OVER THE TEACUPS. By Lady Gay.

guests assembled with their sewing being a bower of hanging baskets and palms.

At five delicious refreshments of sandwiches, tea, ices and cake were passed by Japanese maids in kimonos, and a very pleasant afternoon rewarded the hostess for her efforts.

Mrs. Kahn, who is at present visiting the city with her husband, Congressman Kahn, and Mrs. Herold were classmates of Mrs. North in her collegiate days.

Among others present at this delightful tea, besides Mrs. Julius Kahn, Mrs. Lindsay Rogers and Mrs. Herold, were Mrs. R. R. Reidford, Mrs. E. M. Watson, Mrs. C. B. Reynolds, Mrs. Fred Bush, Mrs. Wheatley, Mrs. Augustus E. Murphy, Miss Helen Rogers, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Helen Smith and Mrs. F. B. Smith.

A number of society folks are anticipating the dancing party at which Judge Perry will entertain at the Moana Hotel this evening.

The parlors of the hotel will be transformed into a ball room and decorated with palms, vines and flowers.

A delicious fruit punch will be served all evening, and Kaaf's quintette will sing and play for the dancers.

At eleven a buffet supper will be served.

The party is a compliment to Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Sinclair, who have recently returned from a trip abroad.

About one hundred and sixty cards have been issued.

Mrs. C. O. Berger was the motif for a handsome and unusually artistic luncheon at which Mrs. W. Lanz entertained yesterday afternoon at her home on Punahou street.

The color scheme for the table ensemble was in lavender, a rock crystal violet bowl, which was visible through a mist of palest lavender tulle, occupying the center of the table, whence issued quantities of two-toned mauve and lavender asters.

This dainty floral adornment rested upon a centerpiece heavily embroidered in shaded silk violets, the place doilies being similar.

Over the centerpiece strands of tulle radiated, over which were strewn gray blossoms.

The place cards were hand-painted baskets of violets.

After luncheon the hostess and her guests gathered about for an informal hour of bridge.

Those present were Mrs. C. O. Berger, Miss Minna Berger, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Miss Alice Macfarlane, Mrs. Frederick W. Macfarlane, Mrs. George Rodiek, Mrs. J. M. Dowsett, Mrs. Edwin Paris, Mrs. C. C. Conradt, Mrs. William E. Dargie of Oakland, Mrs. Henry Macfarlane, Mrs. Frank E. Richardson, Mrs. Carl Widemann, Mrs. Brune and Mrs. W. Lanz.

GOOD ADVICE FOR SPECULATORS.

"A broker once told me that there was one rule which he would give, if he dared, to his customers to guide them in selecting stocks for trading purposes. Take a piece of chewing gum; reduce it to an adhesive condition, mold it into a form convenient

Great social and clerical agitation has caused a portentous flutter in New York and Newport society.

The subject has been discussed over congenial groups of teacups, with an outward and visible semblance of indifference, and with an inward surging undercurrent of indignation.

And Miss Madeline Force's ears have burned with a deep humiliation at the scourging whip-lash of gossip to which this young bride has been subjected.

Ministers all over the states positively refused to marry her to Colonel John Jacob Astor, millionaire.

The popular sentiment spread like a flame from city to city, and ran thrilling through society like an electrical current.

It was incredible, impossible, positively unheard of, that New York's "Five Hundred" should be submitted to the ignominy of adopting a stranger in their midst, to admit into their sanctum sanctorum a young woman of doubtful heritage, and ignoble social status, and who, after the few short sentences of a marriage service, when she should have found a minister of the gospel who would perform it, would be in a position to issue decrees of fashion and leadership.

But in the midst of the polite affray, when the Episcopal diocese and Newport belles and beaux were turbulent with emotion and suspense, the colonel and his attractive young fiancée slipped unostentatiously to the former's summer home, where an ex-minister, who had decided to give up the gospel for the trade of a carpenter, spoke a few brief words which legalized the marriage, and exalted an unknown maiden of the bourgeoisie to a leader of society.

Her winter home is a neat stone mansion in "Millionaires' Row" on Fifth avenue.

It is characterized by an interior to bewilder any Old World artist or connoisseur.

Its age-old Burgundies abound in their seclusion of eighteenth century cobwebs.

The darkness which has invaded its grotto-apartments has been illuminated by the touch of a magic hand.

Here in the Palace of the Prince will Madeline Force Astor's fresh youth and beauty dwindle from the prison life she will be called upon to lead.

Showers of pearls and invaluable jewels will ere long fall listless from her careless fingers.

The taste of the fruits of wealth will cease to linger.

Its flavor, once eagerly sought for its sweetness and its novelty, will turn to bitterness and maddening monotony.

There will be storm-vent hours of tearful fury at her predicament, when a fierce resentment will sear her heart, to burn to ashes all that seemed so fresh and fair.

There will be hours of a secret longing for the ragged gown and fireplace and the friends they won for her.

When the fairy princess's shimmering satin transformation will mean naught but a weapon wherewith to invite the attacks of vice and scorn.

When Cinderella will be tempted to call in vain for the hour of twelve so she may awaken to the old reality.

The friendships of her girlhood days are now lost forever.

For she has dropped them one by one into the consuming flames which are burning her bridges after her, as she enters each vista leading to her exalted and unfamiliar life.

Her new friendships will fail to satisfy.

Their flattery and their obeisance will not ring true, and her hostilities will be fierce and unending!

Society writhes under the insolence of an enforced humility.

And succeeds inevitably in gaining its revenge by closing in on its unfortunate victim, crushing the pride of its soul and the use of its body, till a trivial climax finally snuffs it out, like a candle flame!

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

Major and Mrs. Edward Julius Timberlake of Fort Rager entertained at a handsome dinner dance at the Moana Hotel last evening in honor of Miss Laura Nott.

The dinner table was gracefully arranged with white lilies, heaped in a basket which was veiled with white tulle.

Rose colored candle shades surmounted six silver candelabra which encircled the basket, and the guest cards, hand-painted moonlight scenes, were inscribed for six.

After dinner the hosts and their guests repaired to the ballroom of the hotel to attend the transport hop.

Those present were Miss Laura Nott, Miss Edith Williams, Lieutenant Pratt of Fort Rager, Mr. Herbert Dowsett and Major and Mrs. Edward J. Timberlake.

The friends of Mrs. Lindsay Rogers and her daughter, Miss Helen Rogers, will be delighted to learn of the postponement of their departure. These two charming ladies had expected to leave yesterday in the Sierra, but the fascination of island life appealed to them too strongly.

Mrs. Rogers and her daughter will depart on Sunday in the Siberia, and intend to visit Honolulu again next summer.

Mrs. W. W. North entertained at a very charming tea from four to six on Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Julius Kahn of San Francisco, Mrs. Lindsay Rogers of Fresno and Mrs. Herold.

The drawing room, dining room and lanai were artistically decorated with quantities of Shasta daisies, lace maidenhair and potted palms, the lanai where the hostess and her for throwing; throw it at the board. Buy or sell the stock indicated by the spot on the board to which it adheres. Go to Europe for three months. By following this advice, he said, the customer would have a chance—not much of a chance it is true, but some chance. If, however, he reads the financial page of the newspapers, and listens to the gossip in the brokers' offices, he has not even the gambler's chance, since he will be doing exactly what the powers back of the market want him to do in order that they may as quickly as possible get his principal before it is exhausted by the constant nibbling of the broker.

"A well-to-do man showed his ingenu-ous bride a check for $1800. 'Do you see this check? Now with this I'm going to buy sugar. Sugar is going up, and I'll give you the profits.' Sugar went down and he lost his $1800. The lady asked for an accounting. 'My dear, sugar went down. The money is lost.' 'And you haven't even any sugar?' she asked plaintively. 'Not even any sugar.'

"It will be well for the American people if the present dullness in brokerage circles, in so far as this dullness represents increasing knowledge of the pitfalls of margin speculation shall continue. As a means of making money, it is worthless; as a means to loss and ruin, it has no rivals. With the large number of sound investments constantly offered by banking houses to the public on terms which offer a reasonable chance of increasing value, together with security of principal and income, it should no longer be necessary for men and women to put their savings into mar-

The Housewife's Health Is Precious

The happiness of the whole family depends greatly on the health and strength of the housewife. If she is weak and worn out, fretful and nervous she cannot be the wise and patient adviser of her children, the congenial companion of her husband, the calm mistress of her many trying household duties that she was when in perfect health.
