ADMIRAL TERRY SOON TO LEAVE

Admiral Terry is soon to leave his post of naval commandant at Honolulu and retire from active service. The cable dispatches yesterday announced that Captain H. W. Lyon had been ordered to Honolulu as naval commandant and evidently the orders to be commandant, have just been issued. The new commandant has not been directed to proceed to Honolulu at once however, and his arrival here will be dependant, so far as is now known, upon the wishes of Admiral Terry. Admiral Terry will retire from active service the latter part of December. He is making arrangements to relinquish his command about the end of November and return home by way of the Far East, accompanied by his family. Captain Lyon will, in all probability, come to Honolulu the early part of November to take over the command of the local station upon the departure of Admiral Terry.

ADMIRAL TERRY.

JUSTICE BLOCKED

If more demonstration, than that hitherto supplied as to the weakness of the jury system of Hawaii, were required it was furnished in Judge Gear's court this morning when the finding of a jury to try the Japanese Hayashida on the charge of murder was once more undertaken. The fourteen names in the jury box on Friday were then exhausted and a special venire of thirty-six was drawn at the order of the judge. As this proceeding went on the judge expressed his dissatisfaction with the system and hazarded the remark that nine out of ten of those drawn would not be found to serve on the jury. This morning's events proved that his honor was even short of the mark. Of the thirty-six names drawn, eleven could not be found for service. Many were away at the coast and others were absent in other parts of the islands, still others have vanished from human ken. This, however, left twenty-five and these twenty-five were in court bright and early, but in less than no time fifteen of these were excused. The reasons for these excusings were varied but cogent. Some were not of age and one was over age. Some were British subjects and others were on the grand jury which originally indicted Hayashida. Still others could not speak English, one was a Federal employe and another was a lawyer, both claiming their exemption, while a modest few got off on the plea that they had no one to attend to their business which was accordingly going to the dogs. Nothing further having been accomplished at noon, Judge Gear ordered the drawing of another special venire.

BUFFALO EXPECTED ON THURSDAY. Admiral Terry received a cablegram from Midway yesterday announcing that the naval training ship Buffalo was at Midway en route to Honolulu. Admiral Terry expects her here about Thursday.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" ON THURSDAY

What will be practically the last programme given under the direction of Allan Dunn, who is shortly to leave for the coast, is attracting the attention of pleasure seekers who have often enjoyed the successful entertainments piloted by that gentleman. The affair in question is the benefit performance of Charley's Aunt, given by prominent amateurs with the laudable view of clearing off the debts of the Hawaii Yacht Club. The performances two in number, are to take place on Thursday and Saturday evenings of this week and are likely to be given before crowded houses. The play itself is perhaps the funniest of all modern comedies and the players who are to interpret it have been chosen with great good fortune in securing people who are suited to the temperaments of the parts they play. WAR NEWS BY MONGOLIA

(Continued from page one). Anaschantian we were with the foreign military attaches and the nearest we were allowed to the battlefield was eight miles. "What is the meaning of the extreme caution of the Japanese?" he echoed in answer to the question, "Well, that is what puzzles me. It is I suppose a part of their general scheme of censorship, but while I can and do recognize the necessity of a censorship as rigid as may be required the Japanese system is censorship gone mad. Why even my sketches for the Illustrated London News had to be handed to the censor with the envelopes unsealed. As I was far from the front there was nothing that I could have supplied that could have proved harmful, but that made no difference, the officer could do what he pleased with my work and send it on when he pleased, so of course I have no means of knowing what was used and what was not." It was suggested that the Japanese might be excused for doing as they saw best when they were in a fight for their very existence. "I have no quarrel with that," said Mr. Prior quickly, "but what I object to is their repeated and persistent breach of faith with me and of course, with every other correspondent. Week after week promises were made to us that we should go to the front, but these promises were never kept and I do not believe now that they were ever intended to be kept. Not once or twice, but scores of times were we deliberately misled and there comes a time even in a war correspondent's life when patience ceases to be a virtue. Eleven of us who have stood it from the beginning have 'shucked it.' Richard Harding Davis came down with me a part of the way and is I think returning by the Canadian line. The others will be coming along by ones and twos." "No man can say what may happen if the powers get involved," he said. "I am no alarmist and I sincerely hope that I am altogether astray in my views, but such as they are, they are." Another war correspondent returning on the Mongolia is Percy W. Fisher of the London Times. He has spent many months past picking about the Gulf of Pechili on the Times wireless telegraph boat the Haimun. As far as actual fighting goes, he saw exactly the same amount as did Prior and he endorses in every way the complaint of bad faith on the part of the Japanese officials. "We heard firing off Port Arthur," he said sadly, "and that is all we have to report. The Japanese kept on making the most polite promises that they never had the slightest intention of keeping, and there is not a correspondent out there who is not now quite well aware that he has been completely fooled." Fisher provides an important item as to the condition of military affairs in Japan. Not only the entire first line of the army has gone to the front, but the entire first reserve has been called out and is now under arms. A little before leaving Japan, the Times' correspondent learned that the second reserves had been called out. This reserve is composed of men who are practically untrained. They are armed with a repeating rifle of much less power than that used by the other Japanese forces and are in no sense to be considered as valuable a force as that now at the front. Major L. L. Seaman, U. S. A., who has been watching the initial operations officially, is returning to make an official report at Washington and while the contents of that report are intended for official eyes only, he makes no secret of his admiration of the remarkable efficiency of the transport, commissary and medical branches of the Japanese forces. Their intelligence bureau is also perfectly equipped and it is to these particulars that the success of the Japanese are in no small measure due.

PLANTERS ADVISED TO IMPORT BATS

(Continued from page one.) on the question of Bats for the Island, and they say that Professor Perkins thinks they will not thrive in Hawaii. I wish to say that here in Porto Rico there are millions of them everywhere. They have enormous caves of bat guano. I, myself, have seen several hundred tons in one cave, and the bats are so thick that I could say there is scarcely an evening that they don't fly all through our house. "Now, these bats, of course, get their work in at night when the change is after his food, and the chances are, and it is very likely too, that these very bats keep down the pest, and my thought is that as they (the bats) do flourish in Porto Rico, certainly they should flourish in Hawaii, and I think Professor Perkins must be mistaken. I should strongly recommend the Planters' Association to import a lot there. "Another thing that we have here is a great many little frogs. They, of course, get their work in at night, and between the frogs and bats we haven't many changes."
