A PREACHER CAUSES TALK

BECAUSE OF HIS THANKSGIVING SERMON. Liliuokalani hears a sermon declaring the loss of her throne as the special cause for thanksgiving.

Rev. Hamilton Lee acting rector of the Second Congregation of St. Andrew's has preached at least one sermon that may be said to have produced an effect. It has caused talk. It has been talked about.

It was the sermon he preached Thanksgiving Day at the union service of the two congregations of the cathedral, such a service as has not been held before for years on account of the strong feeling of antagonism that exists between the First, or the Bishop's congregation, and the Second congregation. The service was an elaborate one, fully choral with an augmented choir, and an orchestra in addition to the pipe organ. The congregation was a large one.

Rev. Lee chose his text from the first lesson for the day, Deuteronomy, 8:16, "When thou shalt eat and are full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee." Throughout the sermon and especially in the first part of it the preacher dwelt on the fact that Hawaii had been annexed to the United States, the greatest nation on earth, and been given a government better, and stronger and more stable than it had ever had before, and the special cause for thanksgiving in these Islands. While he was iterating and reiterating these sentiments, the Ex-Queen Liliuokalani with her brother-in-law A. S. Cleghorn were sitting in the pew nearest the pulpit and so close that he preached that he could have reached out and touched her shoulder. Governor Dole sat in the pew just across the aisle from the ex-queen. Near him was British Consul Hovey, and in the congregation were a number of British subjects. But oblivious of their presence the preacher continued his glorification of America, declaring it the greatest and best in the world, the model of all, and the special cause for thanksgiving. Yet that was the theme continually running through the sermon.

At first, as Rev. Lee began his sermon and gave expression to these sentiments, eyes were cast about the congregation, and then there were whispered conversations, accompanied by looks which gave clear indication of protest. People shuffled uneasily in their pews, and there were movements as though people were making up their minds to leave the church, though none actually did. And throughout the sermon there was evidence of uneasiness and repression. At the benediction and the clergy had retired to the vestry, no one made a move to leave the church until the ex-queen and Mr. Cleghorn left their pews, which was very promptly after it was seemed to do so. At the church door, and in the little knots of people which gathered at the adjacent street corners waiting for the street cars, the one and principal theme of conversation was the sermon and how it must have sounded to the ex-queen. Some said that during the sermon tears flowed down her cheeks, as she sat in the royal pew, the very front one of all. But if this were so, there was no trace of them as she turned to leave the church and walked down the aisle, with the grace and royal dignity with which she always bears herself.

Much indignation has been expressed that Rev. Lee should have chosen the treatment of this theme which he did, considering the very wide diversity of political opinion which is known to exist among the membership of the congregation present, the sentiments that survive from the time of the overthrow, and the fact that the ex-queen was thereby in effect compelled to listen to a sermon which declared as plainly as could be that her loss of her throne was the prime reason her former people had for publicly giving thanks to God.

MORMONS TO CELEBRATE

JUBILEE TO BE HELD HERE ON DECEMBER 12. Fiftieth Anniversary of Landing of George Q. Cannon—President Snow and Cannon Expected.

President Snow, of the Mormon church at Salt Lake City, Counselor George Q. Cannon and other leaders of the faith will be expected in this city by the Zealandia to participate in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of Mormonism here. Two advance apostles arrived by the Mariposa. They are Elders N. C. Murdoch and E. Eldredge. These men have been more than fifty years in the work and crossed the Plains with Brigham Young in 1847. They went to Lehi to await the coming of their leaders.

Subscription lists are being circulated about the city for money for the jubilee and a considerable amount has been raised. The entire 12th of December will be devoted to the observance. Some large hall will be selected for the meetings. There will be addresses by all the leaders of the local Mormon colony and by the visitors.

George Q. Cannon, the father of Senator Cannon, of Utah, was the founder of Mormonism in Hawaii. He arrived here on December 12, 1850, and was well received. The colony at Laie was established by Mr. Cannon, and at his suggestion a Hawaiian colony was established in Utah. His return to Honolulu to take part in the jubilee will therefore be a matter of great interest. President Snow is a very old man and for that reason may not come at all, although the information is that he will arrive here. He is the fourth successor to Brigham Young.

RIO DID NOT TAKE PRATT

PASSENGERS DID NOT WANT A LEPER. The China will have to take back the Patient She Brought—Teamsters on Board.

George Pratt, the leper, might have gone back to San Francisco on the Rio this morning but for kicks from the passengers and the presence on board of the largest list of white passengers that any steamer has had in passing through here for many months, excepting the transports.

The passengers did not want Pratt on board, and they had so their objections to traveling with a leper were so strong as to suggest that there may be trouble when the China comes back and is asked to take the unfortunate man whom she brought. The company was as willing to take him on the Rio as the China, if he must, but the necessary arrangements could not be made. The local authorities can force the China to take Mr. Pratt.

WEARING FURS NOW. PEKING, November 29.—The Italian troops that were in the Pao Ping Fu expedition returned here today wearing fur coats. When they entered the town the natives at first gave them silk umbrellas and banners and flowers. The Italians told the residents that these things were useless, but that some useful presents such as furs would be gratefully accepted. The people acted on the suggestion and furnished fur coats to the entire command. They also landed the Colonel commanding the Italians 10,000 taels.

DIAMOND JUBILEE DAY

KAWAIAHAO CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE SUNDAY. Is Oldest Native Congregation in Islands—Elaborate Programs Arranged for Both Morning and Evening

The diamond jubilee of Kawaiahao church is to be celebrated tomorrow with services fully commensurate with the occasion. An elaborate program has been arranged in which the English and Hawaiian speaking peoples will participate.

The church is the first organization of the kind in the islands and a monument to the official recognition by the missionaries of the various chiefs and chieftesses of the island as Christians. In fact the land upon which the edifice stands was donated by King Kamehameha. When the first missionaries arrived here in 1820 from Boston they organized a church and also opened schools. Kaahumanu the favorite queen of the Great King was among the first to be baptized. Her example was followed by others with the result that the present church was organized in 1825. At first the worship was conducted in grass houses, but finally on June 8, 1839, the corner stone of the present edifice was laid. In the stone was placed the first Hawaiian Bible which had been printed only 29 days before the ceremony. On July 12th, 1842 the church was dedicated and it has since been the leading Hawaiian congregation on the islands.

One characteristic of the church is the loyalty of the people to the pastors for during the 75 years of its organization there have been but four of them. The first was the Rev. Hiram Bingham one of the most famous of the early missionaries. In fact it was from the sermon which he delivered here on April 25, 1820, a few days after his arrival, that the organization originally sprang. Upon that occasion he took for his text the 10th verse of the 2nd chapter of St. Luke, "Fear not; for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people."

The services in the morning will be conducted in the native language by the pastor, Rev. H. H. Parker, with addresses by the pastor and David Kanuha. Mrs. Annis Montague Turner will sing "Home, Sweet Home," in Hawaiian and in English. The choir will be accompanied by Dr. Ormand Wall, violin; Miss Caroline Castle, piano, and Miss Hattie Alau. At the evening service Mrs. Turner will sing "O Holy Night" and "Alleluia," both in English with accompaniment by Miss Caroline Castle.

The following is the program for the evening service at 7:30 which will be conducted by Rev. W. D. Westervelt. Anthem—Kawaiahao Church. Scripture—John xvii, 15-21. Rev. S. P. Perry. Hymn—Hoku Au Nani. Anthem—Choir and Congregation. Prayer—Rev. O. P. Emerson. Anthem—Kaumakapili Choir. Notices—Annis Montague Turner. Offertory—Mrs. Annis Montague Turner. ## CITIZENSHIP IS ADOPTED

STRANGE RULING OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT. Chinese Admitted to Citizenship Prior to the Anti-Mongolian Law are Not Recognized as Citizens.

The state department has issued orders to American consuls and diplomatic officials in China not to recognize the American citizenship of any Chinese naturalized as an American citizen prior to the passage of the law denying to Mongolians the right to become citizens. This is in effect to make that law retroactive.

News of this fact comes in a number of private letters received here by the last steamer from Americans and others in China. In none of them however is any reason assigned for this nor any suggestion of the argument upon which the ruling is based.

Among others who have received letters of this sort are Clinton J. Hutchins. He received one from Yung Wing in which the fact was clearly stated. Yung Wing is a graduate of Yale College in the class of 1849. He was a classmate of the late Rev. Dr. Charles J. Hutchins, C. J. Hutchins' father and was in college at the same time. He became an American citizen in 1852, and offered his services to the United States during the civil war. It was he who persuaded Li Hung Chang to send a large number of Chinese youths to American colleges. Yung Wing is now in China, but expects to pass through Honolulu on his way to the United States, very soon.

Another American citizen of Chinese birth whose citizenship was recently ignored under this order by Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai, is Dr. V. P. Suyong who is at the head of the educational department of the Kiang Nan arsenal, Shanghai. He became an American citizen in Connecticut in 1871. He is a graduate of Yale college and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

MRS. MON WAR IS FINED

Mrs. Ng Mon War was found guilty this morning in the police court of assault and battery upon Ah Ho, the Chinese girl whom she and her husband are alleged to have kept as a slave. The case ended with the testimony of the defendant and her husband, after which the court sentenced Mrs. West, who was the principal witness against the accused.

Mon War testified that Ah Ho had been left with him by Leong Kau, whom the latter went to China. He said that the little girl refused to go to school and when Mrs. Mon War tried to teach at home she refused to learn anything. He denied that his wife was overstrict with the girl.

A HUNTING TRIP. Prince David Kawananakoa and W. H. Cornwell left this morning on a hunting trip down the Waialeale mountains. They chartered Mr. Dillingham's fine observation car for the tour, and it will be left at such sidings as they may choose. The men took along a number of servants to cook, carry the bags of game, etc. They will be gone three or four days.

REVENUE OFFICE REOPENED. The internal revenue office was reopened this morning and the supervision of W. F. Hasson. The past two days have been devoted to work in connection with the turning over of the bureau by Mr. Haywood. Mr. Hasson has been appointed by President McInerney as tax collector until a permanent collector is commissioned.

THE WEATHER. Weather Bureau, Punahou, 1 p. m. Wind light, east to calm; weather cloudy; will probably rain in a day or two. ## THE EADEWELL TO WILKOKI

HE LEAVES THIS MORNING ON THE RIO. A Large Crowd at the Wharf to See Him Off—A Send Off Last Night.

Wilkok has gone! Weighted down with brilliant leis he stood on the bridge of the steamship Rio this morning as she left the wharf, with Mrs. Wilcox by his side. Secretary D. K. Kalaaukai, Jr. and wife were also on the bridge. The delegate to congress raised his hat in acknowledgment of cheers from the natives on the wharf, and an answering chorus of hoots came from those among the throng who were not Wilkok men.

Not for many months has such a large crowd gathered to see a steamer go as was on the Main wharf at 9 o'clock this morning. Hundreds of natives filled all the enclosure. Kappelmeister Berger came with his band and went rolling through several aisles while floods of tears were being shed on the decks of the steamer, where natives swarmed to say farewells to those who were leaving.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox arrived at the wharf at about 9 o'clock, with many native friends. They went on board at 10 o'clock and were followed by a score of friends and relatives. Leis were everywhere in evidence and every member of the delegate's party was covered with them.

Once during the long drawn out scenes of parting the old mournful Hawaiian wail, not often heard in Honolulu now, started the white passengers on the steamer. An aged Hawaiian lady emphasized her farewell to Mrs. Wilcox by lifting up her voice in the indescribably sad wail that is familiar to old-timers here.

Mr. Wilcox has all smiles, and he shook hands until his arm just has been all through the campaign. He added no style because he was an accredited delegate to the greatest legislative body in the world and while his friends swarmed round him he helped Mrs. Wilcox to look after herself and the children.

"I am going to Washington to do what I can for the islands," said Wilcox, "and I want to represent the whole islands. I shall work constantly for all the people of the territory and shall not think anything about party lines henceforth."

The crowd grew as the time for departure drew nigh. Captain Ward invited the delegate and his party to the bridge of the steamer and they were on the bridge when the gang plank was lifted.

The tug Fearless took the band out with the steamer. The tug had been hired by Hackfeld and company to pull the steamer's bow round so that she could point down the channel, and when she left the wharf to do so she had the band on board and all the natives there was room for.

THE UPOLO LOSES A WEEK

LIVELY TIMES ON A MISSING STEAMER. Saved the Brig Consuelo at Mahukona During the Storm and Helped the Schooner North.

The little steamer Upolu, Captain Dalton, left Honolulu before the recent storm and she did not get back until today when she arrived with an almost hair-raising story of stormy times at sea. The question "where is the Upolu?" was just beginning to be whispered about the front when she showed up, and Captain Dalton was not only in good condition with his vessel, but had a profitable story of salvage to relate.

The Upolu helped two sailing vessels out during the height of the big storm. At Mahukona the brig Consuelo was towed off shore by the little steamer, when in great danger, and the owners of the brig will have to put up salvage. Captain Dalton says that the master of the Upolu was able to haul the vessel out for lost, during the storm. The wind was howling like a first class gale and the brig was nearing shore. Manager Leslie of the railroad telephoned for the Upolu, which was nearest, to help, and she came. Several whistles as she approached the brig brought forth no answer and it was found that the vessel had been deserted. The crew came, however, after being sent for, and the Upolu was able to haul the vessel out.

When the storm lessened the Upolu took the brig back and then when the wind rose again she once more towed the Consuelo to sea and out of danger of the reefs.

The schooner John G. North which was blown from her moorings at Honolulu, also probably owes her safety to the Upolu. The schooner was taken out of danger once by the Upolu. Then she broke from her moorings and with rigging considerably damaged, drifted to sea. It was a week before she got back. The Upolu was the tug again.

PORTUGUESE HOLIDAY. The Day of Their Independence Hardly Observed at All. This is Portuguese Independence day, but aside from a serenade and a few callers at the Consulate, Carlos E. there has been nothing to mark the occasion from other days of the week. The Portuguese themselves hardly know why there was not the usual music, the customary field sport and the conventional dance and reception at Lustania hall. It seems to have been a case of neglect, the result of apathy and a lack of interest which newer political conditions have brought.

SOUTHERN CHINA REBELLION. BERLIN, November 21.—A special dispatch from Peking says that the situation in Southern China is improved, that the rebels have been conquered and that the rebellion is nearly extinct.
