STRONG CURRENT DETAINED LOGAN

VESSEL WAS DAY LATE ARRIVING FROM 'FRISCO—WILL SAIL TOMORROW FOR GUAM-MANILA.

A day behind time the transport Logan arrived this morning from San Francisco en route to Guam and Manila. The vessel brought an accumulation of two days' later mail from the mainland. The vessel was late reaching Honolulu owing to her being foul and the fact that she encountered a strong adverse current during the last two days. The vessel has a few army officers aboard for the Philippines but the majority of the cabin passengers are contract surgeons, teachers and other government employes.

Col. Joseph B. Girard, who was formerly in charge of the medical department at the Presidio, is a passenger for Manila.

Major C. G. Starr and Major John P. Guffogly are assistants to the adjutant general of the army.

Major John Stafford is of the 26th Infantry.

John T. Mulachy and T. P. Coakley are employees of Millikan Brothers of New York. They are going out to the Philippines in connection with a big contract that that firm has in the Philippines.

Peter Bartelch is a master signal electrician of the United States army.

There are 66 recruits for the field artillery, 128 cavalry recruits, 170 infantry recruits and 17 casuals aboard the vessel.

Lieutenant Colonel John McCellan of the artillery corps was a Honolulu passenger on the transport.

Francis Drake and wife, the new weather bureau man, arrived with his wife. The other arrivals for Honolulu were: Mrs. Charles H. Mann, wife of a quartermaster's clerk; Mrs. Elizabeth C. Mills, sister-in-law of General Mills; Clarence A. Noff, a school teacher; Sterling B. Palmore, member of the family of Lieutenant Colonel Palmore of the Marine Corps; Miss Minnie Birch, sister of an employe of the Quartermaster's Department, and Mrs. Captain Stinson and sister.

The Logan is taking 500 tons of coal at this place. She will sail for Guam and Manila at noon tomorrow.

WANTS TRIAL IN HONOLULU

FUNIKOSHI TOO GOOD FOR HILO AND IS PERSECUTED BY THAT WICKED CITY.

It was Chester Doyle who spoke, but he spoke not for himself, he was the mouthpiece as court interpreter of a Jap who was up for trial in Hilo. "I want to have my trial in Honolulu," he said, "I am too good a man to be tried in Hilo. No man who is a good man and has a soul and conscience should be tried in Hilo. I am very moral and that is why the people here in Hilo do not like me. They have followed me for revenge because I am good and have tried to send me to jail for many years. No I don't want to be tried here."

This scathing arraignment, coming as it did from a man who has been convicted once for murder in the second degree, once for conspiracy to murder and is now up on a second charge for a similar conspiracy, naturally offended Hilo's dignity and some thought that Interpreter Doyle ought to have sugar-coated the pill.

"Oh I don't know," said Doyle "I'm sworn to translate correctly, but there are several words in Japanese which have no exact equivalent in English. If I could have translated them Hilo would have had something to kick about and the court records would have been burnt full of holes."

The Japanese was Funikoshi who in company with a countryman named Watanabe was convicted about a year ago of murder in the second degree and was sentenced to thirty years imprisonment. Watanabe got off with a trifling twenty-five years. The men were sent here but the case was appealed and they secured their release on bail. The result of the appeal has not yet been decided by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile the two men went back to Hilo where according to the stories told there, they commenced a campaign of terror against all of the Japanese who had testified against them. They were again arrested on the charge of having conspired to murder and were again convicted, this time getting ten year sentences. To make assurance doubly sure as to their detention, still another charge of conspiracy to murder was laid against them and this was the case in court.

The matter was explained to them by Doyle at the instance of Attorney General Andrews who pointed out that they might as well await the result on their appeal. There was no mistaking their desire in the matter and the cases went over.

CAPT. STINSON MARRIED.

Bride Will Stop Over at Honolulu With Sister.

man from the Philippines, in October, when they will return to the home land. Captain Stinson's many friends in San Francisco were greatly surprised to hear of his sudden marriage, as he was always known as a woman hater, loving his ship with a love so deep that there was supposed to be no room in his heart for the fair sex.

Several more brides are on the transport en route with their husbands to the Philippines, also a few fiancées going to meet their intended husbands.

FURY OF THE CLOUDBURST

IMMENSE VOLUME OF WATER SWEEPS AWAY HALAWA BRIDGE ON MOLOKAI.

The big cloudburst which struck the easterly end of Molokai last week did more damage than was at first estimated according to the news brought by Superintendent McVeigh of the Leper Settlement today. The full fury of the cloudburst was felt in the valley at Halawa for the greater part of the cloud, bursting on the easterly face of the mountain range, the water rushed down that valley on its way to the sea.

The river gave but little sign of rising until the solid wall of black water, many feet in height came sweeping down with irresistible force. The big government bridge, over 125 feet long which spans the valley was the only obstruction and this was brushed aside in an instant. It was broken into three sections and the remains will of little use.

Telephone poles were knocked down in many places and the wires were broken. The water subsided almost as quickly as it rose and the inhabitants went about dreading that some neighbors might have been injured or killed. Fortunately the wreck brought with it no human casualties. The bridge will have to be rebuilt at once as it is the only means of travel for several hundred people.

VENTURA ARRIVED SAFELY.

The S. S. Ventura arrived at San Francisco last Monday afternoon in time to catch the eastern mail train. The arrival of the vessel on time was announced in the regular cable report to the local branch of the Marine Exchange which is always advised of the movements of mail and sailing craft.
