THE VISITING CONGRESSMEN ARRIVE

THE TRANSPORT BUFORD IS SIGHTED EARLY THIS MORNING---VISITORS HAD A DELIGHTFUL VOYAGE

For effect and lasting impression the arrival of the United States Army transport Buford off this port with the Congressional party during the night could not have been arranged to better advantage. To those of the party who were awake at the time there was some little disappointment at having to wait till daylight to get a glimpse of the beautiful country they had come so far to see, but to them and to their sleeping brethren came a glad surprise at dawn when the city, hills and harbor were revealed.

It was grander than if they had viewed the scene gradually, approaching from a distance; it was theatrical, like the raising of a curtain in a darkened theater to discover a wondrous scene beyond.

PLEASURE AND PROPHECY.

American law-makers and their women folk lined the side of the vessel looking toward the land and a series of delighted exclamations had to be given room before any definite opinions could be expressed. And then, while the ladies were worshipping scenery and admiring the morning cloud effects over the Paik and Kaimuki, members of the Rivers and Harbors and Fortifications Committees of Congress were letting their eyes wander over contours with careful scrutiny, sizing-up Oahu as an asset to the nation from naval, military and commercial points of view. To their gaze imaginary guns crouched behind natural barriers ready to spring to deal death for defense and then drop out of sight; promontories were clothed with the forts of the future and the widened and deepened harbor sheltered the ships of the world which had come through the great Panama canal.

TAKING OAHU TO HEART.

As the Buford entered the harbor and the crowds grew on the naval wharves, crowds with flowers and music and a hearty welcome, the big men from the national capital probably felt Hawaii nearer to the nation than they had ever before realized, nor was that nearness gauged by geographical miles.

Already were members of Honolulu's reception committees aboard, having gone out in the launch, and jets were about the necks of the distinguished visitors.

SOLDIERS LINED UP.

On the naval wharf two companies of the National Guard were lined up in faultless array, straight and statuesque.

The Hawaiian band was also stationed on the wharf and discoursed national and local airs continuously to the ever increasing delight of the big party.

OUR BIG MEN AS PORTERS.

Some little time elapsed between the time of docking, 7:15 o'clock and the disembarkation of the party. Meanwhile representative Honolulu people were aboard welcoming and getting acquainted and generally making the visitors feel at home. Hawaiian Senators and Representatives, judges and business men were assisting the mainlanders with their baggage, answering questions willingly and directing inquirers to hotels, the post office and the cable office, for several were at once anxious to send back word that they had arrived.

GIVEN SEVENTEEN GUNS.

As the party came down the gangway the guns of the naval station broke forth with the Congressional salute of seventeen guns. As they passed through from the naval wharf to the naval station grounds the Hawaiian band played and the National Guard saluted, the latter falling in behind the party as it passed out.

CALL ON ADMIRAL VERY.

At the naval station Hawaiian musicians stood around the flag pole upon which the Stars and Stripes had been hoisted promptly at 8 o'clock and entertained the party which was lined up on the veranda of the station. Admiral Very here received the visitors and Captain Carter of the Iroquois and others of the Navy were on hand, in uniform, to do honor, U. S. marines also being in evidence.

AN EARLY LANDING.

The reception of the distinguished visitors was not altogether in accordance with the expectations of the committee in charge of this part of the affair, for the reason that it was not expected that the landing would be made so early as was done. Before 7 o'clock the Buford heaved anchor and moved towards the harbor from the anchorage just outside where she had lain since early in the morning. Only a small part of the general reception committee was on hand, although a considerable number had arrived by the time the transport docked at the Naval wharf.

MET BY LAUNCH.

The Buford had already entered the harbor when she was met by the Admiral's launch bearing as members of the Territorial reception committee, Secretary Atkinson, Senators Lane, P. P. Woods and Chas. F. Chillingworth, Sheriff Lauke, and representatives of the Star and Bulletin, who boarded her. Almost all of the Congressional party were at breakfast when the committee arrived, but they soon appeared on deck where introductions took place and the formal welcome was accorded them.

BAND ON IROQUOIS.

In the meantime the Government tug

Iroquois carrying the band and the members of Ellis' Glee Club, had followed the launch and the transport was escorted to her dock with stirring music.

The gangway was swung in place shortly before 8 o'clock and Delegate Kuhio and a large number of citizens went on board and greeted the party in true Hawaiian style, the guests being covered with leis by a group of pretty Hawaiian girls. This feature of the occasion was received with great pleasure by the entire number.

NAVAL STATION VISITED.

Under the guidance of the committee the visitors left the vessel shortly before 8:30 o'clock and repaired to the grounds of the Naval Station where, while awaiting carriages to take them to their various stopping places, they were entertained by the Ellis Glee Club and had their pictures taken. Within half an hour after this all had been dispatched by automobiles or carriages to the different hotels or homes where they will be entertained during their stay in Honolulu.

PRACTICED STUMP SPEECHING.

The party occupied two special cars on the Overland Limited from Chicago and report a very pleasant trip in spite of delay by two freight wrecks.

The train was held six hours in the snow sheds of the Sierras by a derailed freight car; but the stop was enlivened by some unprecedented campaign speeches, every Congressman being dragged into making a speech from the observation platform to an imaginary audience in the snow shed.

PLEASANT TIME REPORTED.

The train was over 18 hours late in reaching San Francisco, and the party had no time to spend in that city.

The party was met at the Oakland Mole by Col. Clem and Major Bellinger who conveyed the guests on a special boat direct to the Buford where they arrived an hour and a half before sailing time.

The trip down on the Buford has been an extremely comfortable one, made more enjoyable by the many courtesies extended by Lieutenant Moore and all the officers of the ship.

Farewell Dance At Seaside

A hop will be given at the beautiful Seaside Hotel tomorrow evening as a farewell to Captain Clark and the officers of U. S. S. Annapolis which will very shortly leave for Pago Pago. The visiting Congressional party will be made especially welcome and will find many unique and attractive features in the naval hop as given in Hawaii. Of course the town folk and local army and navy officers will be present. The Elleford Theatrical company will come out after the performance for a few dances at the end of the evening, and will unquestionably add to the gaiety. We strongly advise the visiting Senators and Congressmen to be sure and be in attendance, as the pretty and individual dances at the Seaside are getting a world wide reputation.
