Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for her self. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial. It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

SOCIETY

The trouble with your daughter's extravagance and its incentive is that her allowance is elastic.

An expensive gown, worn for the first time, upon which has been dropped by carelessness a thimbleful of strawberry mousse at an afternoon party, and which must therefore be submitted to a cleaning establishment, becomes passe no matter how much of an expenditure was involved in its creation.

A chapeau whose brim tilts up when the latest fad in Paris is to turn it down, is immediately discarded, regardless of its appalling nouveaute.

A pair of suede pumps, however becoming, with Cuban heels, are disconcertingly and prettily kicked into oblivion by a silken foot as soon as the clerk persuades his customer that the piece de resistance in jumps is made with a very high French heel, her perfectly new cast-offs eventually torturing the feet of a sewing girl who minces along King street with a bundle of new dresses on her head.

A chiffon motor or carriage veil of palest blue which is admirably suited to her delicate coloring, and which was purchased on a three-day-ago downtown tour, is hastily discarded or presented to the Japanese maid to be replaced by a more distinctive three-toned royal purple, gold and crimson creation, "just received," on the very next trip to the shopping district, which would frame less incongruously the swarthy-tinted face of a more sombre beauty.

There are too many otherwise sensible parents who err in their misguided idea of false economy. They feel disinclined to submit their daughters to the ignominy of a test of self-support, in which alone lies the secret of their redemption from the wasteful sin of extravagance, and ultimately their own pleasure and reward.

Instead of meting out a week, bi-weekly, monthly, quarterly or annual allowance, to be preciously guarded and intelligently spent, under the guidance and suggestion of the mother, which would be an instructive course in domestic science, the limited purse, like an unlimited family grab-bag, is ever open for each member to help herself.

"I want my wife and daughter," says a prominent business man in town, "to have only the best that money can buy. That is why I spend all my time at the office so they can spend all the money."

Can such an attitude in reality guarantee happiness? Must not any woman, even in the heights of her spectacular triumph, even in the midst of the envy of her confederates, feel a deep regret that her finery is bought at such an outrageous price of sacrifice?

Must not her daughter, in the maelstrom of her gay career, feel but a small respect for the mother who regards her generous father as a mere financial drudge?

One of the most potent obstacles in the matrimonial career of so many women is the training, or the lack of it, they received as girls at home. Their frivolity has been augmented and encouraged by a mother's indulgence and self-sacrifice, while the real and vital duties of their life have been ignored.

Few of these girls, even on the eve of their marriage, realize its serious responsibilities, its exacting and punctilious demands. Few have handled money since as babies they rolled it over the floor of their nursery or put it in their mouths.

The weight of their own household falls usually upon unprepared shoulders, and as often as not it is jolted out of place by protesting and rebellious wives.

The only way in which to bring up a girl is to tender her from the start-off a limited allowance. So that she may learn at an early age the value of that which is so ardently earned.

That she may value more highly and treasure more sacredly the heroic efforts of those who have striven the harder on her behalf. And that she may learn even from her infancy the beauty of graceful and willing sacrifice, which so often in her later years as a wife and mother she will undoubtedly be called upon to make!

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Princess Kawanakoa writes under date of London, August 13: "I have been on my back for nine weeks, and getting along; will be in the hospital a month longer, then intend recuperating in Paris."

The ladies of the United Service Bridge Club met again yesterday afternoon on the lanai of the Hotel Colonial, where, amid quantities of golden shower and potted palms, which were very artistically arranged, four tables of bridge were played.

As so many members of the club are at present out of town the heart table was eliminated and three bridge prizes were awarded. Mrs. Pardee of Fort Shafter presided as hostess during the afternoon.

The first prize, an embroidered towel, was presented to Mrs. Wilcox, Mrs. Arthur Marx and Mrs. Irwin G. Shepherd being awarded the second and third, which were similar in character.

A delicious fruit punch was passed between periods and at five light refreshments were served.

The club will meet again on the 18th of this month, when Mrs. Alfred Putnam of Fort de Russy will preside as hostess.

Among those who left in the transport Sherman last evening were Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith of Fort Shafter, who have left many friends in local society and the service set.

Dr. Smith will receive further orders upon his arrival in San Francisco.

Mrs. Ernest Kinloch Johnstone, who has been a guest at the home of her brother, J. Wilson Shiek, since her arrival from Honolulu will leave in a few days to visit her sister, Mrs. Robert Allen, in Los Angeles.—San Francisco Call.

Dr. E. K. Johnstone is stationed at Fort Shafter and both he and his wife have made many warm friends in Honolulu.

Miss Helen Alexander has sent out invitations for a luncheon at which she will entertain at her home in Nuuanu valley this afternoon in honor of Mrs. C. S. Holloway, who will leave shortly for the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Brown are at present entertaining as their house guest the former's mother, Mrs. Joshua K. Brown, Sr., of Cleveland, Ohio, who arrived in the Mongolia on Monday.

Mrs. Brown is not a stranger to this city, her husband having been the first federal officer in the islands, fourteen years ago.

Mrs. Brown has traveled extensively back and forth for the past few years and is being warmly welcomed by a contingent of friends.

Cards have been sent out for a luncheon at which Mrs. Charles T. Wilder will entertain on Thursday at Kahala in honor of Mrs. G. M. Dowsett.

Mrs. Augustus E. Murphy has sent out invitations for an informal tea at which she will entertain from four to six on Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Lindsay Rogers of California, who expects to return to her home in the states next week, after a delightful visit in the islands.

Miss Grace Robertson, who has been enjoying the summer months in a round of social festivities in San Francisco, is expected to arrive home on Friday in the Sierra.

A wireless message announced she was aboard, having a merry trip, as a large number of Honolulu folk are returning in the popular liner.

A party comprising Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lodge Marx, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cartwright Jr., Mrs. Claire Williams and Miss Edith Williams, who have been spending the summer months at Kuliouou, near Koko Head, have returned to town and are the house guests of Mrs. Williams at her home at Waikiki.

Mr. and Mrs. Marx and Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright expect to return to their respective homes the latter part of the week.

Mrs. C. F. Stevens, Mrs. William Mutch and Mrs. John Lucas formed a party motoring over the hills to the Hauula Hotel on Tuesday and returning Sunday evening.

Other guests at present domiciled at this charming little hostelry are Pastor and Mrs. Felmy and family, and Mrs. St. C. Sayres and three children, who are all delighted with the service, cuisine and mosquito-proof apartments of the hotel.

A telephone has recently been installed for the convenience of guests, so that rooms and cottages may be reserved by wire in advance.

This hotel, under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey, is gaining an enviable reputation in society, and owing to the par excellence of its table, and the delightful appointments of its breezy, wind-swept rooms, it has been filled to its capacity all summer.

Chronicle: Mr. and Mrs. George Beckley went to Honolulu last week to remain there until October, when the latter's sister, Princess David Kawanakoa hopes to be able to travel. Mrs. Beckley goes to look after her inheritance and to be with the three children of her sister, who have greatly missed their pretty mother during her prolonged illness in London. At last accounts Princess David was recuperating, but rather slowly.

Chronicle: Honolulu and the Far East are calling several from among the elite of San Francisco, many of whom threaten to remain away for the greater part of the winter. On Wednesday Mrs. Eleanor Hyde-Smith will sail for Honolulu, where she has taken a cottage near the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Dillingham. Mrs. Hyde-Smith has recently returned from a sojourn abroad, in which she was accompanied by her sister, Miss May Hyde Bayard Hyde-Smith, who is at present traveling in Europe, will join his mother in October.

On Tuesday the Mongolia carried among its passengers Mr. and Mrs. George Beckley, who will remain in the islands until December; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sebres, Dr. and Mrs. Geo. Chanteaud, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Stone, Miss Vera Stone and C. A. Edwards.
