville."—Buffalo Express.

A Relative of Napoleon.

An old friend of the Princess Murat contributes a reminiscence article regarding the life of the prince and princess in Florida. She mentions the following incident which occurred in 1860, when Mrs. Murat having suddenly become ill with symptoms resembling those of paralysis, a voyage to Europe was prescribed by her physicians.

She was received by her husband's relatives (Louis Napoleon and his family) with an affectionate welcome. She related many incidents of the southern Confederacy to the emperor and empress, together with the sacrifices and privations the south was called upon to bear. The princess asked the emperor, if he felt so much for the south, why he had not helped the Confederacy.

His reply was: "Cousin Kate, you all had my warmest sympathy and hopes for your success, but on account of slavery I did not dare to send an army to your assistance. Had I done so, I should have had a mob in Paris."

Mrs. Murat spoke of the empress as a person of lovely character, being constant in her employment in deeds of benevolence, even visiting the hospitals. The prince imperial she spoke of with much affection, he being then a most interesting youth.—Century.

Then He Went.

He had been worshiping her for months, but had never told her, and she didn't want him to. He had come often and staid late, very late, and she could only sigh and hope. He was going away the next day on his vacation, and he thought the last night was the time to spring the momentous question. He kept it to himself, however, until the last thing. It was 11:30 by the clock, and it wasn't a very rapid clock. "Miss Mollie," he said tremulously, "I am going away tomorrow. "Are you not at all said, with the thoughtlessness of girlhood as she gazed wistfully at the clock. "Yes," he replied. "Are you sorry?" "Yes, very sorry," she murmured. "I thought you might go away this evening." "Are you gazed at the clock wistfully, and he told her good night.—Detroit Tribune.

Steambathing on the Missouri.

As the railroads of the present day content for supremacy in speed and good service, so did the steamboats of 30 and 40 years ago struggle for position in the public eye. The point in contest was always that of speed. In those days trade on the Missouri was prosperous. At least 100 boats ascended the stream every season before July, many of them going as far as Fort Benton, in Montana. A boat that made this trip and returned to St. Louis in two months without a profit of $75,000 did a poor business. Those were the days when freight was freight. No competing vessel cut the rates. The boats ran independently, and when one captain fixed the tariff there was no other boat to be found that would offer cheaper transportation.—Detroit Free Press.

Legacies to an English Orator.

Perhaps the most fortunate politician who ever lived in the matter of legacies was William Pitt, earl of Chatham. In consideration of his services to the country, the Duchesse of Marlborough left him a legacy of £10,000. Some years afterward Sir William Pymont died, leaving the great orator a legacy of £3,000 a year. This fortune was quite unexpected, and Pitt never saw his benefactor in his life.—London The-Bits.

A Gift That May Be Acquired.

Any woman who wishes to be a social success should cultivate the gift of remembering faces and names. A little attention at the time, a little care to fix an individual by name and feature in the memory, will bring its sevenfold reward. While some lucky people possess the faculty naturally, and others are woefully deficient in this respect, still it can be cultivated, so that study will supply the lack of memory, and the social aspirant may assume a virtue though she have it not.—New York Tribune.

WHY YOU WANT THE "STAR!"

A NEWSPAPER IS A NECESSITY to every person in the community — man, woman or child—who is able to read and who desires to keep in touch with the spirit of this progressive age and wishes to be posted as to events of interest which are continually happening at home and abroad, on land and sea.

The STAR is a new paper and has introduced Californian methods of journalism into Hawaii, where, before its advent, the Massachusetts newspaper traditions of 1824 held sway. It has three prime objects:

To support the cause of Annexation of Hawaii to the United States and assist all other movements, political, social or religious, which are of benefit to these Islands and their people.

To print all the news of its parish without fear or favor, telling what goes on with freshness and accuracy, suppressing nothing which the public has the right to know.

To make itself indispensable to the family circle by a wise selection of miscellaneous reading matter.

As a commentator the STAR has never been accused of unworthy motives.

As a reporter the STAR has left no field of local interest ungleaned.

As a friend of good government the STAR has been instant in service and quick to reach results.

As an advertising medium the STAR, from the week of its birth, has been able to reach the best classes of people on all the Islands.

Compare the daily table of contents with that of any other evening journal in Honolulu—
