SOCIETY

AN IDEA OF GOOD CHEER.

We are all apt to seek what is hardest to find in worldly affairs as in matters of mind. And from characters often we consciously steal from the bad what is good, which we seldom reveal.

But let us remember we're all just the same. With some trivial differences too slight to name, And if we can find one good trait let us show we are too big for smallness, and let the bad go!

ELEANOR RIVENBURGH.

On Monday afternoon between the hours of four and six o'clock, Governor and Mrs. Walter F. Frear held their regular monthly reception when a score or more visitors and townspeople called at "Arcadia."

Governor and Mrs. Frear were assisted in receiving their guests by Captain and Mrs. W. C. Cowles, U. S. N., while Mrs. Samuel Dunning of Fort Shafter and Mrs. David Rice presided at the tea table.

Others assisting the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dillingham, Captain and Mrs. Lewerenz, Miss Beatrice Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cooke, Mr. Ralph Hosmer, Mr. and Mrs. Sutton, Miss Ruth Richards, Miss Marjorie Gilman and Miss Fanny Hoogs.

"Arcadia" was artistically decorated with tropical foliage for which it has gained much praise from all who have ever called at the gubernatorial mansion.

The mantel in the reception hall was tastefully adorned by a fetching embankment of grey Atherton daisies, many beautiful roses also being in evidence.

The dining room was done entirely in Golden lupins, those wild Makiki valley blossoms which are so attractive and effective.

The tea table was ablaze with great clusters of these on a dainty lace tea cloth and the buffet was resplendent with these vivid blooms.

Among those who called during the afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. George Rodiek, Mrs. Hermann Focke, Mrs. J. K. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Cook, Miss Ethelwyn Castle, Mr. Penhallow, Mr. Worth Aiken, Mrs. Charles Chillingworth, Mrs. Lyser, Mrs. Hosmer, Captain and Mrs. Chapman of Fort Shafter, Mrs. Eskew, Dr. and Mrs. Hobdy, Dr. and Mrs. Shepherd, Mrs. D. Howard Hitchcock, Mrs. Harry Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Richards, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Damon, Major and Mrs. Neville, Mrs. P. L. Weaver, Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Mr. David Rice, Lieutenant Pardee, Rev. and Mrs. John Wadman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewers, Mrs. Ross Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. Waldron, Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Needham, Mrs. Sheedy, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. James A. Kennedy, Mrs. Marques, Mrs. Ernest Clark, Dr. and Mrs. Johnstone of Fort Shafter, Mrs. George Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, Miss McIntyre, Mrs. Osborne, Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Dakoto, Miss Catherine Reynolds, Mrs. Gleason, Miss Cowles, Mrs. Berndt, Mrs. Larnach, Judge Perry, Mrs. William Whitney, Miss McDougall, Canon and Mrs. Ault, Miss Stone, Mrs. Farrington, Mrs. Henry Bond Restarick, Mrs. S. M. Ballou, Mrs. Armin Hanberg and many others.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Whitehouse entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening, at their pretty home on Pensacola and Kinlau streets, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Prather of Oakland.

The table was a symphony of red, the large red and green art globe reflecting a soft glow on a large centerpiece of scarlet carnations and ferns.

Covers were arranged for six, and after dinner the guests indulged in several rubbers of bridge.

A very charming surprise party was given Mrs. T. G. Thrum on Tuesday afternoon on the occasion of her forty-third wedding anniversary when a number of neighbors and intimate friends dropped in to present this gracious lady with a floral shower and many beautiful gifts in token of their remembrance.

The gathering was held at the home of Mrs. Thrum's daughter, Mrs. Roland on Thurston avenue, which was prettily adorned by potted palms and ferns, and vases of scarlet carnations placed in all the rooms.

During the afternoon, after the presentation of gifts and a deluge of lovely fragrant flowers, light refreshments were served the guests at small tables, laden with pinks and maidenhair.

One of the very dainty gifts bestowed upon Mrs. Thrum was a large showery bouquet of creamy tinted Tea roses, presented by one of the guests.

Many pretty speeches were made and toasts offered for the occasion and many hopes were expressed that the guests would enjoy being present at the golden wedding seven years hence.

Among those present were Mrs. W. J. Robinson, Mrs. A. R. Gurrey, Sr., Miss Florence Gurrey, Mrs. Captain Morse, Mrs. William Montrose Graham, Mrs. Percy Morse, Mrs. William A. Clark, Mrs. Mariner, and several others.

Seldom does romance even in Honolulu take the form it assumed on Wednesday last, when little Miss Jean Jeffrey, known to the theater going public as "Sandarte" was married to Mr. J. W. Bains, the popular young sporting writer of The Star.

Mr. Bains' attentions were 'tis said, not regarded entirely with favor by the parents of the young bride, but elopement now-a-days being in vogue the lovers took that course and were quietly married.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Bains.

Mrs. C. W. Settle, wife of one of the civilian clerical staff of the army returned in the transport Sherman on Thursday, after an extended visit in Texas.

One of the very pleasant occasions towards which many are eagerly looking forward will be the party to be given at Leahi Home on Monday afternoon January 30th.

The birthday of one of the ladies associated with the institution will form the incentive for the affair which will give happiness and pleasure to so many.

A band of ladies, interested in the entertainment, laden with flowers for the patients, and gifts, will proceed to the institution, and there, where the fresh sea breeze is so refreshing on the sloping lawns, with an inspiring view spread out in every direction, while the music is playing will a very happy day be spent.

For the first time the Hawaiian band will play at the home during the afternoon, and refreshments of fruit punch, cream and cookies will be served.

The ladies of the "Service Bridge Club" met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Marix, wife of Captain Marix of the U. S. Marine Corps, when this popular hostess entertained two tables at bridge, the first prize a dainty Irish lace jabot being awarded to Mrs. W. H. Winters, wife of Captain Winters 3rd Cavalry and the second prize, a little French bow being won by Mrs. Pardee of Fort Shafter.

The tropical home of Mrs. Marix was brightened by potted house plants and crimson pinks, a large silver bowl brimful of these blossoms and maidenhair, set on a Japanese centerpiece, adorning the tea table, where Miss Kathryn Stephens, the beautiful young niece of Captain and Mrs. Marix presided over the coffee cups, and the hostess served delicious chicken salad.

Miss Stephens was daintily clad in a bluish pink hand embroidered lingerie frock, and the hostess wore a robe of embroidered white linen.

Those present were Mrs. Sheedy, Mrs. Frederick Ramsay, Mrs. Putman, Mrs. W. H. Winters, Mrs. Pardee, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Chapman, Miss Kathryn Stephens and Mrs. Marix.

The new "United Service Bridge Club" which held its preliminary meeting last week to decide certain rules and regulations of their social order will meet for the first time next Monday. There are twenty-eight members of the club.

Meetings in the form of luncheons followed by bridge will be held at the University club on alternate Mondays and seven tables of bridge will be played.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Damon are entertaining at dinner this evening at their home on Thurston avenue.

Covers will be arranged for ten.

A very interesting Welte-Mignon recital was given at the Moana Hotel on Monday evening when many society people as well as members of the club were present. The selections were beautifully rendered, being in charge of Mr. W. D. Adams and his assistant, who assumed full charge of the changing of rolls and attachments.

The programme of the evening follows:

- 1. Parsifal Introduction.....Wagner Felix Mottl
- 2. Nocturne F Sharp.....Major Op. 15 No. 2 Ferruccio Busoni.
- Waltz.....Op. 70 No. 1 Fannie Bloomfield Zolster.
- Etude Op. 19.....No. 3 Paderewski.
- Prelude Op. 28 No. 23.....Chopin
- 3. Sonata Op. 7 E. Minor.....Grieg Olga Samaroff.

- 4. (a) Reverie Op. 9 No. 4.....Strauss Richard Strauss.
- (b) Paganini, Etude No. 5 E Major.....Liszt Bernard Stavenhagen.
- (c) Melodie Op. 3, F Major.....Rubenstein Joseph Hoffmann.
- (d) Arabesque.....Lechetzky Leschetitzky.

- 5. La Soiree dans granade.....Debussy Ernest Schelling.
- 6. Concert Etude (Seashore).....Teresa Carreno. Smetana

Among those present at the concert were noticed Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Richards, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Von Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Marx, Mrs. Westervelt, Miss Jane Winne, Mr. and Mrs. C. Hedemann, Mr and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Dr. Carl Ramus, Mr. Edgar Newcomb, Mrs. Sarah Newcomb, Miss Stevens and many others.

Plans and arrangements are rapidly nearing completion for the Mid-Pacific Kermess, to be held at the Old Fish market building on the evening of February 18th and in which society is very keenly interested.

All the national booths will be in evidence, and among the many others, Chinese, Japanese, Russian, Portuguese, French, American, Hawaiian, Scandinavian and Anglo-Indian will be represented.

Society women who have gained fame for their executive ability and artistic skill have been selected to assume charge of the various booths and many whispered rumors of some startling surprises are heard on every hand.

The Kermess is to be something new for Honolulu, and will flutter with the cream of society on the eventful night.

Further plans for this fete will be announced later.

The ladies of St. Clement's Guild entertained last evening with a Christmas night festival, when a number of invited guests and a large number of children were present to see the tableaux vivants of incidents of the birth of the Christ child.

On a stage cleverly erected and in an appropriate setting an entrancing little stable had been built, of stone containing stalls for the animals, and a rustic crib of green young boughs where the baby Christ child reposed.

The Madonna was there and also the three wise men who came bringing gifts for the babe.

In the rear of the stable was a tall window looking out upon a background representing night with the star of the east shining through the gloom.

Most beautiful singing added lustre to the quiet scene the Sunday school children singing songs of praise as did also the three kings of the east.

The children of the Sunday school received their Christmas gifts after the tableaux, and light refreshments were served.

The persons of the tableaux were as follows: The Virgin Mother.....Miss Pilgrim The Christ child.....Baby Crockett The Three Wise Men.....Mr. Edgar Newcomb, Mr. Blackman, Mr. Curzon Osborne.

One of the daintiest occasions ever given in Honolulu was the tea from four to six o'clock on Thursday afternoon at the Hotel Pleasanton by Mrs. Alfred Brooke and Miss Elsa Niede Brooke of Philadelphia.

The reception was held on the spacious picturesque rotunda of this beautiful tropical hotel, whose hanging baskets of maidenhair, potted palms in oriental jardiniere formed the setting for the delicate pastel shades of the floral touches.

The swing hammocks, piled luxuriously with pale pink satin pillows was in tune with the roses, violets and pinks which adorned tabourets and tables placed about.

The tea table, covered by a cluny lace centerpiece and blossoming with Malmalson pinks was presided over by Mrs. Frutbatge and Mrs. Arthur Smith. The serving table was lacy and was ablaze with clusters of frail pink duchess roses and masses of fragrant purple violets at the base.

Mrs. Brooke and her daughter Miss Elsa Brooke, two gracious and charming hostesses received their guests in this delightfully "al fresco" manner extending a welcome to all.

Mrs. Brooke wore an elegant importation of black Spanish lace falling over a black silk drop, while Miss Brooke, a refined and beautiful type of young womanhood with light brown hair and large violet eyes, was alluring in an embroidered white lingerie confection and wearing a handsome corsage of American Beauty roses.

Light and delicious refreshments were served during the afternoon consisting of iced coffee, tea, sandwiches, cake and grape sherbet.

Among those who called during the hours of receiving were Mrs. Arthur Mackintosh, Mrs. H. M. Von Holt, Mrs. Emery, Mrs. William Ault, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. Pardee and Mrs. Johnstone of Fort Shafter, Mrs. Harold Hayselden, Mrs. Clark of Fort Ruger, Mrs. Pope, Mrs. E. G. Dunsenberger, Miss Stevens, Mrs. Henry Bond Restarick and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Marston Campbell, entertained at a merry chowder party at their beach home at Kahala on Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Prather of Oakland, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Prather, who visited the islands last year are en route to the orient and expect to leave Honolulu the first of February.

During their sojourn here they have been motifs for much social attention, and Sunday's outing was another occasion given for them.

The guests in the party motored out to Kahala at eleven o'clock and after reaching the home of the hosts which is a most beautiful spot, spent some time in bathing and surfing in the sea.

At two o'clock a chowder luncheon was served at a circular table on the lnaal, where through palms and hanging baskets glimpses of the ocean are visible and the table was made attractive by sprays of Australian fern and a mound of golden and brown tropical fruits as centerpiece.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Prather for whom the charming afternoon was given, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Whitehouse, Mrs. Zumwalt and several others.

Dainty appointments and artistic arrangement of beautiful flowers distinguished the dinner party for ten given on Thursday evening by Major and Mrs. Neville in honor of Captain and Mrs. Cowles, U. S. N.

Captain Cowles, the new commandant of the U. S. naval station in Honolulu and his charming wife have been inspirations for a round of entertaining, and the dinner given on Thursday evening was one more sparkling complement to this popular couple.

Palest pink was the shade selected for the embellishment of the dinner table; a large heavy silver bowl filled with sprays of rose pink Malmalsons and lace maidenhair adorning the center of the circular table on a hand wrought lace cloth. Over this ferns and blossoms were strewn, the place cards being tiny pink Hawaiian fishes, and tall silver candelabra being tipped by pink silk shades fashioned as large inverted roses. After dinner the hosts and their guests motored to the Moana hotel to attend the dance given for the ladies and officers of the transport Sherman.

The guests at this dainty dinner party were Captain W. C. Cowles, U. S. N., Mrs. W. C. Cowles, Miss Cowles, Captain Frederick A. Ramsay, U. S. M. C., Mrs. Ramsay, Paymaster and Mrs. Stevens, and Lieutenant Kilgore.

Mrs. Cowles wore a beautiful creation of pearl grey satin elaborately trimmed with motifs of silver passamenterie.

Mrs. Ramsay was daintily lovely in apricot satin with touches of filmy gold lace.

Mrs. Stevens, wife of Paymaster Stevens, U. S. N., was very charming in a robe of black lace over white silk, trimmed with jet sequins and touches of lace and the hostess wore an importation of clinging white crepe meteor adorned by a trimming of white marabout.

Wednesday evening was celebrated at the Hotel Courland in a merry manner, when the Cornell Club entertained its members with its annual banquet.

Dinner was served at seven o'clock in the artistic dining room of the Courland which was transformed into a red and white bower in recognition of the Cornell colors.

Great red flags and college banners and pennants with a big letter in white of the name of the college draped the dining room on all sides and a profusion of white and scarlet carnations added a new splash of color.

The dinner guests sat at one long table adorned by several wicker baskets of red and white carnations, the handles of the baskets being tied by huge bows of scarlet ribbon whose ends ran in and out among the flowers and ferns scattered over the cloth.

Within the baskets were sprays of red and white blossoms combined with webs of asparagus vine.

The round disc place cards were red and bore the college letter in white.

During dinner many toasts were offered to the old days and future days, many reminiscences recalled and college songs of student days sung.

After dinner music filled the evening. The menu of the banquet follows:

- Raw Oysters on caviare and toast Celery and Radishes
- Ripe and Green Olives Bouillon and Crackers Fried Fish and Tartare Sauce Julien Potatoes

- Baked Apples and Whipped Cream Roast Turkey and Cranberry Sauce Mashed Potatoes Creamed Cauliflower Banana Nut Salad
- Courtland Ice Cream and small cakes Bents' Water Crackers and Cheese Black Coffee Nuts and Raisins Fruit Punch

Among those present were Prof. and Mrs. John W. Gilmore, Prof. and Mrs. John M. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Chester J. Hunn, Dr. L. E. Case, Prof. and Mrs. Arthur R. Keller, Prof. and Mrs. Vaughan MacCaughy, Lieutenant H. L. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Pitts, and Miss Della Stone.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Richardson entertained at a handsome dinner party on Tuesday evening in honor of the latter's sisters, Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Maxwell, at present her house guests.

The dinner table was aglow with a myriad of tiny colored electric bulbs, peeping from between clusters of red roses and fluffy lace maidenhair which adorned the hand-wrought Cluny lace centerpiece, creating a startlingly pretty effect.

In the center of this circular table, and banked by red roses and maidenhair, a large vase, comprising a number of branches was filled with graceful long-stemmed American Beauty roses, whose fragrance was perceptible throughout the room.

The place cards, hand-painted, represented "Ye Ladies of Old" in quaint old fashioned costumes and in delicate coloring which combined harmoniously with the rich appointments of the artistic table. After dinner, the evening was devoted to bridge.

Mrs. Richardson is a most capable hostess, and her occasions are always delightful.

Those present at this very handsome dinner were Mrs. Maxwell and Mrs. Becker of San Francisco, for whom it was given, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Klebahn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lanz, Dr. Arthur Hodgins and Mr. Harry Whitney.

Cards have been received as follows Mrs. Walter Dillingham invites you to tea Monday afternoon at half after four to meet those interested in the Mid-Pacific Kermess.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Richards are anticipating the arrival tomorrow in the Mongolia of Bishop and Mrs. Hughes who will remain over, and whom Mr. and Mrs. Richards will entertain as their house guests while here for a fortnight's visit.

Mrs. Edward D. Tenney is entertaining four tables this afternoon at cards at her mansion on Lunaillo and Pensacola streets, complimentary to Mrs. J. F. C. Hagens.

One of the very pretty occasions of the week was the tea given from half after three to six o'clock on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Alfred L. Castle at her home "Roselawn" in Nuuanu valley complimentary to her house guest, Miss Anna Dunham and Miss Beatrice Castle who has just returned from a visit in the east.

The picturesque home of the hostess created a charming setting for the reception, with its superb view of the soft green mountain on all sides and the deep foned canyon of the valley in between.

Mrs. Castle, Miss Dunham and Miss Beatrice Castle received the guests in the large reception room which was beautified by masses of Golden Chrysanthemums and foliage with huge jardiniere of dark green palms and a profusion of potted maidenhair.

In the dining room, Mrs. F. A. Schaefer, the mother of the hostess presided over the tea cups, while Mrs. Harold Castle served sherbet. Others assisting the hostess were Mrs. Richard Cooke, Miss Catherine Goodale, Mrs. Waldron and Mr. Harold Castle.

The tea table was a symphony of cut glass and rare china, a huge cluster of American Beauty's gracing the handsome centerpiece of lace.

Among those present during the afternoon were Mrs. Walter F. Frear, Mrs. George Potter, Mr. and Mrs. William Richards Castle, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Goodale, Mrs. F. A. Schaefer, Mrs. Waldron, Miss Catherine Goodale, Mrs. Robbins Anderson, Mrs. Montague Cooke, Miss May Damon, Miss Alice Macfarlane, Miss Minna Berger, Mrs. H. M. Von Holt, Mrs. Armin
