THE FRUIT SHIPPED TO PORTLAND

ARRIVED THERE IN GOOD CONDITION—PORTLAND PAPERS DEVOTE CONSIDERABLE SPACE.

The Portland Oregonian of August 9 has the following regarding the experimental shipment of island fruit made under the direction of J. E. Higgins of the Experiment Station: Fruits from Hawaii, particularly the alligator pear and the papaya, are to be introduced to the people of Portland. Both varieties are delicious in flavor and contain many medicinal properties.

For this purpose J. E. Higgins, horticulturist of the Hawaii Agricultural Experiment Station at Honolulu, arrived in the city yesterday with several tons of the fruits. Today samples of the pear and papaya will be served at the regular luncheon to members of the Commercial Club. Until the supply is exhausted these products of the Hawaiian Islands will be on sale at the fruit stores of Portland.

These two fruits grow in abundance in the islands. For some reason, principally because the impression has prevailed that they could not be shipped to advantage, neither the pear nor the papaya has had a market in this country. People in the islands have imagined that the fruit would not stand the long journey from Honolulu to the Coast. This, however, has proven to be untrue.

It is this mission that has brought Mr. Higgins to Portland. He will introduce the fruits among the people and devise ways and means whereby the shipments can be made regularly in the future to all cities near the shores of the Pacific ocean. The shipment which he brought with him arrived here in perfect condition, although the fruits were picked 12 days ago. From Honolulu to San Francisco the samples were kept in cold storage, but since then they have been given no special care.

Mr. Higgins is also investigating the best methods to be used in packing the pears and papayas. He will determine whether the fruits will stand the trip best in cold storage on the decks of the steamers where they will have the benefit of the open air. Also whether rice hulls or crimped strawboard will furnish the best results for packing. Papayas, pronounced pa-paya, is one of the greatest fruits in the world for the human stomach. It is rich in vegetable pepsin and aids digestion in a number of ways. All parts of the papaya tree contain a certain amount of pepsin. The people of Hawaii have a habit when they get a tough beefsteak of wrapping it in papaya leaves overnight. The next morning it is tender as the finest sirloin to be had in the market. The meat absorbs the pepsin from the leaves and as a result becomes tender.

There are a number of varieties of papaya. From one kind an extract of the vegetable pepsin is taken and put up in tablets and may be had for indigestion in any drugstore in all parts of the world. The papaya grows on trees and is as large as a good-sized cantaloupe. Mark Twain, who at one time lived in Honolulu, once said of the papaya that it looked like the American pumpkin growing on a tree. Mr. Clemens, however, was a great admirer of the fruit and ate it for breakfast every morning during his stay in the islands.

Papaya can best be eaten with a little sugar or straight, or flavored with lemon juice to suit the taste. It is an elegant dish when cooked and can also be made into a sherbet. One of the treats at the table during a trip across the Pacific Ocean is the papaya, which is served on the Oriental and Australian boats after leaving Honolulu, where a large supply is always taken on board. Papaya trees bear the year round.

The alligator pear, avocador or palta pear—it is sometimes known by all three names—also grows on a tree, but only during the summer months. Horticulturists are trying to do away with the name alligator in connection with the pear, claiming that it is somewhat of a drawback, preferring to have the fruit known as the palta pear. This pear has a delicious flavor and is a healthful food. It is pre-eminently a salad fruit, or may be eaten with salt and pepper, vinegar or with French salad dressing. The people of the islands use the pear a great deal as a dessert. It is particularly nutritious and has the flavor somewhat of a walnut.

Another reason for Mr. Higgins' visit to the Coast is to investigate the pineapple trade between the state cities and the islands where the apple is grown in great abundance. The Hawaiian pineapple is considered to be among the finest in the world. The pineapple exports from Hawaii have not been just what they should be and Mr. Higgins will try to determine upon a remedy to stimulate the business. Many canning concerns have factories at Honolulu or at nearby points and put up the pineapples which are shipped all over the world. England, and in fact all Europe, buys more of these products each year.

Mr. Higgins also has several samples of the Brazilian or apple banana among his collection. This is a small fruit and the people of the island believe will appeal to the fancy trade in this country. The apple banana possesses a certain agreeable acid flavor and will be introduced in the markets of the Coast cities.

Mr. Higgins has lived at Honolulu eight years. He will remain here several days, after which he will go to Seattle. The Hawaii station is a branch of the United States Department of Agriculture. There are 55 deported Chinese who were transferred from the S. S. Manchuria to the local immigration station for detention. Out of this number 36 are from Mexico. They crossed the line from Sonoma to Nogales, Arizona, and were captured at that place by the United States authorities. Some of them had their queues cut wear sombreros and dress like typical three card monte dealers. All talk Spanish fluently. VERY IMPORTANT. It is very important that women should avoid constipation. It predisposes and aggravates every symptom of female weakness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills cure Constipation by strengthening the nerves and muscles of the stomach which digest the food. The result is a gentle, natural movement of the bowels. For children they have no equal. At druggists. Star want ads pay at once.
