WORK FOR SUBSIDY

BUT BILL NOW IN SIGHT DOES NOT HELP STEAMERS THIS WAY.

The following is by the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Daily News:
WASHINGTON, D. C., September 28.—A ship subsidy bill will be launched at the outset of the coming session of congress and pushed to a conclusion at once if possible. The present plans of ship subsidy advocates, as now told by themselves, are to accept the ship subsidy bill as it is passed the last house and make that a law. They admit that this particular bill is totally undesirable from their standpoint except that it is an opening wedge to future favorable ship subsidy legislation once the principle is accepted. Missionary work which has been going on throughout the country in favor of this legislation has revealed to the ship subsidy men that they cannot hope to do better than this.

The substitute bill which will be made the basis of ship subsidy legislation this winter passed the house after an exciting struggle by a small majority. It makes these provisions:
From a port on the Atlantic to Brazil, $300,000 a year for a monthly service, or $600,000 a year for a fortnightly service.
From a port on the Gulf of Mexico to Brazil, a monthly service at $600,000 a year.

From a port on the Atlantic coast to Argentina, $400,000 for a monthly service, or $800,000 for a fortnightly service.
From a port on the Pacific to the Isthmus of Panama, Peru and Chile, $300,000 a year for a monthly service, or $600,000 for a fortnightly service.
The bill as it passed the house also carried a provision for enrolling seamen of the merchant marine as members of the naval reserve.

No one who recalls the details of the fight over subsidy legislation in the last congress doubts that the attempt of the friends of subsidy to put through congress even the mild bill which finally got through the house will be vigorously resisted.
A good many persons will be surprised that an attempt is to be made on the eve of a presidential election to force subsidy legislation through. Many of the republican members of the house, who represent districts in which subsidy legislation has few friends, were greatly embarrassed by being forced to vote on the subject during the last session and with an election coming on they will be in a still more uncomfortable position at the coming session.

In the long parliamentary fight over the bill in the house last winter after the leaders had been forced to substitute the Littauer bill for the amended senate bill the highest majority recorded for the bill was 12. On one ballot the opponents of the legislation had a majority of 8. The real test of strength was on the first ballot, when the opponents of the legislation scored a victory by a vote of 162 to 154.

The interests that are determined to force subsidy legislation are well organized. Their representatives have during the last four months called on many of the republican members of the house who refused to support the legislation at the last session and a large amount of literature is now being sent out in the interest of the legislation. In their representations to members of congress the subsidy people say that in the interest of harmony they are now willing to abandon the attempt to secure the enactment of any such subsidy legislation as was

JAPANESE STOPS A COLLEGE ROW

FRESHMEN AT THE WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY HAVE LIVELY MEETING.

SEATTLE, October 3.—The freshman class at the state university held yesterday noon one of the warmest meetings in the history of the institution, and a peaceable ending is probably due to a speech made by Johel Hashiguchi, who besides being a freshman at the university, is editor of the Japan Current.

Hashiguchi made his speech at the climax of a strenuous fight between the former Seattle high school students and the other freshmen, known as "outsiders," to control the meeting, elect temporary officers and get a majority of the constitution committee.
The Seattle contingent was in the majority and had just elected Joe Barto chairman of the temporary class organization, when Hashiguchi, who had won applause and cries of "three cheers for Japan," by voting with the Seattle boys, took the floor and urged upon the students the necessity of eliminating sectional rivalry for the general good of the class.

"Although I stand upon this side," declared the Japanese, indicating the Seattle side of the house, "I do not intend to vote for any candidate whom the local students hope to railroad into office, for the purpose of excluding all other portions of the state from representation. We want officers to represent the class, not a faction. I recommend that we stop quibbling and proceed with this meeting as a class, not as rival factions."

This speech, the first ever made by a Japanese in a class meeting at the university, elicited cheers from both sides, and the Seattle boys, although in a position to run matters their own way, promptly elected Ward, an outsider, temporary secretary over Smith, of Seattle. They further consented to have but one of the five members of the committee on a class constitution, a Seattle high school graduate. As for the permanent class officers, the Seattle faction consented to postpone their election until another meeting, although the outsiders at the university greatly outnumbered the Seattle boys and will undoubtedly control the next freshmen meeting.

The committee chosen to draw up a constitution, and the vote for each member, follows:
Miss Brown, Aberdeen, 16; Rice, Walla Walla, 88; Whitfield, Yakima, 79; Greene, Centralia, 77; and Pollock, Seattle, 77.

carried in the senate bill of last year and will be satisfied if congress will pass some such bill as that adopted by the house.

It is the expectation of the subsidy people that President Roosevelt will in his December message urge that subsidy legislation be enacted. The subsidy people were somewhat disappointed because the president did not come out stronger for their cause in his last message, but they say they had no complaint to make of his attitude when the fight came on in the house. His influence, they say, put the substitute bill through that body.

Representatives of the subsidy hunters who were here the latter part of last week said they would be disappointed if the president did not devote one of his middle west speeches to the need of subsidizing the merchant marine. "He is going out where most of the opposition comes from," said this man, "and we have reason to believe that he will undertake to point out to the people of the middle west the necessity for subsidy legislation."
