THE LOG-BOOK
Inspector and engineer at San Francisco runs from weeks into months. The impracticability of properly handling aids to navigation from headquarters so remote is self evident. It is true, that an assistant inspector to the twelfth district is now stationed at Honolulu, aided by an officer of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., who is also in command of the U. S. S. Iroquois, and therefore only available for this service when his naval duties permit.
"The distance from headquarters, limited powers and the fact that the officers in charge have no means of conveyance other than those open to the general public, and very inadequate to visit the lights under their charge, destroys the efficiency of his sub-district."
The Prussian government is about to abolish the existing ministerial ban against cremation. This subject has been under active discussion for twenty years, the Clericals and Conservatives opposing cremation.
"When the Sultan's soldiers came," says the Kaid, "Raisuli told the people that I had sent them, and asked me to write letters, insisting on their withdrawal. Of course, I could not write such orders. I was indeed glad to hear the firing, but the 'armies' were no good. In the last attack not a single man on Raisuli's side was killed. If I had waited till the 'armies' released me I must have waited for ever."
"Raisuli, realizing that I would not help him, and suspecting me of urging the Government to active measures, determined to give me a bad time. On the march nearly all my mules were taken from me, and after

Health Protection In Public Schools

SUPERINTENDENT BABBITT LEARNED OF SYSTEMS IN VOGUE IN EAST FOR GIVING PROMPT ATTENTION TO AILMENTS OF PUPILS—HE IS NOW FORMULATING PLANS FOR INTRODUCTION OF A SYSTEM FOR THIS TERRITORY.

As one of the chief results of his trip to the mainland Superintendent Babbitt, of the Board of Education, is preparing plans for a system of medical examination in the local schools. This is a matter which has received serious consideration in the schools in the East and which has been found to work out with almost invaluable results. The plan is through a system of inspection, which will be carried on both by doctors and the teachers, to keep a careful eye on eye, ear, nose and throat, as well as chronic and organic troubles.
The schools of the state of Massachusetts have taken the most advanced methods up and they were carefully looked into by Mr. Babbitt while he was in Boston. The value of the method is shown most clearly in eye or ear troubles or with slight curvature of the spine, in which a little attention to a child may prevent an ailment which would prove to be incurable later on. In case one of the children in a school is found to be ailing from some trouble of this kind the following forms, filled out carefully, are sent out at once:
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
NOTICE TO PARENT OR GUARDIAN
In accordance with Chapter 502 of the Acts of 1906 you are hereby notified that the School Examination of _____ show that there is some trouble with the ears, eyes, which needs competent medical advice. Please attend to this at once. _____ Teacher.
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
NOTICE TO PARENT OR GUARDIAN
In accordance with Chapter 502 of the Acts of 1906 you are hereby notified that _____ has been examined by me as School Physician and found to have symptoms of _____. Please secure competent medical advice at once. _____ School Physician.
Superintendent Babbitt does not propose that the Territory shall take charge of the cases at all but through warning the parents will be able to do a great deal of good at a minimum of expense. Statistics which have been collected on the subject have proved that without a doubt the majority of the backward children in the public schools are suffering from some physical trouble, which if given proper attention might be easily removed.

KAID MACLEAN'S STORY

Sir Harry Maclean (Kaid Maclean) has furnished the special correspondent of a London paper with the story of his recent imprisonment, after having gone as an envoy to the Chief Raisuli, who treacherously detained him. "Before I left Fez in June," says the Kaid's story, "the Sultan gave me letters for Raisuli and for some of the tribes. His Majesty told me to hand these letters to the chiefs of the tribes, and not to give them to Raisuli. He also bade me leave nothing undone to induce Raisuli to come to Fez. Si Abd-es-Slam Kirwani, nephew of Raisuli, met me in Alcazar, and swore by everything a Moor can swear by that Raisuli would come to Fez—that he wanted to come with me, only I must do nothing to induce Raisuli to think I was not playing fair, as he had received no end of letters telling him not to trust me. For that reason I took with me only a few of my men.
"When I met Raisuli at the river he was awfully nice. He asked me to come a little way into the chief's country to show that I also trusted them, and to give them their letters from the Sultan. I made Raisuli clasp hands and swear by everything he held sacred—even by the local saint who is his patron saint and ancestor—that he was going to act fairly. He did all these things, and said that it was a shame I should think that he would behave ill. You ought not," he said, "to talk in this way. Am I not going to put my life in your hands by accompanying you to Fez?"
"I had letters which I had been ordered to give to the chiefs themselves. Raisuli had with him 56 armed men, whereas I had only three or four rifles. I knew that if he had made up his mind to act unfairly I should be made to go with him, and I went. I have not told you one quarter of what Raisuli and his nephew said to persuade me. Soon after we passed the river I knew it was my Rubicon, and that I was entirely in Raisuli's hands."
"MAD WITH SHAME."
"Next day, continued Kaid Maclean, "when Raisuli sent his scribe, El Dowle, to tell me that I was a prisoner, I was mad with sorrow and shame, for instead of helping the Sultan I had made matters worse for him, and had put my own Government in a difficult position. I felt inclined to kill myself, in order to help the Sultan, and to prevent Raisuli from making anything out of his treachery."
The Moorish Government tried to negotiate, and failed. Then it sent two utterly inefficient armies against Raisuli.
"When the Sultan's soldiers came," says the Kaid, "Raisuli told the people that I had sent them, and asked me to write letters, insisting on their withdrawal. Of course, I could not write such orders. I was indeed glad to hear the firing, but the 'armies' were no good. In the last attack not a single man on Raisuli's side was killed. If I had waited till the 'armies' released me I must have waited for ever."

question of increasing the item for the dredging of Pearl Harbor channel. Sentiment in that committee is divided on the question of an increase, but there is a possibility of securing it. I have every assurance that the Pearl Harbor bill proper will have practically no opposition in the Senate Committee.
The Senate has made increases on the Fortification bill to complete the Pearl Harbor fortifications. This increase will probably be rejected by the House conferees, on the ground that the work need not be completed in full till the channel is nearly opened for battleships.
In accordance with our understanding with certain of the House leaders, we have not pressed the shipping-law amendment, pending the consideration of the mail subsidy bill.
Unfortunately for us, the Democratic filibuster will make it well nigh impossible to get that bill, or any other of our separate measures, through the House. The Democratic leader refuses to allow any bill whatever to be considered by unanimous consent. The only other method of securing consideration of a bill for the remainder of this session will be suspension of the rules. This requires a two-thirds vote to pass a measure, and it is very doubtful whether we could secure a two-thirds vote in favor of my shipping bill in the face of the opposition of the shipping interests.
If however the subsidy bill wholly fails we may be able to get my coastwise-law amendment through in the closing days of the session.
Very truly yours,
J. KALANIANA'OLE,
Delegate to Congress.
In order to facilitate the mail service the Chamber of Commerce sent out a special launch which took the coast mail from the Hongkong Maru, and the Oriental mail from the America Maru, and brought it ashore while the examination by the Quarantine doctors was going on.
days after the capture of the Kaid. Raisuli received Mr. Carleton's letter on the 10th. Its effect was magical. "Raisuli," says Sir Harry Maclean, "came to see me on the morning of the 10th, and on the following day he sent me a tent. How glad I was to get out of that beastly hole! I spent seventeen never-to-be-forgotten days there. On the last night eleven Moors kept me awake until three in the morning, and I was out of the room at five. I had a bad time, but I did not let them see that I cared a straw! Often I felt like a seastick man whose only wish is to be thrown overboard. When I quit that dreadful room I was as thin as a needle. I could not stand upright, and was so weak from the confinement and want of proper food that I could hardly walk. Raisuli told me that he would treat me well. He sent back my servants and my bed. That night I had a good sleep between sheets—a luxury I had not enjoyed since July 17, having slept on the ground for 56 nights. Better still, I had no Moors in my tent to keep me awake till 1 o'clock and to commence praying at dawn."
RAISULI ASKS FOR THE MOON.
Of course, Raisuli began by asking for the moon. But the moon waned steadily. On October 8 the Sultan assented to any conditions for the Kaid's release.
Meanwhile Raisuli visited all delays on his unfortunate captive. Confinement in a foul room, want of food, and a systematic course of bullying, which was harder to bear than privations, had failed to break the indomitable spirit of Kaid Maclean. Another instrument of torture was found, and the prisoner was left to the tender mercies of Sir. Mahomet Arrar, one of Raisuli's creations.
Sir Harry Maclean is a great lover of music. He plays the bagpipes, and the story ran that he was wont to be compelled to listen was intended as a form of torture. The guards took their cue from Arrar, and determined that the dog of a Christian should listen if he would not dance to their tune. The two-stringed fiddle of the country was at work night and day, and the captive was prevented from sleeping. Protest was in vain. The same old tune was ground pipes. Unhappily, his pipes were not with him, and the music to which he had to listen until 2 in the morning. These murderers of sleep and of music demanded rewards, and promised to abate the nuisance if given the price of a sheep. They bought a goat instead, declaring that the m'hallas had eaten all their sheep—more mischief than most people suspected them of doing. Being a Moor and a time-server, Sir Mahomet Arrar began to amend his ways when he saw some prospect of the Kaid's release.
The negotiations dragged on with painful slowness, and it was not until November that they began to take practical shape—thanks to the tact and knowledge of the native character possessed by Mr. "Bibi" Carleton, consular agent at Cleazar.
Kaid Maclean has borne his long captivity like a soldier. He has never uttered one word of complaint, and has always shown himself ready to be made a sacrifice if his detention, or even his death, could benefit the cause of Abdul Aziz.

NOT SO SOON AS EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The battleships Maine and Alabama will be detached from the Atlantic fleet May 18 and organized into a special service squadron, under the command of Captain Giles B. Harber, commanding the Maine. This squadron is under orders to leave San Francisco June 1 and proceed to the Atlantic Coast by way of Honolulu, Guam, the Philippines and the Suez canal. Their places in the Atlantic fleet will be filled by the battleships Wisconsin and Nebraska.
Commander A. W. Grant has been ordered to duty as chief of staff to Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet, now in Pacific waters.
The Star's cable of even date with above had the day of detachment but not the day of departure for Honolulu, of the Maine and Alabama. The foregoing dispatch shows that the sailing for this port will be eighteen days later than was here figured.

WHITE PEOPLE TRUST IN ROBERTS

Sailor Roberts will be back by the U. S. S. Iroquois today in ample time to fill his engagement with Mitsuka at the Orpheum tomorrow night. He is expected by his trainer to be all the better for his sea trip and will take the mat in shape to wrestle for his life. Mitsuka was feeling in high spirits this morning. He has reduced a few pounds in weight and will be all the better for this. His wind has improved wonderfully, thanks to the road work he has been doing. His trainers have been particularly careful in this respect, for they realize that the boat may be a long drawn out one in which condition will be an absolute essential toward winning.
The Japanese will be out in force tomorrow night to cheer their man with loud bazans and if he wins there will be a great unplugging of sake tubs.
It was stated this morning that Mitsuka will be on hand at the Orpheum tomorrow night which will say that Mitsuka wins.
The white portion of the community is looking upon Roberts as a champion whom they trust to uphold their prestige. If he beats the big Jap he will become a hero and will wear Froelicher's championship laurels, at least until that worthy returns to these shores to challenge for the title which he won from Kanoe and forfeit by absence from the Territory.

WIRELESS PEOPLE EXPECT TO BE IN TOUCH WITH PISCO VERY SOON.
"Within three months you will hear from us by wireless."
Manager J. A. Balch of the Wireless Telegraph Company this morning made the above statement to Clinton J. Hutchins, recently resigned as president of the wireless company, who goes to San Francisco, accompanied by his wife in the S. S. Nevada this evening.
Hutchins is still interested in the wireless, merely having resigned the presidency. On the coast he will undertake very important work in regard to bringing the steamships of the transpacific lines into the wireless fold, incidentally negotiating with the government.
As Manager Balch says, the long distance wireless station at Kahuku will be so far advanced within two or three months that this station will send a message direct to the coast and the first through message will be to Hutchins.
The sending apparatus has been ordered from Boston and, if it arrives on schedule, Balch's promise will be fulfilled before three months have passed.

FLEET PRESS HEADQUARTERS

A room in the Young building, or somewhere near the cable headquarters, has been suggested by W. H. Hoogs, of the Sub-committee on Entertainment, as one proposition which ought to be taken up in connection with the meet arrangements. The press men will want to send a lot of matter away, and will much appreciate being supplied with headquarters appropriately fitted up close to the cable office.
