Big Strike At Ewa

There is a big strike of Japanese at Ewa Plantation today. In fact 2,700 laborers stopped work today. The men stopped because of an alleged grievance against a luna. It appears, according to the statements made to the High Sheriff today, that yesterday the luna struck one of the Japanese laborers. The latter spoke to his friends about the occurrence and they decided to demand the discharge of the luna or else go on a strike. The luna was not discharged, so every Japanese on the plantation stopped work today. The mill had to shut down through lack of labor.

While the Japs did not indulge in any demonstration, Manager Reinton communicated with High Sheriff Brown and requested that officers be sent to Ewa to preserve the peace. Captain Parker and six foot officers were sent to Ewa by the first train. According to last reports this afternoon every thing was quiet on the plantation. No work had been resumed however.

NAVAL WIRELESS STATION FOR OAHU

OFFICER ARRIVES BY SOLACE FOR PURPOSE OF SELECTING SITES.

A wireless telegraph station is to be established on the island of Oahu by the Navy Department. Lieutenant G. C. Sweet who has been specially detailed to select sites for wireless stations in the island possessions of the United States, arrived by the U. S. S. Solace this morning. Lieutenant Sweet is also in charge of the entire wireless plans of the government for the island possessions as well as the vessels of the Asiatic fleet. He is now going out to the Asiatic station for the purpose of completing arrangements to equip the various vessels of the fleet with the wireless apparatus.

"The wireless system has come," said Lieutenant Sweet, "to be recognized as a practical thing in naval service and a great deal of consideration and study has been given it by the Navy Department. The operations in the Russian-Japanese war have demonstrated the fact that wireless telegraphy is a very essential branch of naval equipment. The Japanese have been very successful in the use of the wireless, as they have succeeded in intercepting similar messages of the enemy and profiting by such information.

"Wireless is no longer a new thing with our Navy for we have about 50 vessels on the Atlantic equipped with it already, as well as eight shore stations. Nearly every vessel of the North Atlantic squadron is fitted with the wireless apparatus. The intention of the department is to equip the vessels of the Asiatic fleet with wireless outfits and to establish wireless stations at Oahu, Guam, Cavite and other places. I will pass the time during the stay of the Solace in Honolulu in selecting one or more sites for the location of wireless stations for the Navy Department. We may locate two on this island, one at Barber's Point and the other at Diamond Head, or else a central site may be selected. A mast 130 feet in height for the Oahu station was brought by the Solace today. I presume that the wireless station will be in operation by the end of the year. I will stop at Guam and select a site for the station at that place.

"In addition to the stations about the islands, the fleet is to be equipped with wireless instruments and I am to install the apparatus on them during my stay on the Asiatic station.

"The government uses what is known as the Stoby-Arc system. Our instruments are not high-powered ones, the idea being to be able to send and receive a distance of about 100 miles. If it were necessary stronger sending apparatus could be put on the various vessels, but for the present this has not been considered necessary.

"We have been quite successful with the present tests on the Solace. We left San Francisco May 21 and were able to maintain communication for at least 80 miles away from shore. We tried to pick up the operators at Barber's Point and Molokai last night but without success. It was not until about 4:50 o'clock this morning that we picked up the New York wireless station. We were about 23 miles from shore when this message was received by the Solace. I understand that the officers of the cruiser New York got signals from us last night about 10 o'clock. We were then about 75 miles off shore. We ran very slowly during the night."

The first message that the Solace received today was from the New York station and was "Good Morning."
