CLARKE CAN'T ESCAPE FURNISS

SHERIFF FROM MICHIGAN TAKES NO STOCK IN MEEKNESS—THINKS OUR FORCE LARGE.

"You have the largest police force here of any town of the size I ever saw," said Sheriff Furniss from Michigan to Sheriff Iaukea of Oahu this morning. Sheriff Iaukea's eyebrows went up thirty per cent with signs of still rising. "You better let me show you around," he gasped, when he had somewhat recovered his breath.

The complaint since the new administration of police affairs took effect, where there has been any complaint, is that the force is not large enough to handle the 45,000 population.

However, Furniss looks like a man capable of doing three men's work and perhaps he thinks everybody else should do likewise.

Sheriff Iaukea courteously asked Sheriff Furniss to take a look around, but it seems that High Sheriff Henry had anticipated the County Sheriff, for Furniss stated that Henry was this afternoon to exhibit to him the true inwardness of the Bastille over on the reef.

Iaukea and Furniss are enjoying the latter's stay here and comparing notes in regard to the police systems of their respective bailiwicks. Furniss is gathering a few points and Iaukea is not losing any opportunity of acquiring the latest wrinkles in police work.

Furniss and his prisoner, Rev. W. D. Clarke, will return to Michigan per S. S. Sierra. They will not take passage in the transport Sherman, much as Furniss would like. It is immaterial to the forger-preacher how he travels, as long as he gets home. He is homesick.

Iaukea reported to Furniss that Clarke, wanted in Michigan for forgery, wife desertion, debts, etc., had been an ideal prisoner while at the station, giving no trouble and going through his daily cell-life like a model prisoner, taking his breakfast, shave, passage from the Bible, lunch, daily paper, afternoon nap, evening prayer, supper and sleep like a gentleman and never complaining.

"I'd rather he'd be mean," said Furniss, "they're easier to watch when they're mean. I see this fellow needs careful watching all the time. I don't trust these smooth ones over much."

Clarke has made no confession to Furniss, so far as is known and Furniss has asked him for none. He did not come here to get a confession; he came to take back the body of the man.

Clarke's lady consort while here will be interviewed before Furniss takes away the prisoner. Furniss has no instructions to take back the prisoner's wife's sister, with whom he left Michigan, although she may return on her own account.

It is believed that Clarke's anxiety to return home, even as a disgraced man, is on account of his children, whose forgiveness he craves. His wife has no complaint against him, but in his home town there seems to be a general desire to have him back, sort of a civic pride.

Clarke may be flying plans to give Furniss the slip and the Michigan sheriff is running no risks. He takes no stock in meekness, having handled that kind before and perhaps he is not to be laughed at for packing a chain to Honolulu for his prisoner, as reported in yesterday's Star.

Criminals Shun Former King

JAMES McNALLY

James McNally, the man who made $300,000 in the "green goods" game and came to be known as the "Green Goods King," is now a pauper in the workhouse on Hart's Island, New York City. And to add to his cup of bitterness is the fact that his fellows in misfortune and crime will have nothing to do with him. McNally says he has reformed, that there is never any good from a life of crime and that if he could live his life over again he would rather have honest work at $10 a week than any fortune got by dishonest means.

Madman Denudes His Wife Who Rides To Wharf In Laprobe

AORANGI PASSENGER SUFFERS BRAIN STORM ON FORT STREET—AND TEARS WOMAN'S CLOTHES.

A through stowage passenger aboard the S. S. Aorangi, evidently affected mentally, underwent a brain-storm on Fort street near Hotel street Wednesday afternoon shortly before the vessel left for Victoria. He was accompanied by his wife and they had been having some words.

Suddenly he knocked her hat off, seized her and tore off her jacket, then ripped her bodice and, grabbing her skirt, snatched it, together with other garments, almost entirely from her person.

The poor woman was frantic and made strenuous efforts to get away, meanwhile signalling a passing hack. Leaving most of her clothes on the street, she sprang into the hack and wrapped herself in the lap-robe, ordering the hackman to drive like mad to the Bishop wharf.

The husband chased the hack and jumped in with his wife as it turned a corner. The incident was as quickly over as it was exciting. Several men and women witnessed the scene.

The story of Lady Godiva who rode horseback through Coventry clothed only in her luxurious hair was no doubt recalled by the Aorangi lady as she rode through Honolulu in a lap-robe.

Iaukea Says It is Up to Supervisors to Explain

WILL NOT PAY ANY MORE HACK BILLS FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

Sheriff Iaukea wants to know what the Supervisors are trying to do with him and his department. He today looked over the official communications received from County Clerk Kalaoukaiani, in regard to the appropriations made by the Supervisors from time to time for the police department, and no where could he find a scratch that would indicate that the poor police department, already cut down by $150, was supposed to pay the hack and car fare bills of the Attorney General's office.

Up to the end of April, as such bills came in, he paid them, happening to have the money on hand and last month's bills amounted to only $52.90. But with the beginning of this month, seeing that the department would run short, Iaukea began to think that he was playing philanthropist to pay these bills, so he kicked and today he is kicking some more, for the argument has been waxing warm and the people up in the Executive building seem to think that because Iaukea has been paying the bills he is a good thing and might as well be pushed along for the payment of such bills through all eternity.

"I won't pay them," said Iaukea today, "if I will," which is a determined thing for a reform sheriff to say. Nevertheless he means it and the condemnatory epithet is popular in all walks of life.

Supervisor Dwight was asked what the Supervisors meant by allowing $1,000 for police incidentals, cut down from $1,150 and then expecting the police to pay $150 out for the Attorney General's department. Dwight couldn't explain. It seems that the police incidental fund after all, has been cut from $1,150 to $550. Most of May's Attorney General's department hack-bills are for the

PARTING WORDS FROM OUR GUESTS

George W. Norris, Nebraska.

Hon. G. W. Norris, representative from Nebraska, is one of the leading lawyers of his district, having been a number of times prosecuting attorney. In his visit here with the Congressional party he is not studying any special lines, but has been getting a general impression of conditions here. Naturally, however, he has been interested somewhat in the public buildings of the Territory, and he has taken an especial interest in the matter of the location of the new federal building to be built here a site for which was chosen on the lower side of King street, just east of Fort street. "I don't see what that location was made for," said Mr. Norris. "It will be practically hidden there. The place where that building should go is in the old opera house site. That building could well be dispensed with, and by putting the federal building there it will be where it is accessible from the other public department buildings, as well as being in a place where it can be worked into a scheme of beautifying that part of the city that could be made very effective."

Mr. Norris was also a good deal interested in the matter of diversified agriculture and the possibilities in this line. He was especially enthusiastic over the tobacco prospects. As he talked he was smoking a cigar which had been made by the U. S. Experiment Station of tobacco raised on Hawaii. "Allowing for the fact that the man who made this cigar is not an expert, and that the tobacco is not seasoned, this cigar is most excellent," Mr. Norris declared. "I got a hundred of them and intend to submit them to some experts when I get back, and also to give some around among the rest of the party when we get together. I can't but believe that there is a great big lot of money to be made in tobacco by some one who is willing to go at the matter in the right manner."

James H. Davidson, Wisconsin.

Hon. J. H. Davidson, Congressman from Wisconsin, who is a member of the Appropriation Committee and the Rivers and Harbors Committee, stated that he had taken an especial interest in the matter of harbor improvement especially as it effects the appropriations necessary.

"Of course we can never furnish money for all the improvements that are advocated at every session of Congress, and in the matter of harbors we must get some idea of their commercial importance present or prospective, in order to be guided. In this line first of all comes Honolulu. The $1,600,000 which has been recommended for putting Honolulu harbor in shape to handle the commerce of the port for two years to come, has already been partially appropriated, $400,000 which has been spent, and $400,000 more which is available and will be used at once. The next Congress will without question pass the remaining $800,000, either entire, or in such a way that the whole remaining work may be contracted for at one time, as we have feared that more favorable bids can be obtained this way.

"Pearl Harbor is not a matter that comes under the scope of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, being associated with the military and naval work of gathering witnesses in court cases.

Iaukea wants an understanding. He wants to know whether he is being bamboozled, humbugged, bluffed or merely the victim of an unfortunate mistake. "It is up to the Supervisors to explain," says the sheriff.
