Duisenberg and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Duisenberg.

Miss Florence Hoffman left in the Wilhelmina for San Francisco, where she will visit with friends, later in the summer making one of a party to visit the Yosemite. Miss Hoffman is one of the most popular and charming girls of the younger set and will be greatly missed during her two months' absence.

New York Evening Journal: Miss Graham has received many handsome gifts.

Mrs. Gould's gift is a long double chain of diamonds, with an interlaced pendant of emeralds and diamonds. From Mr. Gould there is a head ornament of diamonds.

Miss Helen Gould's gift is a Louis XVI bow knot of diamonds with a pear-shaped pearl pendant. From Mrs. Charles G. Kingdon, grandmother of Mr. Gould, there is a marquise diamond set in a ring. Mr. Gould sent a set of silver dinner plates, and the Misses Edith and Gloria Gould, sisters of the bridegroom, a rope of seed pearls with diamond clasps. George J. Gould's Jr. gift is a Louis XV hanging clock, and from Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., there is a library set of French bronze of artistic workmanship.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould sent a sautoir of pearls and diamonds with a pendant circular plaque of diamonds set in filigree pattern. Howard Gould's gift is a bracelet set with solitaire diamonds.

Jay Gould's gift to his bride is of substantial nature. It is a house. The site has not been selected, but it will not be far away from that of his parents, who live at No. 847 Fifth avenue.

Mr. Vos has given to his stepdaughter and Mr. Gould his portraits of them.

THE PUBLICIST'S MISTAKE.

"What this town needs most," said the eminent publicist, "is a thorough cleaning up, about a dozen new bridges and a first-class subway system."

"You are mistaken," replied the average citizen. "What this town needs most is a good left-handed pitcher."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE DIMINUTIVE.

At the age of three Janet was an enthusiastic student of entomology. One day she discovered a caterpillar for herself, a very tiny one. "Oh, come here!" she called. "Here's a caterpillar, the cutest little thing! It's a kittenpillar!"—Woman's Home Companion for May.

Kleptomania, briefly interpreted in a pocket dictionary, means an insane desire to steal.

Therefore by a scientific method of deduction it can be proved that there are many insane thieves in this community.

If it were printed even in black and white, which seem to be the colors denoting indisputable facts of a case, that certain ladies in the city prepare for the reception of this class of society into their homes, strong doubt would be cast upon the assertion by the confiding public at large, who would readily credit any appropriation pocketed in any of the leading cafes.

The same spirit of insane desire to steal respects neither age, environment, or previous condition of social servitude.

And has proved itself an invader even into the ranks of society. But why should it not be as tempted by Dresden bric-a-brac and after dinner Coalport coffee cups as readily as by silver jugs and spoons conspicuously engraved with the monogram of a well-known institution?

Surely in the former, there is less chance of discovery, which after all, is the only barrier between many people of apparently honest attributes and their tendencies toward kleptomania!

One who steals—there are no allowances for time, place, or condition—is a thief.

And grievous as it is to acknowledge society can point to many thieves. Some of these degenerates possess the additional trait of effrontery, which is a helpful requisite in their line of work.

And who not only "make away" with other people's property, but will laughingly and brazenly exhibit their "collection" for your edification and approval!

One of the most brazen instances was unearthed in a letter to a clerk at one of the leading hotels the other day.

"I have made it a hobby," the letter ran, "to collect water jugs from all the hotels in the world where I have stayed during my travel tours.

"But by some oversight I neglected to add one of yours to my large collection.

"Would you mind therefore, sending me one without delay."

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

The United States revenue cutter Thetis was merry last evening, when Lieutenant Pine entertained at a beautiful dinner party.

The social functions which have been given on this pretty craft have been innumerable, and have always proved themselves memorable by artistic skill and the genial hospitality of their hosts.

Last evening the guests were conveyed in a trim launch to the ship, where at seven an elaborate dinner was served.

The table, in the ward room, at which the fourteen were seated, blossomed with white and green, long festoons of smilax radiating from a large centerpiece of white asters and maidenhair ferns.

Along the trailing vines which crossed the cloth were interwoven tiny white electric bulbs, like blossoms, an alluring conceit.

The guest cards were hand-painted in quaint water color sketches, and were attached by ribbons to corsage favors of white violets for the ladies.

After dinner music and dancing were enjoyed on deck.

Those present were Judge and Mrs. Henry E. Cooper, Miss Alice Cooper, Miss Isabel Cooper, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheedy, Miss Bertha Koepke, Miss Irene Cooper, Mr. Walter Kendall, Mr. Wallace Cooper, Lieutenant Vaughan of Fort Ruger, Lieutenant Robinson and Lieutenant Pine of the U. S. revenue cutter Thetis.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Blake, whose beautiful new home is so greatly admired in College Hills, entertained at a very artistic dinner party on Monday evening.

The dining room, in its dark brown tints and furnishings, was a charming attraction for the dinner table, resplendent in tints of gold.

A gold basket heaped with yellow coreopsis blossoms was caught with golden tulle and the guest cards were baskets of coreopsis beautifully hand-painted by little Miss Blake.

Those bidden were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gillman, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Frear, Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Meade and Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Blake.

Tenney, who left this morning for San Francisco.

Pink begonias and maidenhair formed an attractive centerpiece.

Among those present were Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Jessie Kennedy, Miss Grace Davis or California and Mrs. Gustave Schaefer.

A jolly party, comprising Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Miss Wilhelmina Tenney and Mrs. Helen Noonan left in the Wilhelmina today for San Francisco. After several weeks spent in the metropolis the party will motor to Lake Tahoe, their favorite California resort, where several months will be spent in out-of-doors recreations.

On Monday evening Miss Florence Hoffman was the guest of honor at a very pretty dinner party at the University Club, at which Dr. Gillespie of the United States Revenue Cutter Thetis entertained.

The circular table was adorned by a willow basket brimful of two-toned purple and lavender asters, interspersed with Australian fern. The guest cards were hand-painted baskets of flowers.

After an elaborate menu the host and his guests motored to the theatre where the remainder of the evening was spent.

The young people were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. A. Hocking. In the party were Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Alice Cooper, Miss Kathryn Stephens, Miss Helen North, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hocking, Lieutenant Blair of the United States Marine Corps, Mr. Walter Kendall, Lieutenant Turner and Dr. Gillespie of the United States Revenue Cutter Thetis.

Miss Alice Roth entertained informally at a very daintily appointed luncheon on Friday at the home of her sister, Mrs. High, in Paunui.

Covers were arranged for six. The luncheon table was attractive in its dressing of three-toned lavender asters and maidenhair, heaped high in a graceful basket which was caught with broad lavender satin bow and trailing ends. The guest cards were hand-painted tropical scenes. Among those present were Mrs. Charles Wilcox, Miss Marjorie Peterson, Mrs. Nichol and Miss Alice Roth.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Duisenberg entertained at a handsome dinner party Monday evening in the private banquet room of the Hotel Pleasanton, in honor of Miss Claire Williams and Mr. Bruce Cartwright, Jr.

Pink La France roses, heaped in a gold basket, were partly veiled by a butterfly bowl of shell-pink tulle, with electric globes, silk shaded to resemble roses, visible here and there.

The guest cards were rose wreaths, hand-painted in a similar shade. The ladies all wore dainty white evening gowns, creating an alluring complement to the dinner party. Those present were Miss Claire Williams, Miss Edith Williams, Miss Sarah Lucas, Mrs. Clifford B. High, Mr. Bruce Cartwright Jr., Dr. Clifford B. High, Dr. Hedemann, Mr. Walter
