

How Long Have You Worn Those Glasses?

Here is an important question for you. Many people continue the use of glasses long after they have ceased to benefit.

THREE NEW CARDINALS APPOINTED

ROME, Dec. 16.—At today's secret consistory, presided over by Pope Pius X. Mgr. Pietro Gasparri, Secretary of the Congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs; Mgr. Lucon, archbishop of Rheims, and Mgr. Andrieu, archbishop of Marseilles, were appointed Cardinals.

A public Consistory on December 19, will impose the red hat on Cardinal Dinaidini, former papal nuncio to Spain, and Cardinal Aguirre, archbishop of Burgos, Spain, who were elevated to the cardinalate at the last consistory.

PASSING AWAY OF SAILING SHIPS

STEAMERS ARE QUICKLY DRIVING THE OLD ROMANTIC VESSELS OUT OF BUSINESS.

ST. JOHN, N. F., Nov. 30.—The most striking feature of marine architecture in this century is the rapid decline in the building of sailships and the seeming certainty of the gradual effacement in the near future of this type of craft from the outer seas, though it may survive longer as a coastwise carrier.

ST. JOHN, N. F., Nov. 30.—The most striking feature of marine architecture in this century is the rapid decline in the building of sailships and the seeming certainty of the gradual effacement in the near future of this type of craft from the outer seas, though it may survive longer as a coastwise carrier.

contributed not a little to the same end. When hostilities opened American shipowners sought to legitimize the transfer of their flotillas to foreign flags, but congress refused, and they had to be sold outright, because of the vesselmen's fear of the rebel privateers.

In like manner the discovery of petroleum sounded the knell of a whaling fleet which in 1850 numbered 702 vessels and aggregated 331,406 tons and today comprises but forty vessels of 37,657 tons.

The substitution of iron for wood in ship-building and the many advantages it was seen to possess; the replacing of the paddle wheel by the propeller and the adoption of reciprocating engines, with their consequent economies of space and coal and the opening thereby of new avenues of usefulness to steamers as freighters hastened the downfall of the sailing craft.

PROSPERITY INEVITABLE

By Henry Clews.

The country is suffering just now from some business excesses based upon the last several years of our great prosperity throughout the United States. The basis of this has been the excellence of our crops. We cannot now be very far from bottom. Very soon we will find the winter of our discontent made glorious summer by our own inherent prosperity.

When there was depression in agriculture and the farmers all over the country were in debt, Bryan got the farmer vote. It totaled something like 6,000,000 and over. That represented 17,000,000 people engaged in agricultural pursuits or dependent upon them. What such a vast army of people produce is the basis of prosperity for the whole country. Put the crop in the background for the moment. Here is the farmer prosperous. His prosperity goes to the country merchant. He wants his home cheerful. He has little luxuries to gratify for his family and himself. The country merchant has these to sell. He must buy them from the jobber or the wholesaler and the wholesaler gets them from the manufacturer. Here we have all American industries benefited by the splendid crops. We can't have a prolongation of bad times when such things exist. And these things do exist to a marvelous extent. A few crazy speculators and a lot of nervous bank depositors cannot kill the prosperity of the United States—not in ten thousand years.—From American Industries.

DEMOCRATS LIKE LINK M'GANDLESS

SEE FAINT VISION OF LINK'S SACK AND REMOTE CHANCE TO MAKE "TOUCH."

(From The County Beacon.)

It is with sincere pleasure that the Democrats welcome as prominent a citizen of the Territory as Link McCandless is and has been to the ranks of the Democratic party. Any man who has Link McCandless' convictions in regard to immigration and disposition of public lands is a candidate eligible for admission to full fellowship in the Democratic party, for the issue of public lands and immigration, from the standpoint of the Democratic party, is the issue in Hawaii not besides which all else becomes comparatively trivial.

The definition on the mainland of a Democrat is one who, in the National election, votes for the Democratic nominee for President. That is the supreme test of Democracy, and for that matter, of Republicanism too, to wit, the vote cast for the Presidential nominee. In the same way the dividing line between the Democratic party and the Republican party in Hawaii can well turn on the convictions of the voter as in regard to immigration and the public lands. If a voter believes that the question of immigration should be taken in hand by the Territorial government, that immigrants should be aided, not merely to come here, but after they have come here that they should be aided in securing land, building houses and fences, and otherwise equipping themselves to make a living, and that the public lands should be devoted first and foremost to these issues—every available acre of them—that man is a good Democrat, provided he will insist that his candidates not only take the foregoing position on the stump and in their talk, but that they vote their convictions and insist on prompt and efficient measures to legalize these sentiments and put them in actual working condition.

Our Republican friends everlastingly talk in favor of citizen immigration and what should be done for the citizen immigrant, but it is a case with them of being long on talk and delay and short on action. They have been in control of this Territory now for years and we seem no nearer any practical solution of the situation than we did when they first took office. The secret of all this delay is that the interests of their leaders lie, or they think they lie, in other directions. Their hearts are not in it.

SPORT NOTES

The Masters of the three local Masonic lodges have asked the Trans-Pacific yacht committee for the privilege of installing, by subscription from the individual members of their respective lodges, the yacht's binnacle. The yacht committee have accepted the offer.

Frank J. Kruger has donated a ship's clock. As suggestions for other generous and patriotic persons it is mentioned that the yacht is still without a wheel and crockery.

The soccer football season will be opened at Makiki this afternoon with matches between the Diamond Heads and Punahou and between the Y. M. C. The referee for the first game today will be J. H. Fiddes, and for the second, J. W. Waldron.

MADAME PELE VERY RESTLESS

VOLCANO SHOWING MUCH ACTIVITY AND CAN BE SEEN FROM PAHALA.

HILO, January 7.—Kilauea continues in glorious activity, still presenting a scene that is but too seldom to be witnessed there. Among those who recently had the pleasure and good fortune to see it were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Weatherbee and family, of Olan, and Mrs. W. G. Walker, of Oohala, who took her children down to the pit. At Pahala the reflection from the fire has been very clear and Manager W. C. Ogg telephoned to the Volcano House that he had seen it on the night of its recent outbreak. When the guests from the Volcano House went down into the pit that night, they put out their lanterns as the fire was as brilliant that it lit up the whole of the big crater and the track was as plainly to be seen as in the daytime.

On Sunday night it was again very active with two large fountains of fire playing in the lake, and on Tuesday even more so.

AT THE ORPHEUM

The last performance of "The Mouth of the Cannon" is to be given tonight at the Orpheum Theater. The play pleased a good-sized audience last night, and the advance sale today assures a big attendance this evening.

Monday night Manager Cooley will present "Peaceful Valley," a beautiful play of rural life. In this play Sol Smith Russell toured the United States for years, and his name and that of "Peaceful Valley" are linked inseparably. Mr. Cooley secured the right to produce this play in the West several years ago and has been obliged each year to reproduce it in many places by popular request. Following "Peaceful Valley" another strong and beautiful play, entitled "Home, Sweet Home," is to be given.
