A. A. Wilder, Mrs. Sydney M. Ballou, Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Mrs. Timberlake, wife of Major Timberlake of Fort Ruger, Mrs. Frederick Klamp, Mrs. Walter Francis Dillingham, Mrs. Charles Wilder, Mrs. J. S. Walker, Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. George Potter, Miss Alice MacFarlane, Miss Violet Makee and Mrs. Samuel Dunning of Fort Shafter.

Leaving today for the mainland are Mrs. Clifford B. High, the charming wife of Dr. C. B. High and Miss Alice Roth, one of the popular girls of the younger set of Honolulu.

Mrs. High and her sister Miss Roth will spend a fortnight at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, where, having a score of friends, they will become inspirations for many evidences of social recognition.

The visitors will then proceed to Los Angeles, where their sister, Mrs. Emmet May will entertain them, and who will, at the termination of their four months visit accompany them back to Honolulu.

Tuesday evening was the scene of a gathering of a number of society people at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Richards when Mr. Sydney F. Hoben, assisted by Mr. Butt of Sydney and Miss Helene Sloane rendered a farewell concert prior to Mr. Hoben's departure in the Sierra on Wednesday for San Francisco where a college appointment awaits him.

Mr. Hoben, as the star of the evening was heartily rewarded after each of his well rendered selections, his technique in the "Carmen" airs, "Mandolinata" and "Cracovienne Fantastique" exhibiting great skill.

Padrewski's "Polonaise," a fantasy of dainty trills, runs, chromatics, and staccatos was neatly rendered, Mr. Hoben's execution resembling a ripple like the patter of pearls on the keyboard.

Schumann's "Romance" was played with a remarkable depth of feeling and sympathy, the applause which followed seeming too harsh a tribute to offer such a soft dream of melody.

Miss Sloane sang several selections accompanied by Mrs. Westervelt, and Mr. Butt recited "Lasca," and for encore "Selections from the Gamblers' Wife" which were greatly appreciated. The programme follows:

- Piano Solo—
(a) Polonaise..... Padrewski
(b) Spinning song from the Flying Dutchman..... Wagner-Liszt
(c) Romance..... Schumann
(d) Barcarade..... Moszkowsky
Mr. Hoben

Selection from "Il Trovatore"..... Miss Helene Sloane

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivers of Honolulu who have been traveling in Europe since September are en route to their home in Honolulu having sailed from Paris to New York. They will visit the former's mother and sister, Mrs. Richard Ivers Sr., and Mrs. William G. Irwin in this city before continuing to the islands.—S. F. Post.

One of the most charming occasions of the week just closed was the Violet Dinner given by Dr. Arthur Hodgins at the University Club on Tuesday evening, complimentary to Miss Alice Roth and Mrs. Clifford B. High who are leaving today for San Francisco.

The round table in the Ladies' Grill was massed with fragrant purple violets and fluffy lace maidenhair, a huge centerpiece being designed of these beautiful blossoms, with the same strewn over the cloth.

The white name cards bore the gold monogram of the club and covers were arranged for eleven.

The guests at this dainty farewell compliment were Miss Alice Roth, Dr. and Mrs. Clifford B. High, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Murray, Judge and Mrs. A. A. Wilder, Lieutenant Pardee, Mr. William Roth and Mr. John Evans.

Mrs. Alfred Castle has issued cards for a tea next Wednesday afternoon from half after three to six o'clock at her beautiful home "Roselawn" in Nuuanu valley to meet Miss Anna Dunham and Miss Beatrice Castle.

On Monday evening Miss Florence Lee entertained at a very pretty dinner party, the decorative tone of which was pink. A large artistic willow basket held the center of the table tied with a huge bow of bluish pink tulle and pinks were strewn over the cloth.

The favor having come from the home of the hostess in far away New York, were unique and the water color sketches depicted Hawaiian scenes.

Among those present at this very dainty dinner were Miss Stone, Miss Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hayselden, Mr. Gerald Irwin, Mr. Terry and Mr. Edmund.

There was an enjoyable dance at the Courtland on Monday evening when the guests of the hotel and a few invited friends, amid gay Christmas wreaths and holiday greens for decoration, danced till the wee small hours. The music was excellent and afterwards light refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klamp entertained at a dinner party on Wednesday evening, complimentary to Captain and Mrs. W. C. Cowles, and Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury.

The date of the wedding of the beautiful Miss Helene Irwin, daughter of the erstwhile Hawaiian capitalist William G. Irwin, and Charles Templeton Crocker has been set for February 15. The ceremony will be solemnized at the mansion of her parents on Washington street, San Francisco, Miss Jennie Crocker, a sister of the groom being chosen as maid of honor, the bridesmaids being Misses Marion Newhall, Julia Langhorne, Martha Calhoun and Mary Keeney.

There have been changes in the list of Miss Helene Irwin's bridesmaids that is not yet definitely made up. Miss Elizabeth Newhall was to have been among the maids, but her own wedding has been planned for this month, and instead Miss Irwin will be among her attendants. Mrs. Richard Hammond may come from her home in Colorado Springs to attend Miss Irwin on February 28th, but it is not yet decided. The wedding party will include Miss Mary Keeney, Miss Julia Langhorne, Miss Marion Newhall and Miss Jennie Crocker. Duane Hopkins will act as best man.—Chronicle.

Captain and Mrs. W. C. Cowles entertained at a very pretty dinner at the Courtland on Sunday evening complimentary to Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury and Mr. and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck.

The round table was adorned by a large gold basket filled with masses of deep red carnations and lace maidenhair, the same being scattered over the cloth.

The basket's tall handle was embellished by a large bow of crimson satin ribbon, and covers were arranged for eight.

After dinner, music was enjoyed. Those present were Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Miss Cowles, Mr. Cowles and the hosts.

Lieutenant William L. Burchfield of the Marine Corps, who only recently arrived at Mare Island after having been stationed at Honolulu for a year or more, has been detached from the barracks here and ordered to Washington, D. C., where he will be assigned to the barracks at that city for duty.—S. F. Bulletin.

Mr. Terry and Mr. Edmund were the genial hosts on Thursday evening at a bridge supper at their bachelor quarters on Hackfeld street. The evening was delightfully spent, among the guests being Miss Stone, Miss Fitzgerald, Mr. Beer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hayselden, Miss Lawrence, Miss Florence Lee, Mr. Wale and others.

Miss Low on Wednesday evening entertained at a very elaborate dinner party when covers were arranged for twenty. Every form of entertainment at which this charming hostess presides gains fame for perfection of detail and beauty of artistic appointments and Wednesday evening was further proof of her skill.

The large square table at which the hostess and her guests were seated was ablaze with scarlet tones, huge cut glass bowls filled with red carnations and delicate maidenhair being placed in the center and at each corner of the table. Red silk shaded candles shed a soft glow over the cloth sprinkled with clipped red blossoms and the name cards were handpainted depicting island scenes.

The favors were elaborate, and throughout dinner the soft singing and playing of a Hawaiian quartette, concealed in a bower of palms and ferns were enchanting. After dinner the evening was spent in bridge, a midnight dinner being served.

Among the large number of guests vagrancy, burglary, being present at a gambling game, drunkenness and much more serious crimes, Americans, Japanese and other foreigners contributed one each; colored Americans 2, Chinese and Porto Ricans 5, Portuguese 11; part-Hawaiians 36, and Hawaiians 79.

During the two years under review 1,443.8 tons of rattoons had been harvested. The second crop was ready to be garnered and the proceeds of this should clear off the indebtedness to the Kahuku Plantation Company. The total expenses had been $5,056.33, and there was $2,337.30 due to the Kahuku Plantation Co. During the planting season boys had been allowed to work at Kahuku. Half of their earnings went to the school for their board and lodging during the time that they were working. The cash receipts for the period were: one-half of boys' wages at Kahuku, $1,282.43; proceeds of sale of pigs, hides, sweet potatoes, etc. $188.30, making a total of $1,470.73.

On October 1 last the boys began to make their own clothing, and in the interim sixty-six working shirts of denim had been turned out, twenty-six pairs of working trousers, eighteen sheets and eighteen pillow cases. It was hoped that at some not distant date all the school clothes would be made at the school, including the khaki and white duck uniforms.

The approximate value of the crops grown was $2,412.97, the acreage being 64.79. A hopeful view of the future was taken, for it was anticipated that the products would be increased so materially that the school could be supplied with poi, beef, milk and butter. The cotton trees were doing well. The necessity for larger premises was briefly touched upon and it was mentioned that the machinery plant wanted enlarging. It was urged that some provision should be made for medical and dental inspection especially the latter, as scarcely any of the boys had sound teeth. The installation of a sewerage scheme was thought to be the cause of the general improvement in the health of the boys, as there had been no fresh cases of typhoid fever.

Principal C. A. McDonald of the Lahainauna school, submitted his report. This showed that the total enrollment for the year ended June 24 had been 126, while for the term that had just ended in December it was 120, sixty of whom were Hawaiians, forty part-Hawaiians, twelve Japanese, four Chinese and four Portuguese. The general health had been excellent, there having been no serious or prolonged cases of sickness. The library had been used extensively by the students, who were acquiring a taste for a better class of reading. The sugar cane was growing well, and it was anticipated that a good harvest would be garnered. The school gardens and the dairy were being gradually enlarged, and the lawns and grounds generally were showing a marked improvement. The needs of the schools were a new dining room with proper equipment, three new cottages for teachers, an extension of the carpentry and blacksmith shops; a new dormitory, a drafting room, and a new machine shop. The last, but the longest felt want, was a new road from Lahaina to Lahainauna, and a more adequate water supply was necessary. There was a waiting list of twenty, and with the increased accommodation asked for, it was said that this number and more would be taken in.

Supervising Principal H. M. Wells of Maui reported that there were thirty-nine county schools, twenty of these had but one teacher each, five had two, six had three, two four, one had six, and one had seven, making a total of seventy-three teachers. Owing to the large circuit it was impossible to give that close supervision so essential in a circuit of small schools. It was thought that a principal should be enabled by special provision of the Legislature, to cover his circuit twice a month. Many useful hints were given, which, it was stated, if adopted would effect improvements in the system. Almost without exception the principals of the country schools were conscientious workers, but too often they were staggering under a load of from thirty to fifty pupils in fourth and fifth grades. To quote the report: "And the principal's room in this congested condition too often becomes like a cage to the aspiring bird and the pupil's ambition is stifled. He finds his grade either telescoped into a lower one, or sidetracked through the sheer impossibility of the situation." He asks, again to quote the report: "Who can do work satisfactory to himself, or his pupils, when both numbers and grades multiply and literally crowd him to the wall?" After a further lachrymose reference to this condition it is stated: "A thing that is worth doing at all is worth doing well. If we are really trying to train children of this territory to be intelligent citizens, it is most shortsighted economy to bring them just to a point where they are ready to begin to learn something, and to stop for the lack of a few extra teachers." The following schools are mentioned as having a congested state in the principal's rooms: Hana, Kipahulu, Kaupo, Makawao, Kealahou, Halehaku, Keokea, Olowalu, Honokowai, Kahului, Kihel and Keahua.

Cyril O. Smith, Supervising Principal of Kauai circuit, has submitted his report for the four months of September to December last. He states that the chief aim has been at unification of the work of the schools in accordance with the department's orders. There were at present fifty-nine teachers at work in the seventeen public schools of Kauai and Niihau. Overcrowding was general, and something would soon have to be done in the way of additional teachers and buildings for several of the schools. Three new teachers were required at least, while at least three more would be called for during the biennial period. The schools mentioned as needing additions were Lihue, Hanapepe, Waimea, Koolau. He dilated at length on the advantages of teaching the boys and girls how to produce commodities that in ordinary course were bought at the plantation stores. He felt sure that an expert luna would be supplied for an hour or two each day, if it could be shown that "we really meant business." He says: "Kauai could hardly make a better investment today than the hiring of a man to take entire charge of the work of agriculture in our schools. Instead of continually calling on foreign lands to furnish small farmers for our homesteads, let us make them out of the material, let hand, material which is more than likely to stay, material which is not above working on the near-by plantation to obtain cash to develop the new home, and which will not call for an advance from the Board of Immigration, nor demand impossible conditions of the planters." As the result of the daily trachoma inspection, there had been a wonderful improvement in this direction. The children's teeth had also been examined, and the parents advised what was necessary to restore them to good condition. Praise was given to the teaching staff for the co-operation granted.

William McCluskey, Supervising Principal of East Hawaii, had to report that as a result of his investigations he had found some of the teachers to be self-sacrificing, others took less interest in their work, failing to realize their responsibilities, a few were hopelessly unreliable, seeming to keep their positions with no other object than to draw their pay. Mr. McCluskey said that his aim had been to encourage those that deserved it, to awaken the interest of those who needed it, and to get rid of the third class, but to assist all. He praised several of the schools for the good work that had been done in various departments. He said that it was pathetic to see rooms containing fifty or more promising pupils, many of whom were approaching the age of fifteen, unable to understand the most common English or to express themselves in the language. He found cases where stalwart men had stayed home on account of the rain while over sixty per cent of their pupils had attended school. He believed that in many instances the pay was too small, and thought that if higher salaries were offered, there would be stronger candidates for the position. The plantation managers had shown their appreciation of the schools by assisting. He called attention to the over-crowded schools of the district. He found that there were about 500 children of school age who were not attending any school, many of whom had been refused admittance on account of lack of accommodation. He recommended the consolidation of Kukulhaele and Kaunahuu schools, thus saving one teacher and give better results. The locations of Ooaka, Laupahoehoe, Pohakupuka, Pahoia and Kanea schools should be changed so that they would be closer to the centers of population. A one-roomed school was needed at the new settlement near the volcano. The difficulty of obtaining competent teachers in Hawaii might be solved by a system whereby pupils showing promise of teaching ability would be encouraged or assisted in obtaining an education that would fit them for school work. He recommended that three supervising principals be appointed for the district of East Hawaii. It was impossible with the extent of the territory to be covered, for one person to accomplish satisfactorily the work to be done. He believed that the present system of supervising principals to be good, but it was capable of considerable improvement, that in the main it had been satisfactory to the teachers themselves, and that its further extension through small districts would result in a general improvement in the schools of the territory.

COURTESY NOT APPRECIATED.

Attorney Frank Andrade was in the police court yesterday assisting the prosecution in three cases against Antonio Richard, who is charged with the larceny of milk from A. H. Junca and James Love. Richard is a milkman and was released on his own recognizance by Sheriff Jarrett, but he did not appear when called on and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. Later in the morning he appeared and explained that he had been busy delivering his milk and got to the court as soon as he could. Judge Lymer remarked that it was seldom a man charged with larceny was released on his own recognizance, and told Richard that he should have respected the courtesy of the sheriff as much as he would have done a bond for $1000. The hearing of the charges was set over until Wednesday but Richard has to find a bond for $150. No more "own recognizances."
