MRS. BETTINCOURT

Mrs. Bettincourt, the widow, was called and, with her, a Portuguese interpreter. Again the defense objected, on the ground that the witness understood English sufficiently to give her evidence directly in that language.

Mrs. Bettincourt appeared to understand English fairly well as the examination proceeded. Her husband had a policy for $1000 which she had given to May after her husband's death so that he could get the money for her.

May said he would have to have some proof of her husband's death. May was agent for the Germania Insurance Company. May had gone on her bond as administratrix and after she had signed all the papers, May told her he had sent them to the Germania Company. She then signed a draft in May's office, she thought this was for the amount to come from the policy. May said that he could keep the money in his office for her. The arrangement was that May was to keep the money for six months so that if there were claims against her husband's estate she need not say anything about the money. May told her to be quiet about it as he was her bondsman and it might get him into trouble.

After Dutra had told her something about the money she went to see May and asked him about the amount of the policy. May said he was very sorry but he had invested her money with $3000 in the Pacific Mill. She had not told him to invest her money at any time. He gave her no stock, nor even a receipt. After that she called many times but never got any from him so she went to lawyer Bitting about it. May told her that he did not like her getting a lawyer. He got very angry.

Here Attorney General Andrews produced an agreement which Mrs. Bettincourt identified. It was to allow her to reside in a house on Punchbowl from month to month until he could pay her $1000, less $15 a month for rent. She had not signed this paper. May also offered her three lots in Kaimuki in settlement of her claim.

Cross-examined by Attorney Dunne Mrs. Bettincourt said that her husband left no other estate than the $1000 policy. Her husband she knew had been in debt and she feared that if the creditors knew of the insurance money they would take it. Dutra suggested that May should be asked to act as bondsman. May at first refused but afterwards agreed.

She denied absolutely saying that when the money came May could invest it for her so that he could pay himself for having done the favor to her.

Attorney Dunne pursued his enquiries along this line at some length but was unable to get an admission from the witness that she had ever authorized May to invest her money in any way. The trial is going on this afternoon.

WORK BEGUN ON NORMAL SCHOOL

A FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLAR STRUCTURE ON PUNCHBOWL QUARRY SITE.

Work has begun on the Normal school, which is to occupy the old Punchbowl quarry site, at the corner of Lunalihi, Hackfeld and Quarry streets. The building is to cost about $45,000 and will be a fine three-story structure. It is planned to have the opening about a year from now.

The Normal school site is one of the finest in Honolulu. The school has about two and a half acres of land, commanding a fine view of the Pacific ocean and shore line of Honolulu, and more land, to include the entire square may eventually be acquired. Behind is the quarry pit which Superintendent Atkinson proposes to have terraced, so that it will contain a beautiful display of flowers and various plants. The architects' plans by Dickey and Newcomb, show a handsome three-story structure.

"We shall have three or four hundred school children," said Superintendent Atkinson "in the new building and the Normal class will probably number nearly a hundred. The plans have received much careful attention from Mr. Newcomb aside from the work he was given under his contract and public thanks are due him for the interest he has shown and the time he has given to the matter gratis."

The original lot set aside for the school was considerably smaller than the one now devoted to the purpose. The two and a half acres allow space for large play grounds for the children and the plans include elaborate beautifying of the grounds. The superintendent will endeavor to have the whole block devoted to the school, making a total space of about three acres.

HAWAII SENDS SOME CHRISTMAS CHEER

MAUNA LOA ARRIVED THIS MORNING WITH CONSIDERABLE CARGO OF GOOD THINGS TO EAT

The preliminary shipment of Christmas dainties from the west coast of Hawaii arrived this morning by the steamer Mauna Loa. The vessel brought the usual large assortment of freight and had an unusually large number of pigs of which there were about 75. About 25 crates of chickens were also sent down as were fruits. The vessel also brought 728 sacks of coffee and 2,318 bags of sugar which completes the output of Hutchinson plantation for the season of 1964. Purser Conkling reports that Hutchinson will resume grinding some time after Christmas. Honuapo plantation has shut down for a short time.

While the freight on the vessel this trip was not much larger than usual, the purser and freight clerk were considerably busier in handling it than on an ordinary trip. There were so many individual consignments of Christmas presents that the list of consignees was considerably strung out.

Purser Conkling reports that there has been no rain in Kau since last report. The weather on both the outward and inward trips was pleasant. The weather will make one more trip to Hawaii before Christmas.

He will return here on the 24th.

A PLEA FOR A JUVENILE COURT

THE CASE OF SOME BOYS IN THE POLICE COURT FORMS A TEXT FOR IT.

Former District Magistrate L. A. Dickey is in favor of a juvenile court. He argued today in favor of the establishment of such an institution in Honolulu. Judge Dickey made his argument in the police court this morning before Judge Whitney.

The occasion arose when about eleven small boys were charged with having gambled or been present in the neighborhood of the Maroon block yesterday afternoon where gambling was in progress. Judge Dickey, while not exactly entered as counsel for the boys, announced that in a way, he represented two of the defendants and took the occasion to address the court regarding the need for the juvenile court.

Dickey stated that he wanted something similar to that spoken of by Judge Lindsay of Minnesota. It was wrong Dickey thought to send a boy to the reform school, or suspend a sentence over him without some strong effort having been made to reform him. He thought it was best to establish a juvenile court for boys and girls where the cases could be specially inquired into and efforts be made to reform the children. Reprimands should be given the children and they should be secured employment outside if possible, reports should be made of them to the court by officers specially detailed for this work. In case however, any of the juveniles became incorrigible then it was time to turn them over to the regular police authorities.

Judge Whitney reprimanded the crowd. He fined five larger gamblers $3 and costs.

LEPER'S APPEAL

petitioner as to the existence in every sovereignty of certain inherent powers of internal management and control, usually described under the term Police Powers. Neither do we deny that the legitimate exercise of the Police Powers of this Territory might well be extended to the protection of the people against the evils of the disease of leprosy, and that such protection might be found to necessitate the apprehension and isolation of persons known to be suffering from the disease; but we insist that all such powers are held, and must be exercised in subordination to the well recognized and expressly recited limitations of the Constitution of the United States. If the restraint of this woman is sanctioned by the Constitution, she must submit to that restraint; if not, she is entitled to be discharged therefrom.

"It will not be disputed that among the rights of every citizen is that of personal liberty, of property, and of the pursuit of happiness; and that none of said rights can be legally abridged or curtailed except for cause and by methods sanctioned by the Constitution. This right of 'personal liberty' consists in the right of free locomotion, of changing situation, or moving one's person to whatsoever place one's own inclination may direct, without imprisonment or restraint, unless by due process of law."

"From the earliest times in the history of our race when the Government assumed control over the persons and estates of idiots and lunatics, there has been some provision for an inquiry into the mental condition of the patient, or person charged with idiocy or lunacy as the case might be.

"It is a most remarkable thing that the Government should claim the right to imprison, without legal process, and to banish for life to the horrors of a Molokai lazaretto, a person claimed to be physically diseased, while conceding, as the government must concede, that the mildest of lunatics could not be committed for a day to the Insane Hospital without a judicial inquiry into his mental status, and a judicial decision declaring him to be insane.

"Is it not a denial to those suspected of leprosy of the 'equal protection of the laws,' guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment, that they should be subjected to the arbitrary control of the Board of Health, acting through physicians of its own appointment, and responsible to it alone, and holding position solely by the grace of the Board's favor? Is there any reason in principle, why a person should be liable, upon the mere say-so, or certificate of a given number of physicians, who may be ignorant, who may be vicious, who may be prejudiced, who may be enemies of the person whose liberty is at stake, who have taken no oath to examine diligently, or certify truly, to be immune for life in the living hell of Molokai, when even the mildest of Penal Statutes, may not incur a money fine of one dollar, without due and formal accusation, plea, arraignment, trial, and judgment in a court of law, where all the rights guaranteed by the constitution as to witnesses, counsel and other modes of prosecution and defense, shall be strictly observed?"

FEDERAL JURY HARD AT WORK

SIX DEFEATED DEMOCRATS TELL FIFTEEN REPUBLICANS, AND OTHERS HOW IT HAPPENED.

Sharp at ten o'clock this morning the Federal Grand Jury met in the room wherein Judge Dole is used to dispense justice with an equal hand. Headed by Foreman S. M. Damon, the members of the grand inquest filed into the room, bailiff C. E. Culvert tied the door, and the investigation of the conduct of the recent election was at once commenced.

As the present proceedings are distinctly of a political type, even admitting that the judicial issue is paramount, considerable interest has been displayed over the personnel of the grand jury in relation to the party affiliations of its component units. As far as could be gathered this morning, of the twenty-two members there are fifteen Republicans, five Democrats, one Home Ruler and one in the doubtful column. This showing may be wrong in some details but the list was figured out thus:

Republican: F. L. Waldron, S. G. Wilder, Charles Butzke, C. G. Ballentine, J. P. Winne, G. C. Watt, S. N. Hundley, E. D. Carley, Hugh MacCorriston, C. M. V. Forester, J. A. McCandless, W. O. Atwater, J. A. Gilman, J. P. Cooke and E. R. Bath, (15).

Democratic: S. M. Damon (Foreman) J. W. McDonald, John Effinger, H. A. Wilder and J. J. Spitzer, (5).

Home Rule: G. K. Kala. Doubtful: H. Lancaster. Of course the grand jurors will go ahead and do their duty quite regardless of political affiliations but there is a certain interest in their leanings nevertheless.

Only a few minutes after the jury met, the first witness was called in the person of G. J. Waller, defeated Democratic candidate for the Senate. Then in succession Captain Campbell, H. J. Mossman, H. T. Moore, Col. Curtis E. Iaukea and J. F. Langston were called.

The whole six witnesses called during the morning session figured in the "also ran" class on the evening of November 8. Of course the oath they had taken prevented them from telling just what they had disclosed of disgraceful Republican methods to the Grand Jurors but Col. Iaukea, who remained in the corridor during the sitting seemed pleased with the progress made.

The session adjourned until this afternoon.
