TO WAR ON THE MOSQUITO

A CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR GOES TO SAN RAFAEL TO BEGIN THE CAMPAIGN.

BERKELEY, April 17.—The first campaign in California against the mosquito was begun today when Professor C. W. Woodworth of the department of entomology at the University of California, left for San Rafael to make a study of the conditions at that place. Residents of San Rafael held a meeting last Tuesday night to discuss plans for the extermination of the insect. A substantial sum was raised and the work has been turned over to the agricultural department of the University.

L. K. KENTWELL, General Manager

Professor Woodworth has detailed W. H. Vlock, a special student in the College of Agriculture, to assist him, and together they looked over the field today. Mr. Vlock will make a study of the marshes near San Rafael and will bring back to the University laboratory specimens of the mosquito larvae and eggs. These will be allowed to mature in order to determine what species infest the region. The time required for the eggs to hatch and the most favorable conditions for hatching will also be the subject of investigation. After this preliminary work is finished, a series of experiments will be made to find out what chemicals can be used to the best advantage in destroying the larvae. In some parts of New Jersey a campaign has been waged against the insect for the past two years with considerable success. Stagnant ponds and sloughs, the favorite hatching place of the mosquito, are covered with crude petroleum for the purpose of killing the young. The larvae of the insect live in the water, but, before developing, they float on the surface for some time. The coating of petroleum shuts off the air supply and kills the larvae. Whether the same plan will prove feasible, or whether a more successful means of extermination can be found, are the problems which Professor Woodworth and his assistant will have to work out.

OVERDUE WHITNEY MAKES KAHULUI

ARRIVES YESTERDAY—WAS 23 DAYS GOING FROM HONOLULU. SWEPT AWAY BY GALES.

After 23 days struggling and battling with adverse winds, the American ship Emily F. Whitney finally made the port of Kahului yesterday morning. The arrival of the vessel was unexpected. People at Kahului and also in Honolulu had begun to think that the vessel had given up the attempt to make Kahului and had gone on to San Francisco. This theory proved incorrect however, for the vessel had been for three days previous, close to Kahului but was unable to get into port on account of a severe gale.

The trip of the Whitney was in many respects, remarkable. It is probably the first voyage of the kind ever made out of these islands. She left Honolulu April 18 with 600 tons of fertilizer bound for Kahului. Even under ordinary adverse circumstances she should have made Kahului within three days time. Instead of this, she was swept away to the southward and before she finally hauled up at her Maui destination, the vessel had travelled 3236 miles, to make a port that is only about 90 miles distant.

The Whitney went out with a very strong trade wind prevailing. The weather continued bitter for a number of days after she sailed and she was evidently caught in the very teeth of the strong trades for she was swept to the southward. The third day out, some of the stays carried away and but for good luck, the vessels would have been dismasted in the gale. Fortunately, the accident occurred in the day time, so repairs could be temporarily made. As it was the two top sails and stays were carried away.

The vessel went down south of Fanning Island. Then she beat back. She first went to the westward, then to the northward and then to the eastward of these islands. Three days before she made Kahului, she had sighted Maui but the winds were adverse and she could not get into Kahului.

It was well that she arrived when she did. Her provisions were beginning to run short and had she been out much longer, the crew would have been on short allowance. No body was sick or injured during the trip according to the reports brought this morning by the S. S. Nevada which arrived from Kahului.

THE GLOVE CONTESTS

Arrangements are proceeding satisfactorily for the ten-round contest between Joe Millet, heavyweight champion of the San Francisco Olympic Club, and George Douglas, heavyweight champion of the British Navy. The Chinese Theater building on Lillha street near King, is being put in shape, and everything will be ready for Monday night. The first preliminary will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, as the shore leave of the men from the British men-of-war is limited, and it is intended to begin early and follow one event with another promptly, so that the men-of-war's men can see all of the events.

The preliminaries promise some exciting sport. Johnstone and Preston of the Amphitrite, two welter-weights, who will enter the ring at 140 pounds each are both said to be very clever. Russell of the Amphitrite and Hill of the Sparrowhawk are two bantams who have the reputation of their respective vessels to uphold.

The plan of the Chinese theater is on view at the Orpheum box-office, where tickets are for sale and can be procured now. The principal contest will be refereed by Mr. Woods of Whitman & Company, who recently came from the coast.

A TEN-DOLLAR WHIPPING.

Man Who Gave It Wants Full Credit For It.

The other day at Muscotah Professor Sanders severely whipped the son of Frank Streeter, says the Kansas City Journal. That night Streeter invited over. When the professor appeared Streeter knocked him down and gave him a beating. The next day Streeter was fined $10 for assault and battery.

JAS. F. MORGAN Auctioneer and Broker, 42 Queen Street, P. O. Box 594 Telephone 72 and the case was reported in the Atchison Globe, which stated that the fine was only $1. Now Streeter writes a correction to the Globe, which is different enough from the average "kick" against wrong reporting to be interesting. Streeter says the professor whipped his boy and another boy a good deal harder than their offenses required, and then adds: "Some say that the boy and my boy were both served just right. I will not argue the matter, for the Globe probably has no time to settle that point, I expressed my opinion forcibly, giving the professor some of his own medicine, possibly too generous a dose. He had me arrested for assault. I admitted the charge and the Justice fined me—not $1, as your gossipier stated—but $10 and costs. I promptly paid the fine. Some say it was too high and some say it was too low. The Justice could not suit everybody, and I am sure he didn't even try to suit me. Those who remember the Gray case many years ago in Atchison, when a man was killed, and the man who killed him was fined $1 and costs, will remember that not everybody was satisfied then. I do not complain, because the fine for assault in my case was higher than the average, but I don't like being credited with only $1 when I know I paid $10 into the school fund of this country, besides some trimmings."

PRISONERS ESCAPE. Benjamin Adams and James Marion, prisoners at Fort Sheridan, picked the lock of the cell door in the guard-house one night lately, unlocked another door leading through the kitchen, and escaped on a passing freight train. Both of the men were being kept in solitary confinement. A guard stationed near the door of the kitchen saw them emerge, and fired several shots at them, but it is believed none of the bullets took effect. Adams was to have been returned to Texas to serve out a sentence of three years for horse stealing.
