THE FLEET TO VISIT EUROPE CUSTOMS EXAMINATION OF COAST BAGGAGE

FLAG RAISING AT THE JAIL

This morning the front yard of the City and County Jail was the scene of an interesting flag-raising ceremony. Its occasion was the completion of the new buildings and their equipment which the municipal government has provided since taking over the jails of the City and County on July 1, 1909.

These new buildings include a two-roomed office for the jailor at the entrance of the jail proper, a three-roomed workshop opposite, a hospital and dispensary at the end of the yard opposite the gateway, a bathhouse for women and row of toilets next to the dispensary, and a jailor's cottage fronting on the roadway from the street entrance. With their equipments the buildings represent an outlay of about $9,000. The cost would have been much greater had not Jailor Asch assumed the role of master builder himself and employed the labor of skilled prisoners in the work.

Those who saw the premises for the first time since they were a bare waste under the Territorial regime, with ugly old outbuildings of the formerly combined penitentiary and common jail, were amazed at the transformation that had been effected. Between the trim buildings there is a quadrangle of velvety green lawn, bordered on all sides with flower beds full of fresh bloom. In the midst of the lawn rises a tall flagpole, upon which the national banner, was hoisted for the first time this morning. Mayor Fern spoke the thought that must have occurred to all the visitors when he said the place was prettier than any hotel grounds

In Honolulu, doubting if there was a jollyard anywhere in the United States which could compare with it.

Visitors present on the occasion included Hon. John A. Cummins, Mayor Joseph J. Fern, U. S. Commissioner George A. Davis, Supervisors William Ahia and Daniel Logan, Sheriff W. P. Jarrett, C. and C. Engineer Guy H. Gere, Auditor James Bicknell and J. W. Asch.

Invitations had been sent to Governor Frear, Warden Henry of Oahu Prison and other officials, also officers of the United States army and navy, but with the exception of Mr. Davis none of them attended.

The Hawaiian band, led by Captain Berger was in attendance for its first appearance after its annual month's vacation. It was in full strength, including the two lady vocalists.

Deputy Jailor W. Pono had about forty of the prisoners lined up in double rank at the inner end of the jailor's cottage.

Jailor Julius Asch, at 9:15, introduced the ceremony with an address. At its conclusion he called on Captain Berger for the music, and as the strains of "Star Spangled Banner" burst forth the flag was slowly raised to the truck, all present reverently standing. J. W. Asch and James A. Asch, the eldest and one of the younger sons of the jailor drew the ballards. Mr. Asch spoke as follows:

"We have assembled here this morning to witness for the first time the

MONGOLIA HERE WITH GENERALS ALESHIRE AND BLISS

The arrival of the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia was invested with more than ordinary interest this morning, for in addition to the vessel being twenty-four hours overdue, there were several distinguished passengers on board, notably General J. B. Aleshire and Duc de Montpensier. The vessel was expectedly awaited by the customs officials, for it was there that they expected to find Domingo Ferreira, against whom charges of smuggling opium were pending. And in this the officials were not disappointed; Ferreira being arrested immediately after the vessel was boarded by the customs officials, and his luggage was seized for examination.

It was erroneously reported in this morning's paper that the delay to the Mongolia was due to a mishap to her machinery, as this proved to be utterly without foundation. The delay was occasioned by reason of the fact that the Mongolia was carrying a record cargo, and that when it was found impossible to make port before nightfall last night without unduly driving the vessel it was decided to slow down and make an early entry this morning. That there were any misgivings at all was only because the wireless station at Kahuku was out of commission during yesterday, but on its being repaired in the afternoon, messages were received from the Mongolia. The first message came through from the naval authorities, being courteously delivered at Messrs. Hackfeld & Company's office about five o'clock. This message allayed whatever anxiety had been felt, for it stated that all was well and that the vessel would make port at daylight.

From as early as seven o'clock this morning the Ala-kae-street wharf was made the rendezvous of many people, expectantly awaiting the arrival of the liner. Governor Frear arrived on the wharf early and to meet Generals Bliss and Aleshire were Colonel Schuyler, Fifth Cavalry, Major Winslow and Captain Forbes. The visiting generals were in mufti and were met on the deck of the liner by the three officers mentioned, there being no formalities connected with their arrival. By seven-thirty there was a large crowd on the wharf, the Mongolia being then at anchor well outside the channel, but at a few minutes to eight o'clock the liner slowly steamed towards the harbor entrance, and berthed alongside the wharf a few minutes after eight-thirty.

MORE OPIUM ON MONGOLIA AND MORE ARRESTS COMING

Between two and three thousand dollars' worth of opium was seized this morning on the Mongolia, being found in the trunk of Domingo Ferreira, who was arrested. It brings the total now in the possession of the authorities to considerably over twenty thousand dollars' worth. Some of it came here from San Francisco, and this fact again brings up the prospect of customs examinations here of the baggage of travellers arriving from the coast. Incidentally, it is regarded as something of a compliment to the local customs service that "dope" intended for Hawaii should be sent from the Far East to San Francisco and then sent here on steamers which the customs department is not ordinarily supposed to watch.

It is reported that other customs men besides the two under arrest are now under suspicion, though the investigators are very reticent about their discoveries. A very thorough search of the Mongolia did not reveal any more "dope" than that in Ferreira's trunk.

Ferreira was taken to the United States District Attorney's office, where he was taken before Commissioner Davis. After a brief examination, the matter was adjourned until Saturday, and Ferreira was allowed bail at $1,500. Sureties, however, were not forthcoming, and Ferreira retired to Marshal Hendry's private office, where he reclined languidly, on a comfortable couch and thoughtfully smoked a cigar. Ferreira, who was fashionably dressed and displayed light green socks above a pair of low-cut, dainty, patent leather shoes, did not seem to be worried over the position in which he has so suddenly found himself. From outward appearances he seemed as though he were enjoying an after breakfast smoke in the heat of the day.

Later on Ferreira had a long talk with Breckons, and as the result of that conversation a lot of information was gained concerning others who were in the smuggling business. The names are not given out, for obvious reasons, but Breckons will, it is understood, have a few more in his dragnet within a very short time as the result of his interview with Ferreira. At present matters are at a standstill, but it is expected that something will develop during the afternoon, or by tomorrow morning at any rate.

A search of Ferreira's luggage disclosed over thirty more tins of opium concealed in a false bottomed trunk.

Collector of Customs Stackable, District Attorney Breckons and Marshal Hendry, attended by other customs officials, boarded the Mongolia as she was off port this morning and made a bee-line for the cabin in the second class occupied by Domingo Ferreira. The suspicions entertained on Monday were verified without any trouble and Domingo was put under arrest almost before he knew the customs officials were on the liner. In his cabin Ferreira had two pieces of luggage, one an ordinary suit case and the other an innocent-looking cabin trunk. The trunk was about three feet in length, thirty inches in height and about two feet in width. Upon turning out its contents, which consisted of wearing apparel and other necessities, a false bottom was discovered, beneath which over two dozen tins of opium were stored. Being thus caught with the opium in his possession evasion was worse than useless and Domingo accompanied the officers of the steamer without any protest. A rigorous search of the cabin failed to bring to light any other tins, though upwards of thirty were discovered among Domingo's luggage.

At a late hour this afternoon Ferreira was still in the custody of Marshal Hendry. J. M. Camara, however, has submitted certain names to Commissioner Davis for his approval with regard to the release of Ferreira's parents. If these are suitable Camara will waive the necessary bonds drawn. So far no further warrants have been issued in connection with the apprehension of Ferreira's confederates. It is expected, however, that some of them will be arrested shortly. District Attorney Breckons was a busy man this afternoon.

LANDS NOT SOUGHT AS EXPECTED

In all of the land drawings so far held under the new law, the number of applications for lots has been less than the number of lots advertised. This has been something of a surprise, in view of the long agitation for the land openings.

Land Commissioner Marston Campbell said this morning that he was rather disappointed that there had not been a larger number of applicants for the land made available. There was one point, however, that would appeal to all, and that was that the lands already advertised would not need to be advertised again. Of the 30,000 acres already advertised the lands that are not taken up, can be allotted as they are applied for. There will be no need in future therefore, for anyone to say that he or she cannot obtain lands from the government. In time, of course, all public lands will have been advertised, which will facilitate the allotment of the blocks available.

THE SIXTEEN BATTLESHIPS TO CROSS ATLANTIC

(Associated Press Cable to The Star.)

PHILADELPHIA, November 1.—It has been arranged to have the Atlantic fleet visit England and France before the winter maneuvers take place at Guantanamo.

NEW YORK, October 24.—Naval officers of the Brooklyn navy yard have learned that the British sailors who were royally entertained by the American crews during the Hudson-Fulton celebration last year are preparing to return that hospitality with interest on the coming visit of the battleships under Rear-Admiral Schreeder to England. This will be the first time in many years that an American fleet has visited British shores. It will also be the first visit of the American-built Dreadnaught Europe has ever had.

Sixteen battleships will go on the cruise, in addition to the fleet auxiliaries. All will visit both British and French ports. The fleet will remain in European waters about six weeks, and will return to American waters early next year. The Connecticut, North Dakota, Delaware, South Carolina, Louisiana, Kansas and New Hampshire will be in British waters during the Christmas holidays, and the Minnesota, Idaho, Mississippi, Vermont, Georgia, Nebraska and Rhode Island in French waters.
