

FIELD DISCUSSES CITY GOVERNMENT

H. Gooding Field, formerly chief accountant and cost expert for the Panama Canal commission, read a paper before the chamber of commerce of Honolulu yesterday afternoon in which he demonstrated to his own satisfaction by pages of statistics gathered from cities on the mainland that Honolulu is municipally mismanaged and one of the most extravagant cities on the map, in which he advocated a businesslike regime and pointed with satisfaction to the success of the commission form of government, and which he closed with a solemn warning of federal interference in local affairs. At the close of this dissertation, encouraged by the applause of the commercial men, he modestly offered to do all he could in straightening out what he considers a deplorable state of local affairs.

After citing figures to show how much better Los Angeles is managed than Honolulu and how much less it costs to run the municipality of Los Angeles he gives his opinion of local affairs very pointedly in the following paragraph:

"That the cost of general government for the City and County of Honolulu is excessive, and out of all proportion to population there can be no doubt; whether the organization, as it stands at present, is burdened with items of expense which should rightly be charged to other accounts is a question which can only be answered by a thorough investigation of its workings. One point, however, is clear

DECORATIVE IDEAS ARE NOW ON TAP

Director General Arthur F. Wall of the 1912 Floral Parade is now anxious to hear from people who want ideas about decorated automobiles, decorated floats, or any other feature that they may be contemplating.

Director Wall and his ideas committee are now at work on suggestions for those who need them, and anybody who is short on ideas can get a few by applying to this committee, which is composed of Lew Henderson, F. G. W. Cooper and Mrs. H. E. Wally. This committee held its first meeting the other day, and is working upon a series of suggestions for decorated automobiles.

It is the intention of the committee to work out designs that can be economically put into effect. The past experience of Floral Parade entries has proved that automobiles may be decorated, and decorated well, at the expense of only a few dollars. Now that the time for the Parade is drawing near many people may be willing to enter cars by a unique, attractive and inexpensive design is furnished.

By addressing the ideas committee, 1912 Floral Parade, care of Hawaii Promotion Rooms, Honolulu, persons desiring suggestions will be supplied with them and any such suggestions will be considered strictly confidential.

that unless such changes have been made, it will be necessary to inject practical methods into the administration as the only feasible solution of the problem.

His paper was closed with an implied warning of federal interference which immediately followed an optimistic paragraph upon the wealth, development and cheerful outlook of Hawaii. In closing he said:

"The United States government is always slow to take the initiative in local autonomy; if, however, a squandering of means and culpable inefficiency is known to exist in the management of island affairs, then the only alternative left to the federal authorities, to ensure an economical and efficient administration, will be themselves to take charge of the reins of government."

In conducting its routine business the chamber of commerce accepted the resignation of T. Clive Davies as trustee of the chamber and, upon his recommendation, elected E. H. Wodehouse to fill the vacancy.

An announcement was made, in the form of an invitation to the members, that the 90th birthday of Charles R. Bishop, first president of the body, would be celebrated on the roof garden of the Young Hotel at 3 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, January 25.

JAMES COWAN PASSES AWAY

James Cowan, who has been a resident of the islands for 35 years and was a veteran in plantation work, died this afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock at his home, 1219 Wilder avenue. He was 60 years of age and came first to the island of Maui and worked as an engineer on several plantations. Later he took the management of the Kahuku plantation and continued in this work until he was incapacitated a number of years ago by a paralytic stroke. Since then he has occasionally filled temporary positions on various plantations. He erected the sugar mill on the Oahu plantation and for a time managed it. Then he was employed at Kona and about a year ago he came to Honolulu with his family and lived in retirement. He is survived by a wife and family. His son Charles Cowan is engineer at Aiea for the Honolulu plantation. The funeral will be held from the residence tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

CHAMBER SHIFTS ITS POSITION

At a meeting of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, held yesterday afternoon, a resolution was adopted to the effect that, in view of the fact that Captain Matson promises that the Matson Navigation Company will keep pace with the transportation requirements of Hawaii, the chamber should withdraw its support of the proposed suspension of the coastwise shipping laws as applied to passenger travel between Hawaii and the mainland. The resolution, which was introduced by E. E. Paxton and adopted by a large majority of those present, is as follows:

Whereas, This chamber is now on record as strongly favoring the suspension of the coastwise shipping laws of the United States as applying to vessels plying between the Territory of Hawaii and the mainland of the United States, until such time as sufficient and proper accommodations are provided by steamers under the American flag; and

Whereas, The Matson Navigation Company, through its Honolulu agents, has given assurance at this meeting that said Matson Navigation Company is now making plans for a new steamer with practical working capacity for carrying at least two hundred first-class passengers and to make the run between San Francisco and Honolulu in not to exceed six days;

Now therefore be it resolved, That upon the assurance that said steamer will be put in commission as soon as possible and upon the further assurance of the Matson Navigation Company that it will keep pace with the requirements of passenger traffic between the Hawaiian Islands and San Francisco by building such additional steamer or steamers as may from time to time be required, this chamber, for the present, hereby withdraws its support for the suspension of the coastwise shipping laws as applied to passenger travel between the Territory of Hawaii and the Mainland of the United States.

E. D. Tenney assured the chamber that at a recent meeting held in San Francisco a new steamer, capable of carrying not less than two hundred first-class passengers and of making the run between Honolulu and San Francisco in six days was projected. He also stated that he had been given to understand that the Oceanic company would not withdraw the Sierra from the local run, but would build a new boat for its transpacific service.

With reference to the statement made at yesterday's meeting that the Hilo railroad would have trains running on to the wharf nearly every hour, Mr. Thurston said that that was not so. The company is a small one and the rolling stock is limited. The company could not handle three big steamers in two days. Mr. Thurston got what he wanted in that respect and then the commissioners took up some other rules.

Handling of Merchandise. The handling of merchandise that is meant for transhipment caused another long argument, and it was finally thought that if packages are marked on the original invoices for transhipment, they could stay on the wharf, while other merchandise would be got off the wharf within the time limit set.

Mr. Wakefield stated that Honolulu people had said that the time allowed in this port was insufficient. It was found, however, that too much time had been allowed. Commissioner McCarthy declared that if extra time was given the railroad company now, to shift freight, later on, when a reduction of time was ordered, there might be a big howl.

HILO WHARF

With reference to the statement made at yesterday's meeting that the Hilo railroad would have trains running on to the wharf nearly every hour, Mr. Thurston said that that was not so. The company is a small one and the rolling stock is limited. The company could not handle three big steamers in two days. Mr. Thurston got what he wanted in that respect and then the commissioners took up some other rules.

Then a row started up through a remark of Wakefield's that the working of the sugar will not be left to the discretion of the Hilo harbormaster. Thurston, thereupon, produced the rules and, in the first part of them, showed how the absolute control of the manner in which the railroad should handle freight and sugar was left in the hands of the harbormaster. "You have made statements here, Mr. Thurston, that should never have been made," said Wakefield. "I have said what you have done," replied Thurston, "not what you may do in the future." Then there was a short flare-up during which Thurston made his point that the harbormaster at Hilo would, under the present rules, have control of the handling of freight and sugar.

There was no further discussion of the Hilo wharf and it was decided to send the amended rules to the Hilo railroad for their approval and, as one commissioner remarked with a smile, "their signature." The board adjourned at noon till next Wednesday, when other matters will be dismissed.

DOWSETT ESTATE SEEKS NEW LEASE

With the expiration of the lease upon public lands in Pounahala and Waiakalau, in the vicinity of Lihouea, the Dowsett company has made application for a renewal of the lease, according to the statement of Governor Frear this morning. The tract includes about 600 acres of grazing land.

"They probably intend to move their ranch buildings over on this land," said the Governor, "since they will have to vacate the lands which they now occupy on the military reservation."

The Matter Deferred. Commissioner McCarthy again voiced his opinion that the whole of the regulations were tentative and that there was no necessity, at the present time, to go into the matter. The board can, at any time, amend the regulations. "It is a waste of time," finished McCarthy.

McCarthy suggested that the rules be dropped for the time being, but McStocker said that the Hilo railroad company had asked for the regulations to be considered and that it was the duty of the commissioners to do so.

Wakefield moved that the consideration of rules one, two, three, four and five be deferred. This was carried and other matters then claimed the attention of the board.

Storage Rule Opposed. The rule saying that outgoing freight can not be stored for more than three days in the warehouse at the wharf met with opposition from Mr. Thurston. He explained that sugar can not be rushed into the shed at the last moment and that there would be six or more days between steamers when, if there was a penalty of twenty-five cents a ton for sugar stored more than three days, the sugar could not be stored, except by paying the penalty.

Wakefield said that he did not intend to erect a free warehouse for the sugar companies. Hemenway said that he had not had sufficient time to study that phase of the matter, but if he found that it would be prohibitive to store sugar in the warehouse, he would join with Mr. Thurston on the subject.

"There seems to be a spirit of discrimination in the air here. I regret it. The railroad is to bind itself for ten years, and a fair deal should be given it."

This remark was in response to the declaration of Wakefield that the request of Thurston, regarding the piling of sugar, be denied. Thurston wanted the sugar to be piled at the rear of the wharf, but Hemenway objected and said the reason for the request was that the railroad company wanted to pile the sugar near their tracks and have an easy task. It was decided that an amendment should be made to the rules to provide that the sugar be stored so as to interfere as little as possible with the handling of freight.

Harbor Master's Powers. Then a row started up through a remark of Wakefield's that the working of the sugar will not be left to the discretion of the Hilo harbormaster. Thurston, thereupon, produced the rules and, in the first part of them, showed how the absolute control of the manner in which the railroad should handle freight and sugar was left in the hands of the harbormaster. "You have made statements here, Mr. Thurston, that should never have been made," said Wakefield. "I have said what you have done," replied Thurston, "not what you may do in the future." Then there was a short flare-up during which Thurston made his point that the harbormaster at Hilo would, under the present rules, have control of the handling of freight and sugar.

There was no further discussion of the Hilo wharf and it was decided to send the amended rules to the Hilo railroad for their approval and, as one commissioner remarked with a smile, "their signature." The board adjourned at noon till next Wednesday, when other matters will be dismissed.
