DON'T WASTE WATER

SUPERINTENDENT HOLLOWAY SOUNDS WARNING OF THE SUMMER SHORTAGE.

It would be well for the residents of Honolulu to start at once to curtail in the use of water—not for drinking purposes however, say the authorities. The indications are that the annual summer shortage of water will occur this year. Superintendent of Public Works Holloway this morning sounded warning of the likelihood of such a condition.

Already his department has taken steps to curtail on the use of water. The section of Makiki lying between Hastings street and Wilder avenue, has been changed from the high pressure system to the low pressure service. The policy that is being followed now is to curtail as much as possible on the use of reservoir water, the gravity system, and use the water from the pumping system. It is likely that the pump at the College Hills section will be started in a very short time.

July, Superintendent Holloway thinks will see the shortage of the water supply become apparent; unless of course, some summer showers occur to relieve the situation. The principal cause for the waste of water occurs in irrigating. People leave the faucets running over night and the waste of water from this source is very great. There need be no curtailment in the use of water for household purposes.

Work is progressing at the Nuuanu dam as usual. Sluicing is in progress but owing to the expected shortage of the water supply, the sluicing is not being done with any of the Nuuanu valley water supply. That water is being diverted to the reservoirs. The stream from Lolomahu Gulch lying Walkikiward from the dam site, is being used in this work on the dam.

PLANS OF COMMITTEE SUITS CONGRESSMEN

WIRELESS MESSAGE FROM DELEGATE SAYS MEMBERS WANT TO SEE HALEIWA AND WAHIAWA.

It is evident that the Congressional party wants to see the pineapple industry of Oahu, as indicated by a wireless message received here this morning from Delegate Kuhio, by G. W. Smith, chairman of the entertainment committee for this county. The message follows:

"HILO, May 21, 1907.—G. W. Smith, Honolulu; Members favor Haleiwa and Wahaiwa trip. Sail for Coast on afternoon of thirteenth. No more sugar plantations. (Sgd.) KUHIO."

In reply Mr. Smith wired the following:

"Monday, Pearl Harbor; Tuesday and Wednesday, Waiailua and Wahaiwa."
This is in accordance with the plans of the committee here, and apparently is right in line with what the members want to see themselves. The party will get back here probably on Saturday morning, and the principal remaining events will occur as outlined in the message. It is evident that the visitors have seen all of the sugar industry that they feel in need of, and hence do not want to waste time in going through the same thing when they get back here.

Carrie Nation In Washington

Carrie Nation.

Carrie Nation, of hatchet, saloon-smashing notoriety, has broken loose again, this time attacking President Roosevelt in her paper, "The Hatchet" for which the publication was temporarily denied, the use of the mails. Mrs. Nation has taken up her residence in the Capital and announces that she intends to drive liquor and tobacco out of the District of Columbia. She recently said: "The nation's capital should be clean and I intend to run liquor out of this town. The American women will not stand for the smoking of cigarettes among members of their sex as they are smoked in some circles in the East and there is work for me to do here."

LONDON'S PLANS TO WORK WHILE HERE

WILL MAKE HOME AT PEARL HARBOR IN ORDER TO BE QUIET—LONDON DOES NOT INTEND TO LECTURE OR BE IN LIME LIGHT IF HE CAN HELP IT—STORY OF THE VOYAGE ACROSS THE PACIFIC.

"I feel nothing but satisfaction over our trip thus far," said Jack London yesterday afternoon as he sat on the cool lanai in front of the handsome home of Albert Waterhouse on the Peninsula, where he and Mrs. London had just been entertained with luncheon after landing from the Snark an hour before. He expressed some surprise that anyone should have imagined that they should have felt any inclination towards abandoning his general program of touring the world for the next several years in the tight little craft which he had built especially for the trip.

London lounged easily in a big rocking chair and smoked cigarettes as he talked to a number of newspaper men who had made their pilgrimage to Pearl City for the purpose of interviewing the interesting young novelist of a new school. He was dressed in negligee costume, without a coat, and in duck trousers which were not exactly fresh from the laundry. His feet were clad in a pair of dilapidated tennis shoes and his thick hair was not unbecomingly mussed up from running his fingers through it from time to time.

Mrs. London was also with her husband, but she did not remain in one place many minutes at a time. She was like an enthusiastic school girl and appeared to be enjoying herself to the utmost. "It's like fairyland," she declared as she ran down the verandah steps to fondle three playful black puppies on the lawn. "It was good to get ashore," she admitted, as she came a minute later and seated herself near her husband, in time to hear the remark about their being tired of the trip. "But we didn't mind it at all until land was in sight. In fact I think we all would not have minded if the trip had been a week or two longer, for we had just been on board long enough for all of us to get used to it and enjoyed it thoroughly. But it was tantalizing to be within sight of this beautiful island for almost three days without being able to reach it."

Mrs. London like her husband had landed in the clothes she had worn on the voyage, and she looked exceedingly neat and comfortable. The suit consisted of dark blue bloomers gathered at the knee, and a low necked sailor blouse of the same material. She had on plain black stockings and wore soft moccasins on her feet. The dress was exceedingly becoming, but one which from its unconventionality would probably attract considerable attention in a crowd. She was perfectly at ease, however, and in the greatest good spirits.

"The trip was very uneventful," said Mr. London, "and we had fine weather all the way. In fact we would have made better time if we had had it a little rougher, but we got along well. The Snark behaved beautifully, and steered so well that although we kept a regular watch at the wheel of nights, we frequently let her steer herself for an hour at a time during the day, and rarely kept a man at the wheel during meals, all going below together. We only raised one sail on the entire trip, when we passed almost hull down a full rigged ship, a few days out of San Francisco. We did not speak this vessel, although we possibly could have done so."

"Our course was south of the regular track or steamers and we pushed further south than necessary in hopes of

HILO HARBOR AND THE HILO BREAKWATER OF INTEREST TO VISITORS

(Special by Wireless to The Star.)

HILO, May 21, 9:35 p. m.—The Congressmen who are members of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, together with some of the others, with Acting Governor Atkinson and Captain Otwell of the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, spent nearly the whole of yesterday in a launch in the harbor.
The plans for the Hilo Breakwater were thoroughly explained and outlined in place. Just where it is proposed to locate the breakwater was shown, and its purpose in protecting the harbor, and its plans in relation to prevailing winds, currents and conditions of sea and weather were fully explained.
The remainder of the party were entertained in various ways, being shown points of interest and given views of the many picturesque places in and about Hilo.
Today the entire party has gone to the Volcano where it is to have the novel experience of eating a meal cooked, under the direction of Lycurgus, over the hot cracks in the crater of Kilauea.

ELEVEN SALOONS SHUT OUT

THE SALOON LICENSE BOUNDARY ADOPTED BY THE LICENSE COMMISSION YESTERDAY KNOCKS OUT ELEVEN OF SEVENTY SALOONS BUT IT DOES UP ONLY ONE JAP—THE SALOONS THAT ARE PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

Out of a total of 70 retail or saloon licenses in the city of Honolulu only eleven will be affected by the decision of the liquor license commission, relative to the establishment of the district in which saloon licenses shall be held. The greatest proportion of the eleven are saloons located in the Kakaako and Kewalo districts, but there are others extending mauka Walkikiward and Ewawai, that are also to be put out of business by the decision reached at the meeting yesterday.

The district decided upon by the commission is bounded as follows: Punchbowl street, Beretania to King and along King to Liliha, southwesterly from the foot of Liliha street to the gas works. This district embraces the Walkiki side of Punchbowl street and the mauka sides of King and Beretania streets. No license will be issued on Fort street. This district applies only to saloon or retail liquor licenses. The commission has the authority to issue as many wholesale, restaurant or hotel licenses outside of this district as may be desired but no saloons shall be operated outside of the limits.

Following are the saloons that are affected by the decision and will have to cease business upon the expiration of the present licenses:
Carl Buchjost, 604 S. Queen street.
Manuel M. Calhan, 625 S. Queen street.

Kewalo Saloon, Cook and Lanikai streets.
Rosa, Correa and Pregally, Queen and South Streets.
Ocean View, W. C. Bergin at Walkiki.
J. Q. Baptista at Punchbowl and Luso.
Isaac Cockett, at 2306 N. King street.
R. W. Condon, at 1624 Liliha street.
S. Kojima at 222 N. Vineyard street.
Charles Lambert at 1246 Fort street.
Pauoa Wine Co., at 1266 Luso street.
All of the present licenses, held under the old law, will go out of existence on June 30. In the interim the holders will have to make their applications for
