

ROOSEVELT LOSES IN NEW YORK

BOTH SIDES CLAIM THE LOCAL VICTORY

PARTY VOTE WILL CARRY EVERYTHING, SAYS ATKINSON

There is more straight ticket voting today than ever before in the history of territorial elections," said Chairman Atkinson of the Republican Territorial Central Committee today, after visiting many of the precincts where voting was going on. "The developments of the day only confirm me in the opinion that we shall make a clean sweep. There are many Republicans, I know, who are doubtful about one or two important local offices. But I look for a strict party vote that will carry everyone through. That is what I am figuring on. I hope and expect a Republican party vote today which will elect even the Republicans who run behind their ticket."

GLAD CAMPAIGN IS OVER

"I'm glad it's over," was the sentiment of most of the candidates and apparently most of the people of Honolulu with regard to the political campaign today. For most of the candidates it has been an unusually strenuous contest, and it has been a longer one than usual. It began too early, in the opinion of most of those who have taken part, but it kept up a rapid pace to the end.

The two leaders, Kuhio and McCandless, both show the effects of weeks of strenuous work, day and night. They have chased one another over every precinct in the Hawaiian Islands for about four weeks, and the traveling, as well as the speechmaking, has been hard. It was feared that Kuhio would not be able to hold out, on account of his throat affection, but he finished in fair condition, and was able to make a long speech last night. McCandless, who appeared to enjoy and even fatten on the campaigning at the start, shows now the effects of the hard work.

QUIET ELECTION SCARE OVER INFANT DISEASE UNWARRANTED

Honolulu was extremely quiet this morning, and the only thing to indicate that a general election was in progress was the number of automobiles that spun around the city with flags or distinguishing devices on them.

Everywhere it was quiet. The streets were practically deserted, and what few people who were standing around seemed to be discussing the political situation. Automobiles were at a premium; in fact they could not be obtained, every one having been

During the fortnight just ended eight cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to the Board of Health. As a matter of fact in some instances the attendant physicians have not definitely diagnosed the cases as paralysis, but in order to avoid all unnecessary risks such cases have been entered as paralysis.

The board of health about a fortnight ago resolved to direct all physicians to report every case of paralysis that came under their notice. This has been done, and now the secretary of the board is preparing a list of the cases that have been reported. A copy of this list will be forwarded to all medical men for their information. The object of this list is to enable physicians to study the cases that have been reported, should they wish to do so.

It has been freely asserted that infantile paralysis is contagious, but so far medical science has been unable to discover how the infection is carried. As far as present indications go no serious results are expected to follow the present attacks, and it is confidently hoped that permanent cures will soon be effected.

A rumor was in circulation throughout the city that there was a possibility of some of the schools being closed through an epidemic of infantile paralysis. A call on Superintendent Pope however, elicited the information that so far not a single case had been reported by any of the principals of the schools. Mr. Pope added that should it ever become necessary, prompt action would be taken to adopt preventive measures against the spread of the complaint.

The following, printed on a dodger in both English and Portuguese, was being well circulated in this precinct, in reply to a report which was spread early in the day:

"Democrats as a final effort to bolster a lost cause have circulated the report that Delegate Kuhio made the statement that the Portuguese born in Honolulu are nothing but hoodlums. This statement made by the Democrats is an absolute falsehood. Don't be fooled by the Democratic Boss-ruled manipulators who see their finish in a straight Republican victory."

At Kaimuki there was much early voting. A hundred and twenty-five ballots were in before eleven o'clock. This precinct will poll its full vote, and go strongly Republican.

The tenth of the Fourth, at Nuuanu avenue and Bates street, led all other in the proportion of early voters, also, according to the party watchers, in Republican straight

VOTING SLOW IN SOME PRECINCTS, WITH CROWDS IN LINE

Today's election proved one of lively hustling. Every automobile in the city was engaged, either in carrying candidates and others who are interested, to the various precincts, or in carrying voters to the polls. The voting did not start rapidly in many places. Between fifty and sixty per cent of the registration was the average of votes cast up to 1 o'clock. A quick round of the polling places between twelve and one o'clock showed pretty rapid voting almost everywhere. Inquiries among the various "runners" and party workers on every hand brought forth the statement that the Republican Territorial ticket appeared to be running far ahead. The runners also agreed generally that a hard fight was on over the offices of sheriff and deputy sheriff of Honolulu, as well as in saying that Shingle was beating Trent for treasurer and Lane in all probal defeating Fern for mayor.

FOURTH DISTRICT

The biggest crush at the polls was in the Kakaako precinct, the sixth of the Fourth. At noon there were over forty voters in line awaiting their turns and all the voting booths were full. The voting was slow, with a prospect that some voters would get left. At half past twelve only 192 votes had been cast out of the total of 475 registered. At the rate the votes were being cast, it would be impossible to poll the full registration. Many of the voters took a long time to mark their ballots, in this precinct. A big crowd was on hand all morning. There was speechifying from the linal of a house across the street from the voting place, and the atmosphere was dense with the odor from the government stables which didn't encourage visitors to stay long.

Another precinct where there was a line of voters in waiting at noon is the twelfth of the Fourth, on Punchbowl. Party workers were especially in evidence here. "Kuhio is running far ahead," said the runners. They further reported some even contests on county tickets. Associate Supreme Justice Perry was among those in the line waiting a turn to vote shortly before noon.

The following, printed on a dodger in both English and Portuguese, was being well circulated in this precinct, in reply to a report which was spread early in the day:

FIFTH DISTRICT

At eleven thirty 155 votes out of a total of 480 were polled at the ninth precinct. Extra precautions were taken around this booth by order of C. C. James who had a burly Hawaiian policeman on duty there to prevent anyone from approaching within ten feet of the booth, except in front of the door, and here there was a queue extending right across the roadway. "Mostly Democratic votes here," said James, but he smiled as he said it.

The votes were coming in first rate at the tenth precinct at 11:20, according to the officers in charge. At that time 138 votes had been cast out of a total of 285. "At this rate," said one of the tellers, "we will be through at eight this evening instead of eight tomorrow morning," and he looked as though he would be pleased when he was through. Matters were very quiet round the booth, just a knot of men here and there quietly discussing the situation.

The voting was brisk at the eleventh precinct at 11:40, but prior to that time it had been slow, for only 162 votes had been recorded up to that time out of 443 on the roll.

Voting commenced briskly at the twelfth precinct when the booth was opened this morning, forty electors arriving in a bunch and casting their votes within a short space of time. A hull followed, but by 11:45 over sixty per cent of the voters on the record had visited the booth, there being 78 votes recorded out of 129 on the register.

Just about the usual rate for this precinct," was the report from thirteenth at 11:55, 192 votes having then been cast out of 359 on the register. "Until about five minutes ago," said one of the election officers, "not a booth was empty, but it is slackening off just now." This booth had been visited by two serenading parties, several Democratic ladies singing for the Democrats in a wagon, and the Ernest Kaal Glee Club for the Republicans. The efforts of the serenaders helped to while away the time during the slow moments. A girl was watching the voting interestedly, and as

Upton Sinclair discussing the fasting cure that he has done so much to advance, said in New York:

"Fasting has become as popular as appendicitis. I hope, though, it won't fall into the same disrepute. "It's currently believed, you know, that a leading surgeon said to his wife one day,

"I operated on Mrs. Gobsa Golde for appendicitis last night."

"Goodness!" said the lady. "I wonder who'll have it next?"

"I don't know," the surgeon answered absently. "I haven't decided yet."

M'CARTHY PREDICTS ELECTION OF TICKET, INCLUDING LINK

Col. C. J. McCarthy, campaign manager for the Democrats, said this afternoon that his reports from many volunteer workers for the Democratic ticket, were that McCandless and the rest of the party would win. "McCandless will run with the ticket this time," said the colonel. "He ran behind it last time. In spite of the big showing being made by Republican workers, we have every reason to expect a sweeping success. I shall be surprised if we do not get it."
