

GREAT COMMONER BRYAN'S SPEECH

WILLIAM J. BRYAN IS IN HONOLULU

IS MET IN THE HARBOR BY REPRESENTATIVE DEMOCRATS AND TAKEN BY AUTOMOBILE ON THE GRAND TOUR—TO MAKE A PUBLIC ADDRESS AT THE HAWAIIAN HOTEL—WHAT HE SAW AND HOW HE SAW IT.

William Jennings Bryan, twice the Democratic candidate for President of the United States, was an honored guest in Honolulu today with Mrs. Bryan, Miss Grace Bryan and William Jennings Bryan, Jr. They arrived on the Manchuria on their trip round the world and were entertained during their short stay by leading Democrats, by members of the Elks and by such personal friends as Col. Sam Parker. The reception of Colonel Bryan, for it will be remembered that he has the title of colonel by virtue of his command of the Nebraska volunteers during the Spanish war, began almost as soon as the big black steamship cast anchor outside the harbor. E. B. McClanahan, R. H. Trent, Senator Palmer Woods, and Col. Curtis Haukea represented the Democratic party on the Customs launch Waterwich while George H. Angus and Harry Wilder went along to represent the Elks, of which order the Democratic leader is a member. Colonel Sam Parker went along in his personal capacity for he is a warm admirer of the Democratic idol even though he is a Republican himself.

After the usual delay while the medical inspection was being made, Col. Bryan with his wife, son and daughter were seen at the gangway. He waved a salutation to the crowd in the launch below and commenced the descent of the accommodation ladder, followed by Mrs. Bryan, and his son and daughter. Hearty handshakes were exchanged and the formality of introduction was dispensed with.

"Hello Colonel," he said to Sam Parker. "I got your cable offering to kill the fatted bullock when I came. You must be a farmer like myself if you have bullocks on tap like that."

"Well I'm a sort of a farmer," replied Colonel Sam, modestly omitting to mention that his "farm" is about the size of a principality.

"And so you are in the Senate," he said to Palmer Woods. "How much of a standing have we in the Hawaiian Senate?"

"Well, I am it," said the Senator. "I am all of it."

There was a general laugh in which the Democrat joined.

"There must be one satisfactory feature about that," he said. "You don't have much trouble in your caucuses."

"Only one Democrat in the Senate," he mused. "How many in the House?"

Naturally enough the party laughed again and the big man again joined in when he was told that there were none at all.

"Well, never mind," he said placing his hand on Senator Woods' shoulder with a cheery slap. "I know that you as a Democrat must have done such good work in the Senate that we'll have a majority there next time."

"You bet your life," said the Senator, dropping into the vernacular.

Col. Bryan is so familiar a figure to Americans that a description of his personal appearance is unnecessary. His strong features and intense personality are matters which are perfectly familiar to everybody. He has gained somewhat in weight during recent years, but his manner is still as alert as ever. Mrs. Bryan is a sweet faced lady with a pretty complexion, healthily browned by the breezes of the

BRYAN DESCRIBES HIS TRIP

"I have no particular message to give to the Democrats of Hawaii or to my political opponents either, for that matter," said Col. Bryan to the Star's representative on the Customs launch, "except that I know we are all aiming to achieve the best results for the land we love. We have different ways of going about it, sometimes we are right, and sometimes we are wrong, but the effort of striving to accomplish something for permanent good is never wasted. As to politics I have nothing whatever to say. I am not on a tour of instruction, but on one of investigation. With my wife and two children I am simply going to loaf around the world, so to speak. It is a trip that I have looked forward to all my life and the realization of it seems sometimes almost too good to be true. "We all have much to learn and only for the triteness of it I would repeat the old saying regarding the broadening influence of travel. I am studying and I know that I shall enjoy every minute of my work."

Pacific. The gentle courtesy exhibited by Col. Bryan towards his wife as he helped her on the launch from the swinging ladder was just what one would expect from him towards her.

The younger Bryans, William Jennings Junior and Miss Grace are fair samples of the average American youth, bubbling over with health and good spirits.

Col. Bryan gave a rapid outline of his itinerary. After a visit to Japan, he and his family will go to Shanghai and thence to Hong Kong and on to the Philippines. A detour from the regular route will be then made, New Zealand and Australia being on the program. Col. Bryan is particularly anxious to see for himself the results of recent legislation in New Zealand. Thence they will proceed to Ceylon and India. Having visited the great British possession they will take ship for Egypt, passing up the Red Sea, and the Suez canal.

This is what I should do with that wall space that I have. How well it would look to have it filled in with a nice set of GLOBE-WERNICKE book-cases; and it would certainly keep my books in better shape. I think I will take ten minutes and go and see them at
