Over the Teacups

By Lady Gay

Style at best is determined by circumstance. A grass hut in Alaska would serve as well perhaps as an igloo in the Tropic of Cancer, but a grass skirt would hardly compensate an Esquimaux, in exchange for a bear-skin rug.

Therefore the obsession for style must be governed by practical application. "Aviator" caps, notwithstanding their origin, for warmth, became in all their fuzziness strictly "au regle" when the fad was first introduced in Honolulu.

They remained in vogue till various discerning maidens of the general community discovering that these caps were made with a hook and some yarn, adopted them, thereby plucking them effectually from the heads of the elite, by parading around town with their own various heads incased in them!

With this class of the populace they have since become "all the rage." Ranging in size from birth to old age, and in colors which would have delighted Nanki Poo.

Since their unrestricted, overwarming popularity due to the low price of worsted and a natural inclination toward crochet hooks, society has politely ignored the caps.

Except, however, on voyages, when nearing northern shores the bitter, cold, tang of the raw sea striking into the very roots of one's being, one's ears refuse to keep warm, when under the nom de plume of "navigator caps" society meekly draws out its woolly fezzes.

The smart women wear white caps with borders to harmonize with the prevailing tone of their traveling skirts.

A tan skirt with a white sweater, and white cap with a tan border is very chic, as is a similar idea in black and white.

"The style of evening dress at the Captain's Dinner, quite an elaborate function the night before our arrival," wrote a lady who went up in the last Sierra, "consisted of sweaters, navigator caps, cardigan jackets, and all the overcoats not otherwise in use."

"It was so cold I was tempted to wear my gloves, but as the others refrained, I decided to suffer like a hero in order to be in style."

"Had I worn my black-satin evening gown however, as I had intended, I certainly would have been a joke!"

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

The ladies of the Courtland entertained at a very charming tea on Tuesday afternoon, in honor of the engagement of Miss Nara Farnsworth of San Jose to Mr. Hamilton of Honolulu.

The news of the engagement leaked out, and the other guests of the hotel therefore paid this pretty compliment to the young bride-elect, who came some weeks ago on a visit to the islands with her twin sister, Miss Dora Farnsworth, and her uncle, Dr. Marshall.

The tea was held on the lanai decorated with palms and hanging baskets of graceful Boston fern, and here a very congenial and happy afternoon was spent, the guest of honor being presented with a cut glass trophy.

Delicious refreshments were served a la buffet, consisting of bouillon, crackers, tea cake and ice cream, and many felicitations were offered for the future happiness of the young couple.

Among those present on Tuesday were Miss Nara Farnsworth, Miss Dora Farnsworth, Mrs. Hazzard, Mrs. Philip Frear, Mrs. John A. Palmer, Mrs. G. Wilcox, Mrs. Nelson Baker Lansing, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Letson and Mrs. Kennedy.

Amiral and Mrs. Walter Cleveland Cowles, U. S. N., entertained at a beautifully appointed dinner at their home in Nuuanu Valley on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klamp and Miss Gerrard.

The dinner table was dressed in three tones of purple and lavender, a mound of shaded asters occupying the center of the handsomely embroidered canton cloth.

The flowers were partly veiled by long tendrils of lacey asparagus plumosia, which fell over on all sides touching the napery.

From the centerpiece strands of lilac tinted liberty satin ribbons radiated, and between were scattered stray asters of all the violet shades.

Encircling the table were tall silver candelabra of silver, surmounted by violet shades bordered by amethyst fringe, and the dinner cards were hand painted wisteria trellises.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klamp, Mrs. Gerrard, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Francis Smith, Lieutenant and Mrs. Pratt, Miss Vera Damon, Miss Edith Cowles, His Britannic Majesty's Consul Ralph Forster, Lieutenant Leo Sahn, Lieutenant Blair, Lieutenant Pardee and Admiral and Mrs. Walter Cleveland Cowles.

Dr. Marshall and his two nieces, the Misses Dora and Nara Farnsworth, the engagement of the latter of whom has been announced, will leave in the next Sierra for San Francisco after a most delightful visit in the islands.

While here these two charming girls have been extensively entertained, and Dr. Marshall has presided as a genial host over many handsome occasions.

The party will proceed at once to their home in San Jose.

Mr. Hamilton will join them later, and the two will be married sometime next season.

The original Service Bridge Club met at the quarters of Mrs. Turner of Fort Ruger on Wednesday afternoon for their regular bi-monthly meeting, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent by the ladies of the club, with Mrs. Turner presiding as hostess of the occasion.

Potted palms and maidenhair with many fragrant blue violets created a pretty setting, and at the termination of the game delicious refreshments of salad, sandwiches, rolls, cake, ices and fruit punches were served.

The prizes—one for each table—were won by Mrs. Chapman, wife of Captain Chapman of Fort Shafter, and Mrs. William H. Winters, wife of Captain Winters, Thirty-second Cavalry.

They were both handsomely embroidered center-pieces, the former in the design of Chinese dragons, the latter in cherry blossom sprays.

The ladies present were Mrs. Arthur Marix, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. William H. Winters, Mrs. Pardee, Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs. Wilcox, Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Turner.

The Courtland Bridge Club, the membership of which is restricted to the guests of the hotel, met on Wednesday evening, several interesting "rubbers" of bridge being contested.

The lady's prize, a hand-painted China bon bon dish, was captured by Miss Dora Farnsworth, while to Dr. Philip Frear was presented a hand painted collar-button jar, which represented the gentleman's prize.

Light refreshments were served at the conclusion of cards.

Many young people are anticipating with pleasure the dance which will be given by the young ladies of the Kunalu Boat Club tomorrow week Saturday evening, May 13th.

These functions are always original and delightful and a very pleasant evening is in store for the young guests.

Miss Wilhelmina Tenney entertained at a very elaborate luncheon on Wednesday afternoon at her home on Lunallilo and Pensacola street.

The dining room was bewildering in its display of Brazilian golden orchids which decorated the buffet and china closet and formed a magnificent centerpiece for the luncheon table.

On the center of the table on a cherry lace cloth a large gold basket rested filled with innumerable tall sprays of wonderful yellow orchids which almost touched the ceiling of the room.

Each spray represented over a thousand regal blossoms selected from the famous Tenney hot-houses, and interspersed with the orchids were long beautiful fronds of the Farleyensis fern.

The handle of the basket was caught in a butterfly bow of yards of golden chiffon, the ends veiling the basket and trailing among stray violets dropped in the meshes of the lace cloth. The Tenneys are very partial to the royal Hawaiian colors and most of their occasions are carried out in tones of purple and gold.

The guest cards bore the gold family monogram.

Mrs. Harold Dillingham, Mrs. Frederick Dwight Lowrey, Miss Beatrice Castle, Miss Vera Damon and Miss Wilhelmina Tenney.

The most feted bride-elect in many moons is Miss Claire Williams, who, during the past week has been the inspiration for innumerable beautiful occasions given in her honor.

On Wednesday evening Dr. Clifford B. High entertained at a daintily appointed dinner party complimentary to Miss Williams and Mr. Bruce Cartwright Jr. in the artistic bungalow in Puunui, which Mr. Cartwright has purchased.

The center of the circular table was occupied by a fancy basket brimful of white daisies, the handle being concealed in a mist of white illusion, suggestive of the nature of the auspicious occasion.

Stray daisies were dropped over the lace cloth, and the guest cards were hand-painted little Cupids.

Those at dinner were Miss Claire Williams, Miss Edith Williams, Mrs. Frederick Waterhouse, Mr. Bruce Cartwright Jr., Mr. Frank Howes and Dr. Clifford B. High.

Miss Agnes Walker entertained last evening at a handsome dinner party in honor of Miss Claire Williams and her fiance, Mr. Bruce Cartwright Jr.

A mound of scarlet Ixora blossoms made the dinner table very attractive. The dinner cards were fancy hand-painted confections.

The guests included Miss Claire Williams, Mrs. Walker, Miss Bernice Hartwell, Miss Edith Williams, Mr. Bruce Cartwright Jr., Mr. Frank Armstrong, Lieutenant Price, Lieutenant Vaughn and Mr. Hoby Walker.

Mrs. A. Jaeger entertained at a very pretty dancing party at her home, Punahou and King streets, on Wednesday evening, in honor of her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Jaeger.

The spacious and artistic old home was decorated with quantities of American Beauty roses heaped in huge Oriental jardiniere about the rooms, and long, graceful festoons of smilax draped from the side lights and cluster lights suspended from the ceiling.

Potted palms and maidenhair occupied every spare corner on tall pedestals, creating an exquisite setting for the light, dainty gowns of the girls who alighted from motor cars and were received by Mrs. Jaeger and her daughter, Mrs. T. Robinson.

Naihoa's Hawaiian Quintette, screened from view on a corner of the lanai behind a barricade of potted palms and caladiums, played and sang all evening for the dances, the floor being in excellent condition, and a very happy time was spent.

At eleven refreshments a la buffet were served at small tables set on the broad lanai in a setting of roses and ferns.

Among those present were Mrs. Allen Jaeger, Miss Belle McCarriston, Miss May Catton, Miss Claire Williams, Miss Edith Williams, Miss Marjorie Preeth, Mrs. T. Robinson, Mrs. Charles Chillingworth, Miss Catherine Magoon, Mrs. Ralph Johnstone, Miss Violet Makee; Messrs. Sinclair, Robert McCarriston, Charles Chillingworth, Robert Catton, John Catton, Percy Cleghorn, George Fuller, Clarence Waterman, Ralph Johnstone, Bruce Cartwright Jr. and Judge Perry.

At the Moana Hotel last night the musical circle of the Kiohaha Art League gave "An Evening With French Composers." There was a large gathering of lovers of music and the entertainment proved a most enjoyable one. The program began with an address by E. A. P. Newcomb, on the music of France during the past century. Miss Katherine Reynolds had charge of the arrangement of the program and was thanked by the guests at the conclusion of the entertainment, for the pleasure afforded.

The program was:

Kohala Midget: Last Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Arthur of Kukuluaele were the host and hostess at an elaborate luau given in honor of the first anniversary of the birth of their little daughter Dido.
Two large tables in the spacious dining room were loaded to overflowing with all kinds of Hawaiian delicacies, and during the afternoon the Waipio Quintette Club kept the crowd lively with selections of Hawaiian airs. Little Dido's health was frequently drank in "Something stronger than water," which greatly added to the merriment of the afternoon. Among those present who were noticed, besides the host and hostess, were Mrs. August Ahrens, Mrs. Jack Low, Miss Low, Miss Campbell, Miss Dido Ahrens, Miss Arthur, Miss Dora Arthur, Mrs. Sam Stanford, Miss Stanford, Mrs. Akahi Lono, Miss Kalani Lono, Miss Emma Lono, Mrs.

Examiner: Theodore Wores, artist, and his bride, formerly Miss Carolyn Bauer of this city, have returned from a honeymoon trip to Honolulu, where he painted the portraits of many of the best known men and women of Hawaii. They will remain for a time in San Francisco, but expect soon to build a home and studio, a beautiful Moorish building, in Santa Barbara.

Sanford Dole, former Governor of Hawaii, was one of Artist Wores' subjects. The artist also painted portraits of Governor Frear, former Chief Justice Hartwell, P. C. Jones and
